

Willamette Basketball Team Defeats Oregon by 44-32

CURT COMMENTS

About those officials who handled Willamette's game with O. S. C. Saturday night, we're at a loss for words. Oh, we could think of plenty of words, but finding some which would be both appropriate and printable is something else again.

And then again, we do like to be fair. There were three Oregon State fans right alongside of us and they were just as candid and open about condemning the officials as we were—only they thought Oregon State was getting the worst of it.

Nearly everybody there "booed" the officials, and it wasn't outstandingly a Willamette crowd, for most of the students hadn't returned after the holidays. It was a Salem crowd, however, and Salem is strong for Willamette now—our home university is much more popular, athletically speaking, than it was a few years ago. And besides, Willamette was the under dog, which made it even more popular.

But nearly every sports crowd believes in a fair deal, and it was evident that crowd thought Willamette wasn't getting it.

Eldon Jenne and Al French, the officials, are just beginning their first season as Coast conference registered officials. Oregon State is a member of the Coast conference, which pays officials better than does the Northwest conference or the high schools. But we'll not say Al French would let that influence him.

Fact is, we couldn't see anything wrong with Al's work except that he was, as usual, rather lenient.

Of the two officials, it was Jenne who called practically all of the questionable fouls, and who appeared to see nothing wrong with Oregon State's play and everything wrong with Willamette's play. We recall that it was Jenne who was referee of a football game here last fall between Willamette and Pacific, in which the Bearcats were penalized, during the first half, every time they gained five yards—or so it seemed.

We have our private doubts as to whether Jenne has much use for anything labeled "Salem," after the unjust punning given his basketball team at the tournament here last year.

And so, without making any charges of prejudice or anything, we would just suggest to the athletic authorities at Willamette that there are other officials besides Jenne whose fairness and competency to handle basketball games is unquestioned. We rather guess they don't need any such suggestions.

Willamette has the makings of the best team it has turned out for a long time—but there are some raw spots which need to be touched up a trifle, and the lack of capable reserves may be a serious handicap unless some dark horses develop.

The attendance at the Oregon State game was all that could be asked, and suggests that Willamette ought to schedule more games with stronger teams than the Northwest conference affords. Probably the doing its best to do just that—we hope it succeeds.

The Northwest conference may provide Willamette with plenty of competition this year. The Bearcats are facing a tough proposition in the two games against Whitman on Whitman's tiny floor—it's almost too much to expect

Webfoots Are Outclassed By Speedy Bearcat Quint In One-sided Hoon Game

McARTHUR COURT, University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A fast-moving Willamette basketball team downed Oregon 44 to 32 here tonight in the Webfoot's final game before going into the regular Pacific coast conference schedule with Washington State here Friday.

The Bearcats took an early lead over the young Webfoots and consistently maintained a ten-point advantage for the remainder of the contest.

Willamette, led by the diminutive Scales and the giant Cardinal, dropped in nine points before the Oregon scorers got started. Oregon managed to improve its standing by the end of the first half but the Bearcats still had a good lead at half time, 26 to 15.

Good, consistent shooting was the thing that the Willamette team has been lacking in its previous games, and Monday night it had it. Graduate Manager Leslie Sparks said on his return from Eugene Monday night. The shooting on free throws was especially accurate, 10 out of 15 being converted. Adams and Benjamin made all they tried. Cardinal three out of five, Hank two out of three, Gibson one out of three. In field scoring, Cardinal converted four out of seven shots and the others were close behind him in percentage. Oregon, one the other hand, missed something like 18 "setups" from right in front of the basket.

A return game will be played here January 16, Thursday night of this week. The Bearcats will meet the strong DeNeff's team from Eugene, an outfit composed of former University of Oregon stars.

St. Paul Teams Play Rickreall Cagers Tonight

ST. PAUL, Jan. 6.—(Special)—The St. Paul high school basketball teams, both boys and girls will play at Rickreall Tuesday night.

Last Friday night the boys lost one-sided game to Parrish Junior high of Salem, 39 to 9.

The St. Paul high school girls defeated the alumni 29 to 28 in them to win the conference title, although we rather think they are really stronger than Whitman's aggregation, just judging from comparative scores.

We expect Salem high to do things in basketball this year. Everything is against it, with no regulars left from last year's team and only two men who have ever played interscholastic ball. But we liked the spirit shown in Saturday night's game—and there will be speed, good coaching and cooperation between the players. Those things will go a long way, and if Salem high doesn't, perhaps, make much of a bid for the state championship, it will at least go through the season in creditable fashion.

REINHART GETS ENDORSEMENT

Former Salem Man is Urged For Job as Head Coach At University

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Members of the Oregon football team tonight lodged a formal request with Virgil D. Earl, director of athletics, asking special consideration of the candidacy of William J. Reinhart, assistant coach, as the future Oregon head coach.

The delegation also recommended that Prink Callison, freshman coach, and Gene Shields, varsity line coach, be promoted should Reinhart be made chief mentor.

The varsity football men, all of whom played under Reinhart when he was freshman coach, and later when he was named assistant varsity coach, expressed confidence in his ability. They also commended the work of both Callison and Shields.

Since the first announcement that Captain John J. McEwan would not be the Oregon coach next season, the football players have been much concerned about his successor. Inasmuch as almost all the players will be seniors next year, playing their final year of conference competition, they feared that an outside coach would shake up the system as Captain McEwan did four years ago, benching his seniors and starting to build for the future with his sophomores.

Earl assured the players that Reinhart's candidacy would be given full consideration. Reinhart himself would make no comment on the situation when informed of the action of the football players.

M'EWAN SUPPORTED BY ALUMNI GROUP

McMINNVILLE, Ore., Jan. 6.—(Special)—John J. McEwan, former head football coach at the University of Oregon, is commended for the stand which he took in the recent coaching squabble at the university in a letter sent him from local Oregon graduates and former students.

"While we feel that Oregon has suffered a great loss with your leaving, we also believe that you have scored a victory in refusing to engage in the petty politics with which university officials are attempting to run their football teams," the letter reads.

"We realize the difficulties with which your football success at Oregon has encountered. In addition to attracting players, we

SHIRES FACING BALL OUSTER

"Great One" Now in Serious Trouble With Moguls in White Sox Club

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Unless Charles Arthur "the great" Shires clears his name of charges that he engaged in one "fixed" professional boxing match and had attempted another, he may find himself barred forever from organized baseball.

The White Sox management, which has remained silent throughout the great one's invasion of the cauliflower ranks, today made it clear it would not talk about a 1930 contract with the punch slinging first baseman until he had gained a clean bill from the Michigan and Illinois State Athletic commissions which are investigating charges against him.

"Shires must clean up those charges before the White Sox will be ready to discuss a contract with him," said Secretary Harry Grabner of the south side club.

"Too, he has to settle up his suspension which resulted from his last fight with former Manager Russell Blackburne last season.
