O. W. Hatch, pastor, James Davis, L. B. Hafterson and Lyle Knox were named a building committee to proceed with the work. The new structure, 36 feet wide and 60 feet long, has been designed not only with a view to convenience and attractiveness, Midwask expired. SERMON FOR THE WEEK

Visions and Mountain Tops

By REV. MEREDITH A. GROVES

(Pastor, Ford Memorial Community Church, West Salem)

Text-Isaiah 6:8. Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I, send me.

Youth is pre-eminently the time for visions. Then the future is rosy. With great expectations we look for the new and the great. Visions are mountain-top experiences. They lift us above the material and immediate and nelp us to see life as it is over years of time and perhaps into the eternities. Visions motivate a life with high ideals, change a drab existence into a rosy one, give hard tasks a definite meaning, and make extraordinary people out of ordinary ones. Without vision the people perish. The visionless soul is the dead soul. As far as he is concerned the people about him are perishing. The careless and thoughtless do not receive visions of any sort-much 'ess religious visions. This experience came to Isaiah because he was a thoughtful seeker for God through the religious service of his day. His vision came in the temple service. Most vital religious experiences come directly or indirectly through purposeful attendance of the church services. Isaiah went to church seeking God and there he found Him.

Possibly no one else saw what Isaiah did that day. But for him the presence, majesty, glory, power, and holiness of God were more real than anything else in the temple. Such experiences come to different people in different ways. Paul's call came through a light and a voice, Moses' came through a burning bush. To many people in many ways God may reveal himself-but when he does it is the most real experience in that person's life. Isaiah never got over this vision. For nearly 40 years he was the leading religious voice of a great people. Today the world is still being influenced by that vision. The revelation of God brought to Isaiah a sense of and repentance for his own sin and that of his people. The lack of the sense of God in people's lives dull their sense of sin and makes sinning easy. Isalah's agony for his sin brought cleansing or him. The call to service but he had not heard it because of sin. A sense of God and a sense of cleansing from sin always follows with a glad offering of ourselves in his service.
