WHY THE MODERN? — The Domino

THE DOMINO HOUSE H-103

By Duncan Hunter Architect, New York

The plans as shown are for a lot facing South or West. For a lot facing North or East the plans should be reversed.

Why the Modern? Why not? Simply because a certain thing has been done for years does not mean that it must continue indefinitely. Since we are told there is nothing permanent, but change our present status in house design seems in need of change in order that it may be more permanent, but suppose we forget the rules and regulations, shelve the copy books and design a house as a house to live in? What then? Logic would say that it should be a "go."

"The Domino" as a house for a small family, with a car and perhaps a servant, offers logical living quarters. From the outside it is low lying, the sweep of the roof brings it into a sort of good fellowship with the ground, and we are not yet quite so Modern that our houses do not feel better on a foundation, a tie with the ground.

The living room has a high ceiling with an expansive window in one end and the fireplace and balcony in the other. This room also serves for dining.

The scheme—Cellar—(under Living Room and Kitchen) Laundry, Heater and general space, Cold Room.

First Floor—Entrance Vestibule with Lavatory and Coat Closet, Living Room, Kitchen, Breakfast Alcove, two Bed Rooms, Bath, Closets and Motor Room.

Second Floor—Maid's Room and Bath, Storage space. Ceiling Heights—Cellar—seven feet, First Floor—eight feet six inches, Second Floor—eight feet, Living Room has a fourteen foot ceiling.
