

BAIN EXPLAINS NEW RULING

Oregon Athletic Association Rule About Property Told To Students

WOODBURN, January 9.—Superintendent V. D. Bain announced a new amendment to the constitution of the Oregon Athletic Association to the student body of Woodburn high at the pep assembly held prior to the Salem game Wednesday afternoon.

The new amendment provides that in any instance when the students or patrons of a school, deface, or destroy in any way, the property or building of a rival school, that school will be barred from competition in athletics. Under the new ruling it does not mean that only students but any townspeople or anyone who in anyway supports the school, either by taxation or by support at the athletic encounters of the school, disobey this law of common courtesy and sportsmanship will cause the teams to be disbanded.

Heretofore, this matter has been taken up by the individual schools and not enough stress has been applied to the enforcement. It is maintained by the association that no matter who commits the offense, it reflects back upon the sportsmanship of the school and the students must suffer the consequences.

Although Woodburn high has two close rivals in Silverton and Newberg, not a great deal of the usual painting of buildings and goal posts has been done. Several times the sidewalks and building have been painted but in recent years the students have been educated to the matter of sportsmanship and as a result the competition between rival schools has become cleaner and more ideal.

A great deal of pep was inspired in the students at the assembly. Of late most of the student body has become so egotistical over the recent successful football season that they have rather depended on the basketball team to win without support. Although the team this year is a good one, the schedule is also harder and the squad needs the support of the students more than ever.

The usual song and yells were led by the cheer leaders and Lewis Radcliffe, Margaret Temple and Edith Shook gave pep speeches. Many of the students and faculty felt inspired to give extemporaneous talks since this is the first chance Woodburn has had for four years and the following made remarks, Ruth Mitchell, Arlo Thompson, Milton Grallap, P. E. Rohner, Gilbert Oddie, T. P. Otto, Adrian Schooler, Ray O. Wall, Fearl Emery, Ben Jones and V. D. Bain.
