Much Interest Shown in Art Exhibit

The art exhibit in the upstairs dining room is another department of unusual interest, conveying proof that there are many boys of exceptional artistic talent living in Salem. There are many excellent crayon drawings, art objects in great variety, and some paintings which would merit consideration in any exhibition. Some of the art is of decidedly modernistic trend.

Salem boys include in their number many expert woodworkers, aviation students, collectors of rare objects and even cooks, the exhibits distributed about the building reveal.

can museum of natural history have identified in the bones 150 races of mammals, apparently worked into awls, scrapers, and polished decorations, specimens, which does not exist in the region, was also found bearing marks that may have been made artificially in sharpening tools.

"It's hard to see," Cook said, "how the bones could have been fashioned by natural erosion. If we can prove that they were artificially worked, they are bone tools of a comparatively intelligent people of a long time ago."

The bones were those of animals of semitropical climate, including a dorn race of three-toed horses, camels that ranged from very small to immense size, deer and antelope comparable to African kinds, and cats far larger than any existing today.

Some were split lengthwise and carried marks possibly made by man; some had holes bored centrally through the entire length; others were polished, evenly sized, or bored with holes in their sides.

More definite evidences of early man from New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado, were described as carrying back human existence from 20,000 to 500,000 years.

"Arrowheads from Yuma county, Colorado," Cook said, "indicate skill not exceeded in the history of stone work. In beauty and workmanship they are equal to the finest things done by stone age men in Europe."

PANTHERS ARRIVE FOR BIG GRID GAME

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN Associated Press Sports Writer PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 30. (AP)—Determined to rebuild the prestige of eastern football from the ruins of the Army defeat at the hands of Stanford last Saturday, the Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh, 29 of them, today arrived at the scene of their scheduled Tournament of Roses battle with the University of Southern California New Year's day.

The invading squad, showing signs of only slight fatigue as a result of their long train ride, hopped off a special car at Alhambra, near here, at 10:10 a. m. In the afternoon they went to the Rose Bowl for a snappy practice session.

Coach John "Jock" Sutherland, who is bringing his team to the annual east-west clash, for the second time, refused to predict an outcome for the impending contest.

"My men are apparently in good condition—no colds, no injuries—and they will be ready for a real fight," said the taciturn eastern mentor.

"The weather?" he repeated the question.

"Just say the weather will have no effect whatever on the outcome. Contrary to predictions of Southern California sport writers, the climate will not decide Wednesday's game."

Captain Albert D. Meolo, echoed the statement of his coach. "We will have no climate ally, we are in great shape and expect to win."

OLYMPIC MACHINE IS DUE FOR CHANGE

By ALAN GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor. NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The complicated and in some respects, archaic machinery of the American Olympic association, is due for an overhauling, apparently by the mutual consent and agreement of the factions that have waged more than one spirited war over its control in the past.

The first steps designed to bring this about, in advance of the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles, were taken today at a conference called to consider changes in the constitution of the association.

A long series of recommendations for alteration of the association's structure was outlined in a joint statement signed by Avery Brundage, of Chicago, national president of the Amateur Athletic union, and Brigadier General Palmer E. Pierce of New York, president of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Four years ago General Pierce, with allied forces of the National Amateur Athletic federation and
