Analysis of Water Required by Law

Water analyses are required by law to be made for school fountains or wells, auto camps, including both the camp and urban source. These are taken by the sanitary officer or health officer, both members of the demonstration staff, and inspected in the laboratory. Within the last two months two instances of typhoid have occurred in this county. In one, the case developed from a typhoid contaminated well bordering the county limits. The other case or Leonard Martin patient was a guest in this same home, who later went to California and became ill there.

More than one epidemic within the school has undoubtedly been averted through the laboratory service. For as soon as a child in school is found to have a sore throat, the school nurse or health taken, and in 12 hours a re- day. ort is made on whether or not positive diphtheria has appeared. Meanwhile the child is excluded from school. If the case is diphtheria, cultures are given all other children in the room and in ancase or carrier will be picked up. Last year 67 such cultures were taken in the school room. And that number is exceedingly low in comparison to the 674 taken in 1926. The lower number of cultures within the few years is indicative of the benefit the immunication program has brought to the county.
