Landsbury Talks Music—Dean J. Landsbury, dean of the school of music at the University of Oregon, addressed a meeting of the Crescendo club held yesterday during the home room period at the high school. Dean Landsbury talked on music from the vocational and the professional point of view. He said that the vocational side of music in the public schools was one of the biggest fields in music, and pointed out that few musicians are elected to the real professional fields. He also told the club members that music leads to a more complete living, and pointed to its use in this aspect of individual development. The club, one of the newest at the high school, has 30 members now. Lena Belle Tartar, head of the music department, is the advisor.

ROBERT HILL WINS PLACE IN CONTEST

Robert Hill, 12-year-old sixth grader at Garfield school, was the center of admiration of all his schoolmates yesterday. For Robert, word had just been received, won third prize for writing the third best essay of any Oregon school child in the national safety campaign sponsored by the highway educational department in Washington, D. C. A five-dollar cash award and a bronze medal goes to Robert for his essay.

Last year when the safety campaign was being conducted, each of Miss Greta Hiett's sixth grade pupils wrote an essay, and the two best were submitted in the contest. At that time, the Garfield school principal, teachers and pupils were all working hard in the local safety campaign and won most of the local prizes for their efforts. Robert will enter Parrish junior high school at mid-year.

MEETING IS STAGED BY GIRL RESERVES

An enthusiastic meeting of the high school Girl Reserves was held at the high school after school yesterday, when plans were completed for the Christmas cheer work of the group. Hazel McElroy, president, gave a report on the sectional committee meeting held in Portland last Saturday in preparation for the mid-winter conference to be held February 22 and 23 in Vancouver, Wash. This group will deliver presents gathered by a number of groups for the tuberculosis hospital, and will make the trip to the hospital with the gifts next Monday afternoon.

All Girl Reserves of the city, all Girl Scouts and all Camp Fire Girls will unite to sing Christmas carols next Tuesday evening, the groups to meet on the west side of the county court house promptly at 7 o'clock. Carols will be sung at the hospitals and also at one of the hotels and will be led by Mrs. W. J. Minkiewicz.

The high school G. R.'s also laid plans for their Christmas party to be held December 28 at the Y. W. C. A. The group will also take charge of the refreshments at the boys' exposition to be held at the Y. M. C. A. December 30 and 31, and January 1, in which all boys of the city are eligible to enter exhibits.

Les Amies Club Will Give Play

Not so very many weeks ago the Les Amies club, composed of industrial girls, was being formed. And now, that club is ready to present to the public a one-act play and musical program, to be held Friday night in the auditorium at Nelson hall, 381 Chemeketa, commencing at 8:15 o'clock.

The play, "A Case of Suspicion," is the lively-moving and hilarious story of a group of boarding school girls who forget boys in a basket up to their rooms. That is, they bring up boys until they find in their basket one of the professors; and that isn't enough, the dean of the school finds the entire group. But it all ends happily enough. Miss Helen Pemberton, a Willamette student, has coached the play.

The cast, in order of appearance, follows:

Kathleen, Margaret Elmfeldt; Dorothy, Agnes Smith; Alfred, Virginia Van Vleet; Mildred, Verna Wood; Jonas, Nina Britt; Professor Emilus Edgerton, Delores Sanders, stage manager.

State Board of Health Warns Against Deadly Gas

Caution against running automobiles in closed garages because of the deadly carbon monoxide gas resulting therefrom is issued from the office of the state board of health from this cause. The bulletin on the matter follows:

With the advent of cold weather comes the need of warning against closed garages when idling an engine to heat it for the morning exit, or tinkering with the automobile while the engine is running. Running an engine for a short time in a closed garage produces enough carbon monoxide to make it extremely dangerous. This is a really true when the motor is cold and as a result the combustion of the fuel is incomplete. It is never advisable to run an automobile engine in a closed garage. When it is necessary to work in a room where motors are running, an adequate system of ventilation should be installed.

Could this gas give warning of its presence by some offensive or even characteristic odor the danger would be lessened. But the gas is odorless and colorless and so one is defenseless against it unless one has taken the precaution to open garage doors and windows while the engine is running.

Attacks of headache and dizziness also occur in a tightly closed car, if there be leaky joints with a gradual leakage of carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust. Children are particularly susceptible to this gas and on a long trip in cold weather one should have some ventilation in the car.

Carbon monoxide has the power of very quickly combining with the hemoglobin of the blood, 300 times more so readily than oxygen. That is why it is so disastrous. It shuts off from the blood the needed oxygen and asphyxiation follows. The air of a closed garage is so quickly filled with this gas one cannot escape, unconsciousness and death ensuing before any noticeable symptoms appear, such as headache, drowsiness or dizziness, symptoms which mark the poisoning when only minute quantities of this gas are present.

Recovery from exposure to carbon monoxide depends upon immediate removal to fresh air. This results in beginning immediately the elimination of the gas. Oxygen with a small percentage of carbon dioxide has been found to hasten the recovery.

FORENSIC DELEGATE RETURNS FROM TRIP

Warren McMinnimee, Willamette university delegate at the national convention of Tau Kappa Alpha, honorary forensic fraternity, returned to the campus this week after an absence of two weeks. The convention was held at Miami college in Ohio the first week in December.

"Those people back there certainly knew about Willamette," he said, "but I got rather tired of hearing the old school called 'Willamette'." When asked what had given the school such prominence, McMinnimee said that three things in particular had contributed. First was the fact that "Who's Who" carries the names of practically one-fourth of the members of the faculty; second was the attitude toward smoking and dancing; and third was the winning of the football championship.

MUMFORD WILL GO TO STUDENT CONFAB

William Mumford, president of the Willamette university students will be delegate at the convention of the National Student Federation of America, to be held January 1 to 4 at Palo Alto. The federation represents colleges over the whole nation, and in the five years of its existence this is the first time a convention has been held west of the Mississippi.

A wide variety of student problems will come up for discussion at this convention, according to Mumford. Among them will be the matter of honor system, student government, relation of fraternities to the student body and non-fraternity organizations. Under the general division of athletics will come questions of eligibility awards and schedules. The matters of interclass battles and hazing are also expected to receive attention.

DR. TULLY SPEAKS ON CHINESE WOMEN

The traveler in China learns little about women of China, for few of them are in evidence. Rev. Norman K. Tully told the Salem Zonta club in seeking to that group yesterday noon on "Women in China." But while this is the case, the women no less than the men are deeply concerned in the present affairs in China, and probably to a greater extent than they have ever before been interested.

The three great burdens in "home" China, ignorance, poverty and superstition, must be routed before China can successfully take her place in world affairs, and the first remedy for this is infusion of Christianity, Tully said.

China, Tully pointed out, is going through in a generation four revolutions; practically the same revolutions which it took our country almost 500 years to go through. And none of these religious, political or industrial problems can be settled without giving consideration to the condition of women.

Slavery, though contrary to the law, is still rampant in parts of China so far as women are concerned. Tully observed on his trip to the Orient last summer. Some of the "modernized" girls he saw in the centers of population, but in the main woman is still in the background, an instrument, not an individual.

A decorated Christmas tree for the table and sprigs of holly for each member were arranged as a surprise by Mrs. Winnie Pettyjohn.

The advanced chorus class and orchestra of the Salem high school will present on January 17, the fanciful opera, "Fire Prince," a composition of musical excellence by Henry Hadley, noted composer and director, of New York city. Lena Belle Tartar, head of the music department, is directing it.

The "Fire Prince" consists of two acts involving a mythical story which takes place at a Spanish embassy, and of course has a Spanish setting. There is a variety of characters from royalty to servants and the lines contain humor and amusements. The melody.

OPERETTA WILL BE PRESENTED SOON

Tonight at 7:30 the Willamette university glee clubs and the university orchestra will present a program of Christmas music in the university chapel. The orchestra, conducted by Professor William Wallace Graham, will give a half-hour prelude to the concert by the glee clubs.

The combined glee clubs will sing "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," as a processional, and will carry lighted candles as they march. The program will include solos by Helen Cochran, and Josephine Albert, and a violin solo by Iva Claire Love.

The concert is sponsored by the glee clubs and the Shakespeare club; no admission will be charged.

Hollywood to Get Brass Band Report States

The Hollywood community is to have a brass band, according to plans outlined Wednesday. It will be directed by L. E. Hill, former bandmaster at the state training school for boys, who also organized the Liberty band.

There is no age limit—anybody living in North Salem is eligible, irrespective of age or sex. The preliminary meeting will be held next Monday night, December 23, at the Hollywood bakery. A series of concerts will be planned.
