

Suburban Developments of Residential Tracts Now Coming for Salem

AUTOMOBILE IS GREAT FACTOR

Demand Also is Growing for Realty With Beautiful View

Suburban developments have marked the progress of Salem in the past year the same as in other cities over the country. The automobile affording as it does a convenient and easy means of transportation has enabled city workers to go farther out to establish their homes. With good roads leading out from the centers the man working in town can jump into his car and in a few minutes be at his home located almost in the country.

Another sign of progress is the demand which grows for view lots for residential purposes. Most folk like to have something of a view from their yards or living room windows. Where there are heights the better class of residences go to the higher ground. In Seattle there are the developments known as the Highlands and the heights overlooking the sound. Portland has Westover Terrace and other hill residential developments.

In Salem there have been recent developments like Ben Leonard on the south, or like Kingwood Heights on the hills across the river. Both hills are another suburban development that is being opened up. All of these are "view" areas. Salem Highway tracts are near-in tracts now being put on the market, giving the advantage of city and the pleasures of country living. Boulder Knoll on the crest of the bluffs south of Salem has interesting possibilities.

As Salem expands and develops there will be increasing demand for suburban locations for residences. Whether inside or outside the city limits the sections which give pleasant spots for homes easy access to downtown by motor car will be in demand. The next few years will probably see the choice building spots taken up and many of them improved.

MONMOUTH, Oct. 19 — Mrs. H. S. Portwood returned last night from a visit of several weeks with relatives in California. She accompanied her niece, Miss Kathleen Murphy by motor to the latter's home in Los Angeles, going via the Redwood highway and Bakersfield.

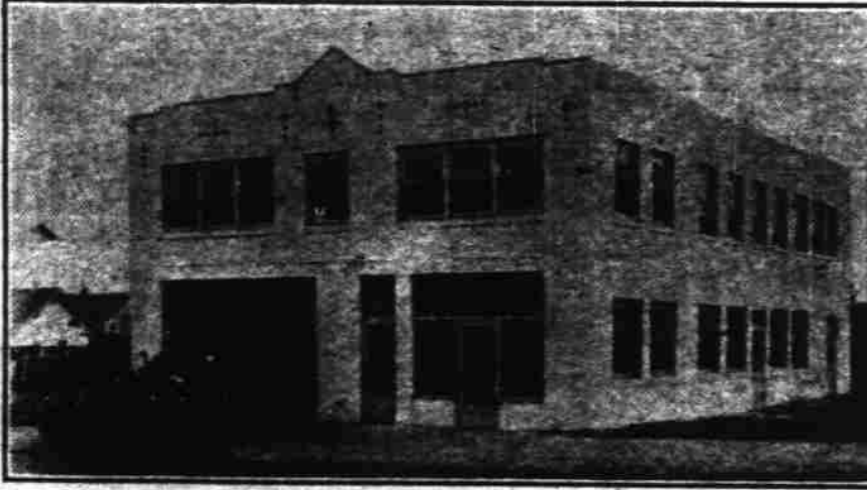

In Los Angeles, she also was the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Portwood, and was taken on a sight seeing trip to many places of interest about the city, and to Catalina Island where she observed the Wrigley Chewing Gum factory in its many phases of operation.

She enjoyed a visit with a sister, Mrs. Hampton, also while in southern California. The weather was warm and delightful on most of the trip, but heavy fog was encountered in San Francisco.

Monmouth's City Hall

Monmouth Has New City Hall Recently Completed

MONMOUTH, Oct. 19 — The new city hall, opened officially for occupancy this week, is a slightly two-story structure, 42x60, of stucco over Monmouth made tile, located on Main street between Warren and Monmouth avenue.

The ground floor contains a recorder's office; a council chamber which is also available gratis for any civic or public committee meeting; 4-H club or other agricultural or industrial gatherings; a city jail which when completed will be equipped with centrally located modern steel cells; fire department quarters, 24x40, contain ample space for two trucks and are provided with a heating device to keep motors constantly warm for instantaneous starting, and automatically controlled exit doors wide enough to permit simultaneous departure of both engines. In rear of the engine room is space for general supplies of the department with shower baths adjoining.

Part of the upper floor is arranged as dwelling apartments for Oregon Normal men students, one of whom is constantly in charge of the building from 6 p. m. until 7 a. m.

On the night of January 1, 1929, occurred the most disastrous fire in the history of Monmouth, destroying the large student-home of Mrs. Minnie Mack at 517 E. Jackson street, and resulting in the death of three young women students of the Normal school. Citizens of Monmouth acting promptly to avert a possible repetition of such a catastrophe voted a $15,000 bonding issue to provide more and better fire fighting equipment, and proper housing facilities for same. The fire department was reorganized and enlarged; and to be of aid also to farmers in this community, the city council recently empowered the chief to respond to fire alarms within a radius of five miles of town.

The general contract for building construction was awarded in July to the Batteberger company of Portland, plumbing and heating contract to C. P. Wilson, Monmouth; and electrical wiring to Glenn Whiteaker, Monmouth. Work began immediately under supervision of Lyle Bartholomew, Salem architect.

Mayor Moran, who has consistently furthered inception and development of the building project activity, states he believes that Monmouth's fire hazard is now reduced to a minimum; and its civic departments will be able to operate on the budget requirement of $10,444 stipulated for the ensuing year.
