Girl Reserve Work Centered About Christmas

All the Girl Reserve groups are busy with Christmas plans during the next three weeks. Two pageants will be given, carols will be sung, and the children patients of the tuberculosis hospital will be especially remembered with presents.

Mrs. George Rhoten assisted by Miss Josephine Olsen has charge of the music, and the making of the costumes is in the charge of Miss LeVada Maxwell and Doris Clark.

The first pageant "The Spirit of Christmas" will be an event of Friday night in the Y. W. C. A. rooms. Family and friends of the girls are invited to be present for this. It will set the "trend" of Christmas. It emphasizes the spirit of giving, service, music, worship, and in the Y. W. C. A. rooms will be decorated. All as a part of the pageant representing that for which Christmas should stand. The program will begin at 7:30 o'clock. The grade school Reserves are presenting this. They will have a rehearsal for it Thursday afternoon.

The Junior Reserves will present their pageant "Through a Christmas Window" at the Y. W. C. A. rooms before family and invited friends Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening. Dress rehearsal for this event will be Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The Parish Reserves will entertain at the home of Ruth Johnson with a silver tea in compliment to their mothers. The program motif will be oriental. A play will be part of the offering.

The high school girls will take up the idea of craft work for December meetings and develop some Christmas presents through their study they hope.

Garfield School Items

Interesting Project in Character Education and Citizenship Carried on in Grade School

Not so long ago a child was sent to school for one purpose only; the training and development of his mind. More recently much attention has been given to physical development, and the health of the child has been stressed. But the latest progressive step has been along the line of character education, for if the aim of education is to "teach the pupils to think," it follows that he must learn to think rightly about the situations which he will meet in life, and so standards must be set up for him whereby he can make his decisions.

That this new phase of education is being very effectively presented, becomes evident on visiting the citizenship classes at Garfield school. There we found the children of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades seriously considering the necessity of character building for citizenship. They have been led to see that a brilliantly educated man with a dwarfed character may become a most dangerous criminal and that a citizen whose health is neglected, may become a burden on the community.

These children seem delighted to find that citizenship begins at birth, and they are interestedly occupied in trying to acquire those virtues which make for morality. Such qualities as honesty, courage, loyalty, industry, kindness, gratitude, obedience, self control and courtesy are being attractively presented by stories of noble deeds, some times dramatized by the little people, biographies, (and who can not recall the influence for good in our youthful hero worship?) by poems memory gems and free discussion.

Books are being made too in which pupils record their ideas on each subject. Some of these contain original poems and dramatizations. They are freely illustrated, and at this visit not all of the booklets were available, for they were at home where much of the posting and sketching is done. Thus the family is involved into helping and incidentally lending moral support.

While this course is aimed to be of greatest benefit to the child who lacks home training, it will surely lend emphasis to all good influences. The necessity of courtesy is impressed on the rude child when he hears his classmates give impromptu talks or carefully

Oh These Women! Skirts Lengthen and All in Variety's Name

Men are bemoaning the fact that women are lengthening their skirts. They had been doing a lot of talking about how they loved the old-fashioned girls, and how there weren't any of them left, and how they remained bachelors because they couldn't find a girl like mother. You would have thought they were bored with knee dresses!

Just wait Brother. You will find that most of these long thin, billowy evening skirts are either shamelessly transparent, or they separate in the middle of the front and fall back when the lady sits down. The under part is even shorter than of old, so that when the material falls to one side you see silk legs and knees revealed in the most artistic fashion. They know what not to wear and how not to wear it; these modern women.

Legs have been a lot of help to poor girls who couldn't attract by her clothes, but managed to trip straight into some important hearts through the medium of a superior pair of underpadding. If legs hadn't been so popular with men the girls wouldn't have chopped their skirts off another inch each season, until the wind was almost ashamed to blow.

But in order to keep men entertained, the girls have cut the backs out of their evening dresses, and fitted whats left of the waists

The Beauty By HELEN FOLLETT BOX

Signs point to a facial revolution. Eyebrows are getting thicker. Ears are figuring and receive their quota of make up. Longer hair brings along a coiffure that is more bouffant than the shellacked and slumped-down, finger-waved glory-halo. The baby-doll prize is disappearing along with abbreviated skirts that left kneecaps uncovered. The new portrait is interesting, because it is effecting an expression of intelligence. Volla!

Reducing should be reduced to a minimum; the clean sweep against fat cells won't do. The loss of two pounds a week should be the limit, because the entire physical system must adjust itself to new conditions. Losing flesh rapidly will kick up a state of facial wreckage, the under layers of adipose tissue dissolving, leaving the outer cutaneous coverings several sizes too big. While reducing the wise woman will have facial treatments twice a week and will give her skinning countenance at least two ice rubs a day.

A shoe that does not resist the pressure of the weight of the body over the instep is a loose shoe, and a loose shoe can make, as much trouble as one that is too short or too narrow. Shoe clerks stress the need of long shoes, but the average woman doesn't wear shoes wide enough to permit foot spread and a firm foothold.

Petrolatum is an excellent application for the eyebrows. It should be applied at night with an eyebrow brush. It will not only provide luster and glitter, but by its applications, each fasser will be trained to take its proper place. Brush all the hairs upward, then both ends downward, then give one outward sweep that unites them properly into an arch.

Beauty questioners are forever begging for the name of some magic eye-brightener. The best orb sparkler is provided by natural animation and a lively brain. It is not safe to use anything in the eyes unless it is some mild lotion recommended by a specialist. The membrane of the eye is extremely delicate, its mechanism marvelous beyond understanding. It has its own oiling and washing system. To apply belladonna is to imperil the vision; it is a deadly poison.

To "the feller" who is wondering what he is going to give his best girl for Christmas we will suggest the make-up box. There are spaces for powder, rouge, hand lotions, powder pads, eye pencils, rouge and whatever the little dear heart has collected. They come bearing all kinds of little and big prices.

Enteropneosis is the medical term for too-large, protruding tummy, which may be caused either by accumulations of adipose tissue or by bad posture which has caused the abdominal muscles to sag and weaken. The abdomen should be flat, no matter whether the woman's age be 16 or 60. Girls who get their 15 minutes of vigorous exercise every day will never lose the slender contour. Bending exercises will correct tummies that slump.

Oily hair is hateful! It is caused by overactivity of the sebaceous glands in the scalp. Brushing the hair increases the buttery gloss, but scalp massage seems to retard its function. Dip the fingers in ice cold water when beginning the massage. After the shampoo rinse the hair with a quart of water to which the juice of two lemons has been added; rinse away with cold water.

To prolong the life of silk hosiery, rinse before wearing. By taking a tuck around the top of the stockings (it should be done by machine) runs will be less likely to start. When the fabric at the heel shows wear it should be darned, the stitches running bias of the weave instead of up and down.

Few women drink enough water to keep the complexion clear and fine. Six glasses a day are not too many. Water-drinking improves the healthy color of the lips. It is a beautifier because it is an internal cleanser.
