

SALEM MILK GRADES FIXED

85 Per Cent of Product Used Locally is Pasteurized Says Inspector

The grades of all milk being supplied by the various distributors to consumers in Salem have been determined by the Marion county health unit according to the standard grade specifications of the local milk ordinance. The local ordinance is practically identical with the United States public health service standard milk ordinance now receiving statewide publicity, and it is the first ordinance of this kind to be adopted in the state of Oregon, says J. E. Blakthorn, dairy and milk inspector.

Through the cooperation of the various milk distributors with the health unit the milk produced is of a sufficiently high quality so that at present no Grade B milk is being delivered. Consumers are urged by the health unit to buy no milk which is not plainly labeled as such.

Grade A pasteurized is considered the safest quality of milk and at the present time 85 per cent of the milk sold in Salem is of that grade. The balance is grade A raw.

The milk distributors are alphabetically listed under their respective grades for the past six months.

Grade A Pasteurized—Capitol dairies, Curley's dairy, Foshey Farms, Inc., Fred's Independent dairy, O. K. dairy and Salem Sanitary Milk company. Grade A Raw—Mrs. Frances Doty, dairy, Foshey Farm, Inc., Fred's Independent dairy, Henry Girod's dairy, Emil Graber dairy, Hurley dairy, Liens Jersey dairy, Lindale Jersey Farm, Pleasant Home dairy, Waldo Hills Guernsey Farm, Wetherby dairy and E. Zimmerman dairy.

Hubbard Merchant Has Interesting Trip Through Middle Western States

HUBBARD, Nov. 2.—John Smolinsky, proprietor of the Hubbard Service Store—a Red and White chain store—returned Tuesday evening from a combined business and pleasure trip to South Dakota, going as far east as Minneapolis, Minnesota, and being gone just one month to the day. A coincident of the date of Mr. Smolinsky's return from this last trip was that it happened to be the date that the family arrived in Oregon nine years ago when they moved from South Dakota.

In making this last trip, Mr. Smolinsky left Portland September 29. At Seattle he took passage on a steamer and there spent his first night reaching Port Townsend and Port Angeles of Washington the next day. At both places the loading and unloading of the boats interested him. At Victoria, B. C., Mr. Smolinsky went for a sight seeing trip on one of the busses and visited many places of interest—one of which was Butchart's sunken gardens, a garden showing the many wonders of plant life. At Princess Louise, and from there Victoria, B. C., Mr. Smolinsky changed boats and went on to Vancouver, B. C., on the steamer Princess Louise, and from there the remainder of the trip was made by train.

Having enjoyed every minute of the trip by water and starting by train, the first thing of interest to Mr. Smolinsky was the 150-mile ride along the scenic Kamloops river or more strictly speaking, a river composed of a chain of beautiful lakes.

At Field, Canada, Mr. Smolinsky stayed over night at the Young Men's Christian association. Leaving Field, the crossing of the divide by making the horse shoe turns proved interesting and exciting. This part of the trip went along the Kicking Horse river and past the Lake Louise resort.

At Banff, Canada, the rugged mountainous country ended and the level farm land began, stretching out over miles of plains. At Moose Jaw, Mr. Smolinsky stopped for 12 hours during which time he visited several Red and White chain stores. Going south, Mr. Smolinsky went into North Dakota through North Portal and on into Minnesota going as far as Minneapolis where he started his return trip.

At Minneapolis he took the Olympian limited and reached Aberdeen, South Dakota, a distance of 289 miles in 6 hours and 10 minutes with only three stops on the whole run. Leaving Aberdeen, Mr. Smolinsky visited his mother and brothers and many friends at his home towns of Leola and Eureka. October 27, Mr. Smolinsky went to Lemmon, South Dakota to look after a homestead which he owns at that place.

Mr. Smolinsky left Lemmon Sunday evening and came to Seattle, Washington on the Olympian limited and there took the Union Pacific, arriving at Hubbard Tuesday evening at 6:36 o'clock. Mr. Smolinsky observed not only the wonderful scenery as he went through Canada, but also noticed the condition of the crops in the different sections of the country. In some places good crops were reported but in most places the crops were far below normal.
