When they started preaching the gospel of safety about three years ago, Safety Sam and the Careful Twins figured they might get 50,000 members for the club if their technique was successful. The kids surprised them. Every week the roster has grown by the hundreds. Requests for the club's membership button, pledge card and song still pour in with every mail.

Each night the Careful Twins, known as Handy Andy and Ready Mddy, have some new stunt to bring home the idea of eliminating carelessness and accidents. Sometimes they read letters from members telling how they have study of Mexico with a set of lanhelped the safety cause. Again they present playlets. Always the club's slogan "One thought for safety is worth a ship in the National Educational thousand regrets," is emphasized. Handy Andy and Ready Eddy, who are W. F. Yorger and H. J. Brammeier of the St. Louis-Safety council, know a thousand ways to put it across. In their membership pledge the children promise not to take chances, not to steal rides on automobiles or street cars, not to tersection, not to fool with firearms, matches or stoves, not to touch dangling wires or take medicine from a bottle without a label, and to stay in shallow water until they learn how to swim.

TREES ARE MUZZLED

EAST LANSING, Mich-(AP) -West Michigan again looks to the tree to stop the advance of the shifting sands from the shoreline of Lake Michigan.

Eleven years ago Michigan State college sponsored a reforestation program to plant 500,000 trees along the lake front frontage to keep back the sands from the dunes which had covered farm property, churches and parts of Today the college contemplates a similar program extending from the Indiana line to the tip of the upper peninsula on the west. More
