

KLAMATH ASKS TAXES REFUND

Governor Norblad to Support Request by Southern Oregon County

Klamath county's attempt to obtain from the federal government a refund of approximately $4,640,277.14, in taxes which has been lost to the county during the past ten years because a large part of its lands are included in the Indian reservation, will have the support of Governor Norblad, he announced Monday.

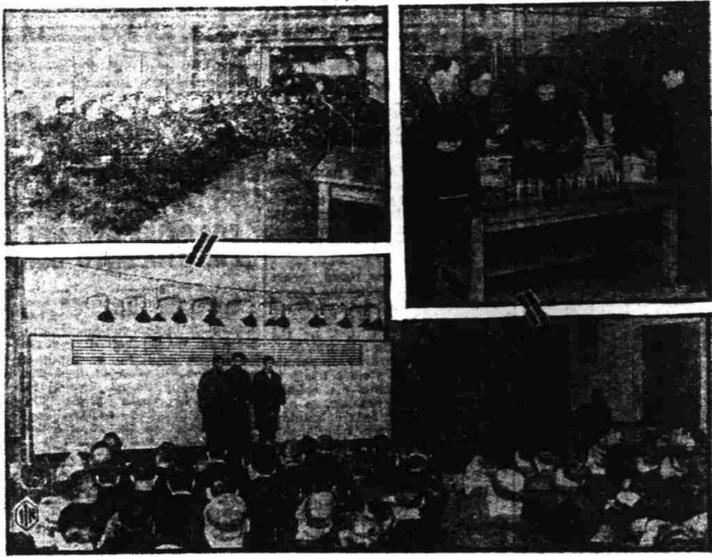

The announcement was made here following a conference between the governor and C. R. Williams, Klamath county commissioner. It also was agreed at the conference, according to Governor Norblad, that in case the refund is obtained, the state shall receive a part of the money it normally would have received in taxes from lands within the Indian reservation. Governor Norblad estimated the state's share of the proposed refund at $800,000.

Williams informed Governor Norblad that plans were now in the making to send Bruce Dennis, Klamath Falls publisher, to Washington, to urge the passage of a bill authorizing the refund covering losses to the county during the past 10 years.

It was pointed out by Commissioner Williams that during the period 1919 to 1928, normal taxes on the lands within the federal Indian reservation would have returned to Klamath county approximately $3,981,597.61. In addition to this loss to Klamath county, due to the fact that the reservation lands are exempt from taxation, Williams presented figures showing the amount of money that was expended by the county in public improvements within the Indian reservation.

These improvements included the construction of highways at a cost of $387,437, bridges $6000, operation of ferry $3000, damage to tribal lands $5000, fencing highways $6000, clearing and grubbing $17,000 and miscellaneous items $5000. There also was an item of $194,000 for the construction and operation of schools and $37,000 for boarding Indians who committed crimes in Klamath county while off the reservation.

Taxes lost to Klamath county, by virtue of federal exemption in Indian reservations, was estimated at $3,981,597.61.

Governor Norblad said that while the future was not discussed at the conference, he presumed the proposed congressional bill would also provide for additional refunds, based on the normal tax rate and the definite amount of public expenditures by Klamath county within the reservation. The agreement between the Klamath county officials and Governor Norblad, with relation to a partial refund of taxes to the state, will be made in writing.

Normal Demand For Clothes Is Reported Here

The Salvation Army is experiencing only a normal winter demand on its store of clothing and foodstuffs, reports Captain Earl Williams. On an average of 25 persons daily are fed at the soup kitchen in the Army headquarters on State street between Commercial and Front. Most of these persons are transients.

The army has laid in a large supply of canned foodstuffs and other foods with the funds left from the Christmas Cheer money, which this year totaled $1,569.82. This organization sent Christmas baskets to exactly 101 families.

RUSHLIGHT IS TAKEN BEYOND

Death Claims Former Mayor Of Portland Stricken On His Way Here

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 6. — (AP)—Allen G. Rushlight, former mayor of Portland, died today at a local hospital as the result of a heart attack followed by pneumonia. He suffered the attack at Salem, on his way to attend the funeral of Governor I. L. Patterson.

Allen Golden Rushlight, mayor of Portland from 1911 to 1913, and three times elected to the house of representatives in the state legislature from Multnomah county, was born in Golden, Colo., Feb. 24, 1874. When he was two years old his family moved to Oregon and this stay was his home ever since.

He was educated in Portland schools and then became an apprentice in a plumbing shop and, in time, a master plumber. In later years he was owner of one of the largest plumbing and heating businesses in the city.

As a republican, Rushlight early took an active interest in politics. Under the old council form of municipal government he served two terms in the city council, from 1905 to 1911.

In 1908 he was elected to the state legislature, but refused to qualify because it would require him to resign from the council.

He later served three terms in the house.

Rushlight is survived by his widow and three children, Juanita, Willard and Raymond.

He was a member of the Scottish rite Masons, the Mystic Shrine, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows, Woodmen of the World and chamber of commerce.

Salem Teacher Writes Article

Mrs. Dorothy Daugherty, first grade teacher at the Lincoln school, has an article in the January, 1930, issue of "The Grade Teacher," educational magazine published in Boston. The article, "Children of the Northland" tells of a silent reading project for primary grades and is based on a project which Mrs. Daugherty used last year in her classes at Lincoln school here.

Mrs. Daugherty is teaching her second year in the Salem schools.

LIONS CLUB WILL HELP BOY SCOUTS

Plans of the Salem Lions club to assist Salem's Boy Scout organization in its program of "owning its own home," will be outlined at the club's luncheon Friday by the major activities committee. If the committee's recommendation is adopted, the club will devote funds from the receipts of Moroni-Olson plays toward the purchase of a lot for the Boy Scouts.

Judge Walter H. Evans of Portland will speak at the Friday luncheon on the topic of Boy Scout work. Judge Evans, who is a circuit judge for Multnomah county, will be introduced by Justics George Rossman of the supreme court. Justice Harry H. Bell, who is actively interested in scout work, will also be a guest.

The next Moroni Olson play will be presented at the Fox Elstmore theatre January 31. The original title is "The Makropoulos Secret," but it will be billed here as "The Fountain of Youth."

LINDY ASKS NO STATUE

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6. — (AP)—Rather than be memorialized in stone as the hero of the New York to Paris flight, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, would prefer to be remembered in St. Louis as "the boy who flew the air mail."

Radio programs for Portland stations will be found on the classified advertising page of The Statesman.
