HAWLEY TALKS AT UNIVERSITY

U. S. Congressman From This City Explains Present Tariff Measure

Congressman Willis C. Hawley was speaker at the Willamette university chapel Tuesday. He addressed the student body on the importance and construction of the tariff bill.

Mr. Hawley declared that in the 45 days in which hearings were given prior to drafting the bill, no less than 1100 persons gave testimony, and that this testimony filled 11,000 printed pages. The methods of committees in which the bill was considered were explained. The speaker emphasized the fact that no attempt is made to keep secret the workings of the ways and means committee while the tariff bill is being drafted.

Of considerable interest was the history of methods used to determine rates of duty. The character of information on which these rates are based has changed materially since the great war because certain foreign nations have not given access as they formerly enjoyed.

One of the guiding principles in making the tariff is the fact that American labor lives and must live on a higher plane than similar labor of other countries. The committee must recognize the fact that there are over 27 million persons on American payrolls, and that their families comprise over half of the country's population.

Mr. Hawley pointed to the fact that 63 billion dollars of the annual 90 billion dollars' worth of American domestic trade comes from American industry.

Mr. Hawley stated that part of the effort of the tariff bill is to help the nation to be self-sufficient and declared that "a nation to be politically free must also be economically free." Further importance was attached to the fact that the value of present American domestic trade is approximately 10 times that of its foreign trade.

The congressman touched briefly the problem of farm relief and declared it his belief that it was far better to provide a market for farm products than merely to allow the farmer to borrow money at a lower rate of interest. The present tariff bill is an attempt to stimulate production of articles of which there is now under-production, and thereby decrease the present over-production of certain commodities.

KNOWLEDGE IS NOT ALWAYS EDUCATION

secondary school and that teaching for a desirable end—a desirable social end—was not done. Education must take into account, if it is going to do most good, the feelings—it must give the boy the ability to do with his muscles what he wants to do with his mind, he said. To an extent the teacher may "educate" the pupil—feelings, the likes and dislikes, just as an appreciation of art, or literature or music may be taught in greater or less degree to most pupils.

If love of state can be taught in the school, and it is, then love of other abstractions can be taught, the speaker asserted.

Dr. Clyde B. Moore of Cornell university, New York, gave an assembly address Tuesday morning, speaking on "Improved Civic Behavior," and pointed out that the function of the school is to assist the child primarily along three lines: a broadened selection, promotion or carrying through of certain experiences; and realization of the things experienced in school. Dr. Moore made a plea for teaching the child broad consideration of his fellow students as the basis for a more tolerant citizen of the future.

the game anyway to eat and the cold, raw weather did not help.

The great and near great were on hand. Several governors, seven and stage actresses, baseball magnates from major and minor leagues watched the game. Babe Ruth was on the scene, looking young and healthy in a dark brown suit. Ty Cobb was in the press box, along with George Von Elm, and Cy Young, the old pitcher.

Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, baseball comedians, strutted their specialties. They are understood to have received $2,000 each for their foolishness during the series.

Delegations of friends and members of players' families were present. Kiki Cuyler and his father, mother and wife seated behind the Cub dugout.

Miami Storm Caught in Action

The aviators, after being forced to land at Mulat, a village sixty miles north of here walked that distance in three days. They had to make many detours because of flood conditions along the river Noani.

They had some difficulty persuading the Mulat villagers that they were not Russian aviators forced down on a scouting flight, but finally were escorted before Chinese officials who spoke English.

Bellonte tried to explain that they were French, and eventually they were permitted to go on to Tsitsihar.

The landing subsequent misadventures caused more excitement in this corner of Manchuria than a Russian bombing expedition would have.

FORMAL PLANS FOR PEACE MEET HINTED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The American government is expected to accept the invitation of the British government to the London naval limitation conference before Prime Minister MacDonald departs from the United States next Tuesday.

Simultaneously with the making public of the text of the invitation state department officials tonight began preparing the draft of the reply which will be submitted to President Hoover for his approval.

The chief executive had reported in advance with approval and had a foregone conclusion that the acceptance of the invitation was a foregone conclusion.

The text itself, as reported in the petition will be as follows: Inez Adele Byrd $17,881.31; Dr. Roy D. Byrd $25.00; Winifred Muriel Byrd, $32,752; Clarence Macum Byrd $32,761.99; Donald W. Byrd, $32,761.99; Judge Siegmund set November 12 concurs in the terms of the enclosed notes. I shall be grateful if your excellency will be so good as to confirm my impression that they will find it possible to participate in the conference above mentioned."

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The French reply to the invitation to attend a five power naval conference early next year is likely to be a qualified condition acceptance. The British invitation was received today but it is probably that no answer will be sent before October 16, the day after the next council of ministers.

The invitation raised many questions which the French feel necessitate study by the interested French ministries of foreign affairs, marine and finances. It must then be discussed by the council of ministers upon the presidency of President Doumergue and the text of the reply must be adopted.

The foreign office spent the entire day translating the British document which was not available for publication in Paris before 9:00 p. m.

Caveat emp
A few years ago "Let the buyer beware" was not so far from being the motto of American business. If a man set out to buy a razor he might get a very excellent one—and, again, he might not. There were some very fine products. And some very poor. And there was no way of choosing the good from the bad, except by test.

Today that condition hardly exists. In every line of merchandise there are trade-marked, standardized products. Products that are unvarying in quality and performance—that can be depended upon year in and year out. When you buy them you know what they are, what they'll do, and what they cost. . . . They're advertised products!

To take full advantage of this—to save money—watch the advertisements! When you need anything turn to the advertising columns of this paper. Read about the things listed there. When you find the article you need, buy it—not haphazardly, but by name!
