the creation of a department in the state university to specialize in the problems of the city in the same way that the state college has studied the problems of the farmer.

Cities Faying for Inexperienced Work, Claim

This action was taken after Chris Schuebel, president of the league, declared that more than $400,000 a year was being paid by the people of Oregon for farm experiment work, and that of this amount $60 per cent of it was being paid by the cities.

Schuebel said it should not be necessary for cities to hold special elections to vote bonds for the establishment of incinerators and sewage disposal plants, but that this should be done by tax levy. Such a plan, he said, would eliminate the evil of paying twice for these improvements. A more equitable division of road taxes and another reform urged by Schuebel.

The present system of distributing motor vehicle and gasoline taxes was declared to be unfair. Schuebel contended that any street that is a link in a state highway should be maintained by the state highway commission. He requested appointment of a committee to confer with the highway commission on this subject. Schuebel also advocated for all Oregon cities a uniform building, plumbing and electrical code.

Importance of Waterways Stressed

A. L. Barbur, Portland city commissioner, stressed the importance of Oregon waterways, and urged some action by the league to the end that this state will receive its just share of federal funds for river development.

City Attorney Williams of Salem discussed legislation and codification of city ordinances. He reviewed numerous laws enacted at the 1929 legislative session affecting municipal government.

Governor Patterson stressed the necessity of coping with the stream pollution problem. He said he hoped the league would be able to present a definite program dealing with this subject at the next legislative session.

William J. Locke, executive secretary of the League of California municipalities, reviewed briefly the achievements of that organization.

Hal Hoss Discusses Uniform Accounting

Uniform accounting was discussed by Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state, while Emerson P. Schmidt of the University of Oregon, stressed indeterminate permits for public utilities.

Mr. Schuebel was re-elected president, while Fred Williams of Salem was elected vice-president. Other officers are J. L. France, Oregon City secretary, and Mrs. Laura Harlow, Troutdale, treasurer.

Resolutions adopted follow: Authorizing president and secretary to visit every municipality in Oregon, at expense of the league, and to urge such municipalities to become members of the organization.

Approve study by the United States government of development of waterways and harbors within the state of Oregon.

Authorizing appointment of a committee of three members of league to serve with representatives from state college and university of Oregon, upon the subject of research in connection with uniformity of city charters, and report at next convention.

Authorizing legislative committee of five to study distribution of road funds, motor vehicle fees, penalty and interest on tax certificates, and other matters affecting municipal governments.

Indorsement of senate bill 698, introduced by Senator McNary, which provides funds for investigation of stream pollution and other kindred matters.

The league authorized a committee of five to draft a system of model ordinances, for consideration of the organization at its next convention. The committee will be made up of city attorneys.

A so-called model milk ordinance, explained by Dr. Levens, of the state health department, was considered by the league.

SLIGHT REDUCTION IN TOLLS IS NOTED

Reduction from ten to five cents for the first five minutes of conversation between exchanges of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company within six miles of each other in the state of Oregon, was announced here Friday following the filing of a new rate schedule in the public utility commission by H. H. Risley, state manager for the telephone company.

The new rate schedule which involves reductions between more than 80 stations, will become effective November 1.

The new rates were announced following a series of conferences between officials of the telephone company and members of the public utility commission. Risley said the reduction was in line with the company's policy of reducing rates wherever possible.

The present rate for conversations extending beyond the five minute period is five cents for each five minutes. All calls will be on what is known as a station to station basis, which means giving the number of the telephone in the town called and the number of the phone placing the call.

Neither the Portland nor Salem exchanges are affected by the order.

the infant and pre-school services that it might give a basic education in health habits, as well as demonstrate to the parents and citizens at large the value of consistent supervision of diet, habits of health and general care during this important life period.

Real Life Tragedy Is Often Averted

Often the health demonstration clinic is the medium through which is averted a real tragedy to some tiny Marion county boy or girl. It was only recently at Silverton that a mother brought a baby to a clinic even though the child apparently had a slight cold and was running a temperature. The physician at the clinic, in the process of examination, looked into both the infant's ears, only to find each red and bulging and counseled the mother to take the child immediately to the family physician. Which advise the mother straightaway followed, and the physician, finding the eardrums too green for him, advised the mother to take the child to a specialist. In a few hours the child was in the hands of a specialist, who declared after he had opened the baby's ears, that within another 48 hours a double mastoid would have developed.

Seriousness of Situation Is Fully Realized

Mr. Dennis argues, "It is the day you learn at first hand how the University, where your boy or girl is being educated, is being conducted. The institution needs your inspection, your suggestion, your help. You are needed in this general scheme of preparing your child for life. The school cannot do it all."

Starting off with a business meeting Saturday morning, at which many important problems will be brought up and officers for the coming year elected, the program will be varied so as to show every phase of college life. In the afternoon the dads will attend the Oregon-U. C. L. A. football game, and in the evening will be entertained at a banquet, at which President Hall will be the principal speaker.

Officers of the organization are Bruce Dennis, Klamath Falls, president; Frank Andrews, Portland, vice president; Claude Bower, Eugene, secretary and Karl V. Oshank, Eugene, executive secretary.

DAD'S DAY TO ATTRACT MANY

Fathers of Oregon Students Are Invited to Eugene On November 2

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene—(Special)—Fathers of University of Oregon students from Salem are being invited to the annual Dad's Day, November 2, by Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the university and Bruce Dennis, Klamath Falls, president of the Oregon Dads.

"On behalf of the University, I want to invite you to the third annual celebration of Dad's Day," Dr. Hall says in his invitation. "We feel that the University and your sons and daughters need you, and that you need the closest understanding with your children and their problems, and with the University and its efforts for the better to serve your sons and daughters." A special appeal for new Oregon Dads to attend the conference was made.

"Keep November 2 open, for it is more important to you than any business engagement," Mr. Dennis argues. "It is the day you learn at first hand how the University, where your boy or girl is being educated, is being conducted. The institution needs your inspection, your suggestion, your help. You are needed in this general scheme of preparing your child for life. The school cannot do it all."

ed the ball to the four yard line; Erickson drove to within two feet of the goal and Lang kicked it over from there.

Scoring was slowed down then by an Idaho kick which rolled far into Willamette territory, and Howell's interception of a Bearcat pass; but both times Idaho had the ball it ran into a stone wall, and Erickson ran back the second punt 50 yards to Idaho's 33 yard line, and the cardinal juggernaut started grinding off the distance until it reached the 14 yard mark before the quarter ended.

Penalties Costly For Willamette

Two big penalties shoved Willamette back, but Idaho with a foot to go kicked the ball on downs for its own 43.

Then Willamette opened up with a passing attack; Engbreetsen tossed one to Cranor which put the ball on the 21 yard line, and DePoe entered the game in time to leave one to French, which dodged tacklers until he fell across the goal line.
