Finley of Reo Sales and Service

Driving the first automobile into the Big Meadows country, H. C. Finley of Reo Sales and Servvice, transported County Judge Siegmund, Commissioner Porter, Roadmaster Johnson and Engineer Swart that far on their expedition into the Santiam country to view roads. Returning Finley drove the first car across Sand mountain to Suttle lake. Then he returned via McKenzie pass, reaching home in the night, Thursday.

Leaving Salem Wednesday morning Finley drove the party carrying a full load of the men and their supplies and equipment to Cascadia on the South Santiam age, nine boys and 24 girls. This highway, thence up the steep Seven Mile mountain to Fish lake school age this year, which total and on to Lost lake and Dry lake. Then he left the road and followed a fire trail through the brush for nine miles into Big. Meadows. Renew your subscription before Nov. 1. All mail subscriptions in They finally had to stop and hike a mile and a half to the camp where the 20 engineers engaged in road survey of the North Santiam highway were located. They reached the camp about six o'elock.

Next morning Finley, having left the party at the camp, drove back to Fish lake. Engineer J. B. Rehrer refused to let him drive down the Seven Mile mountain because of the steepness of the grade and condition of the road, so he followed a fire trail across Sand mountain to Suttle lake. From there he drove to Sisters over the county road and back over the McKenzie highway.

The county party started Thursday morning to hike 27 miles from Big Meadows along the route of the proposed North Santiam highway to the end of the auto road nine miles above Detroit. They expected to telephone in from a ranger station and Finley is to drive up to pick up the party and return with them to Salem.

Going up Seven Mile mountain is a heavy drag, said Finley. It which occurred as he was returnwas low gear work all the way. On his trip out he was accompanied by R. I. Thomas, one of the engineers who had been summoned to his home in Montana by word of the sickness of rela-
