

Salem Quint Crushes University High by 27-9 Count

Real Fistfights Dished Up for Local Fans at Salem Armory Tonight

LOCALS WEAK LOOPING HOOP

Inability to Hit Basket Results in Comparatively Low Score Total

Exhibiting plenty of defensive strength but failing to show its usual effectiveness in scoring, the Salem high school basketball team defeated University high of Eugene 27 to 9 on the Salem high floor Tuesday night.

The visitors were outplayed even more decisively than the score indicated, the red and black terrors keeping possession of the ball a great share of the time and working it to scoring position with ease but failing on comparatively simple shots.

Better Work Done With Free Throws
A cheering development from the Salem high rosters' standpoint was that the players seemed to have recovered from their inability to loop free throws. They scored seven points by this method, about twice what they scored in the two games against the Oregon State Rooks.

University high proved to have some accurate shots but their percentage style of play was too deliberate and the locals always had their defense set before the attack was made.

Oregon City Teams Played Friday Night
The Salem high "A" and "B" teams will go to Oregon City Friday night for a double header. Next Tuesday night the red and black will meet the University of Oregon freshmen on the local floor.

Y. M. C. A. Physical Director Expounds His Ideas Concerning Heads of Fighting Men

By BOB BOARDMAN

Why do some ring artists tear ferociously in at the clang of the gong and take "barrels of punishment" why do other boxer "back pedal" all over the canvas, "a la Tunney and Corbett," instead of "wading" in to show their courage? Is one yellow and the other just naturally brave? Many a victory is won by reckless "wading in," yes, but many a one, too, is lost and all an "almost champion" has to show in after life is an addled brain, cauliflower ears, and an album full of old news clippings. Wading into the "jaws of death," like the charge of the six hundreds makes thrilling poetry for the school children to recite on Decoration Day, but it was quite hard on the horsemen, and the "horses." Fight fans love the colorful killer type fighter, but often the mind of the mob; they think shallow, and see through grandstand eyes.

What the fight fan is discovering today about the fighting head, scientists have known to, to a certain degree, for years; that is, that much of a person's fight instinct is due to a person's physical make-up, his racial traits, and the shape of his head as an index to his fighting tactics.

Ancient Instincts Brought to Surface
Psychologists tell us the present day fight interest is only an outcropping of our ancestors' strongest primitive instinct. Their whole life was a constant fierce struggle for existence with animals, warlike tribes, and the natural elements. In spite of "wise-cracks," who say a fighter is only two jumps ahead of a monkey, scientists say fighting developed a much higher mentality in man and did much to improve the race; in fact, fighting was one of the principal occupations of man from the earliest cave man days up to the medieval knights when it was the sport of kings. It developed a skull known as the "fighting head." This is seen to a more or less degree in two of our champion fighters—John L. Sullivan and Jack Dempsey, the killer type.

Every student of ethnology, the scientific description of races and nations, knows the difference in the type of head. Sir Francis Galton, the great English anthropologist, says there is a distinct type of "fighting head."

Dempsey and Greb Held True Types
The Cro-Magnon, or first true primitive man, is a good specimen to compare with Jack Dempsey and Harry Greb in skull shape similarity. H. G. Wells, the famous historian, says the skulls found in France and Switzerland show a similarity to the best type of North American Indian warriors. He had a broad face, wide nose, large brain; was alert, and quite skilled in hand and limb. It was the Cro-Magnon, who exterminated the Neanderthal, or the missing link "monkey man" from the face of the earth. Scientists say he came from Northern Asia and the land now submerged by the Mediterranean Sea. Paolino, the Bounding Basque wood chopper fighter, who made such a hit in the United States, in his fight with George Godfrey, is a true descendant of the Cro-Magnon. His nose and chin are similar to those of the Spaniards and Frenchmen in their mountain fortress for hundreds of years, and were never conquered. Paolino's head is a typical "fighting head."

Of course, the first requirement of every fighter is that he must be a first class animal with plenty of lung power and resistance, fight instinct, and ability to hit as well as take blows. Anthropologists say the shape of a man's head does indicate his endurance strength and thinking ability. A broad head, wide from ear to ear, indicates greater natural vitality, longevity and stamina. He is, also, less liable to disease and nervous irritability. Dempsey, Greb and Sullivan are good examples.

Fighters, as everyone knows,

MURPHY WILL BATTLE KILEEN

Boys of Independence and Hubbard to Put on Main Event of Card

TONIGHT'S FIGHT CARD
Main event—Terry Kileen, 160, Independence, vs. Spud Murphy, 160, Hubbard; eight rounds.

Semi final—Jackie Woods, 118, Salem, vs. Jackie Kileen, 118, Independence.

Semi final—Red Hayes, 155, Stayton, vs. William Dodge, 155 of St. Paul.

Special—Pat Haley, 125, Independence, vs. Bud Statesman, 125, St. Paul.

Curtain raiser — To be announced from the ring.
Time—8:30 p. m. Place — Armory.

Those fight fans who like to see a fight rather than an exhibition of expert boxing, will be plentifully accommodated at the armory tonight from the curtain raiser right down through the main event.

Boxing Not These Lads' Specialty
Terry Kileen of Independence and Spud Murphy of Hubbard, who figure in the main event, are essentially fighters, although Kileen has learned a lot about boxing since his earlier appearances here. Neither of them has ever learned to stall along and put up an exhibition. Knockouts in main events are not too common, but there ought to be one tonight.

Jackie Kileen and Jackie Woods are a lively pair of little fellows, but they aren't the sort to stand off and size each other up; each has a habit of wading in. Woods wasn't, up to recently, quite in Kileen's class, but he has been improving rapidly, as is shown by his recent victory over St. Flock at Mill City.

Dodge Takes Place of Schumacher on Card
A change has been made in the other six round scrap, William Dodge being signed up in place of his fellow townsman at St. Paul, Curly Schumacher, as Red Hayes' opponent. It will be Red's first appearance here in many months. He has always been a popular fighter in Salem.

Another fight which has helped to develop the rivalry between northern Marion county and Polk county fans on this card is the one featuring Pat Haley, Independence southpaw, and Bud Statesman of St. Paul.

Matchmaker Harry Plant is withholding the names of his curtain raiser principals until the crowd gets inside the armory tonight.

This "all-valley" card is expected to draw big attendance from out of town if the weather is not too stormy.

DALLAS WILL PLAY MOLALLA TONIGHT

DALLAS, Jan. 14.—Dallas high will play Molalla high here Wednesday night, January 15, Dallas defeated Molalla December 28 at Molalla by a score of 16 to 14. That is the only game that the cowpunchers have lost this year.

Dallas does not have such a good record, having won four out of seven games. One of her defeats came from the Willamette Frosh and another from Washington high of Portland. Coach Wright's men have found the basket since Monmouth defeated them and have been scoring more points. The real test will come when they play Molalla. Molalla uses the percentage system and Dallas the five man offense and defense. This game should be hard fought and interesting.

There will be a preliminary between the junior girls and senior girls of Dallas high.

Dallas high won its third game in the county league Saturday night when it defeated Bethel 24 to 16. The game was one of the hardest fought of the season was a closer battle than the score indicated.

Bethel got the lead in the first quarter, but Dallas regained it and Coach Wright started running in substitutes. Le Flor, a freshman, proved to be a good player and sunk all of his shots. He was high point man of the game scoring nine points.

Orangemen Again Lose To Cougars

CORVALLIS, Ore., Jan. 14.—Washington State college defeated Oregon State 28 to 27 here tonight in a Pacific Coast conference basketball game. The victory gave the Cougars a clean slate in their two game series with the locals and sent them to the top of the northern division standings.

Washington won last night's contest 40 to 27.

The Orangemen staged a furious last half rally in tonight's game, but fell one point short of the winning score. The count stood 19 to 10 for the Cougars at half time.

Oregon State was seriously handicapped by the elimination of Grayson because of fouls in the middle of the second half. McLaughry, Cougar flash, who bench ended soon after, however.

Washington State broke even last week in a two game series

COLUMBUS LAD TAKES TOURNEY

Denny Shute Wins $10,000 Los Angeles Open With Score of 296

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
RIVIERA COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Over the same flooded fairways and rain-soaked greens that proved a golfer's graveyard for America's greatest, there tramped today a little known disciple of the royal and ancient game to win the championship of the $10,000 Los Angeles 72 hole open.

Young Denny Shute from Columbus, Ohio whose brief two-year career as a professional hardly rated him the honor of a gallery, hunched his shoulders into the wind and braved the torrential rains to post the respectable and winning score of 296. It exceeded by four strokes the efforts of such notables as Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., star, and Bobby Cruickshank of New York, winner of the Los Angeles open in 1927. They tied for second place with 300.

Shute retained lead throughout day.

Smith and Cruickshank started today's first round three strokes behind Shute but failed to make up the lead. Cruickshank saw his hopes shattered on the morning links. Smith's chances faded away on the incoming stretch when on three holes he went over par figures.

Not brilliant golf but rather a steady game that clung close to Riviera's par 71 figures brought Shute laurels in the fifth open championship here, one of the biggest money events of the winter season.

For four rounds, the mid-westerner posted scores of 73, 74, 75 and 74. And for his efforts, Shute pocketed tonight $3,500, the winner's share.

Few Previous Honors Won by Denny
Thus unheralded and unnoticed, the 25-year-old Ohioan came to the Pacific coast for the first time in a golfing role to club his way to top honors over a field that numbered all the stars of the game. His only excuse for matching strokes with the "big time" players was that he tied for fifth place in the 1928 national open; took third place in the same event a year later and also held the professional and open titles of his native state.

Tonight he was thrilled as any rank outsider should be in winning a major event. "I was a little shaky going into the last nine today," he said, "but when I sank that 22-footer for a birdie 2 on the 14th, I regained my confidence. Now I'm going after the Agua Caliente, Mexico, championship next week." (The Agua Caliente event, to be played for the first time, is the richest tournament in the world with $25,000 total prize money listed.)

Shute's victory was as remarkable as it was decisive. To top the field he conquered most adverse weather conditions in three of four days and maintained his same unflinching pace during the one round that was not played in rain.

His 73 on the opening day put him in a tie for third place along with Horton Smith and Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente pro. Adding a 74 in the second round he went into two-stroke lead over Smith.

From that time on he was never headed. A 75 for the third round brought him a total 222, three strokes better than Smith and Cruickshank.

The trying conditions that failed to bother Shute spelled the doom of such luminaries as Walter Hagen of Detroit, one of the world's most prominent golfers, and Bill Mehlhorn of New York, Hagen picked up in the second round, the first time in his competitive career that he had failed to finish. Mehlhorn dropped out in today's final round after a poor start.

MacDonald Smith of Long Island, N. Y., winner of the title for the last two years and one of the pre-tournament favorites, was unable to meet the climatic test and tied with Chet Beer, Bakersfield, for eighth place. His final score was 306.

At Espinosa of Chicago, posted a 303 for fourth money while Tommy Armour of Detroit, former national open titleholder, had a 204, for fifth position. Leo Diegel, winner of the professional golfer's association championship for the last two years, tied with Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, at 305.

Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Fla., also a former national open champion, chalked up a 310 while Harry Cooper of Buffalo, N. Y., first Los Angeles open winner, was forced to be content with 312.

Freshmen Defeat Franklin 36-26

The Willamette university freshman basketball team defeated the Franklin high, Portland, tilters 36 to 26 at Portland Tuesday afternoon.

It was a similar game to the one the freshmen won from the Chemawa Indians last Saturday, in that the score was close for three periods and the freshmen walked away from their opponents in the final quarter.

CURT COMMENTS

we read by the afternoon paper that Kamm of Chicago is the best fiddler in the American league. These little side lights on the athletes' hobbies do help to liven up the sport page.

Continuing our comparison of league records with the standing of American league clubs, we find this lineup with respect to fielding:

Fielding	Games Won
Philadelphia	Palladium
St. Louis	New York
New York	Cleveland
Chicago	St. Louis
Washington	Washington
Cleveland	Detroit
Boston	Chicago
Detroit	Boston

If you recall yesterday's remarks on hitting, you'll have it in mind that Detroit was first in fielding. Now it turns up last in hitting. We'll have to wait for the pitching record to determine why the big automobile town was in sixth place.

But the Athletics were second in hitting and first in fielding. And as we recall the world series, they had pretty fair pitching, but we mustn't look at that sheet in the official records yet.

We don't personally know anything about Mr. Kamm's fiddling, but he fielded .978 at third base, beating the second baseman and the shortstop, so he's entitled without question to the fielding gonfalon—and if the proof reader lets any boner slip through, his name is mud.

Spud Murphy is our choice to win from Terry Kileen tonight.

It wouldn't do for Salem high's basketball team to get too good so early in the season. It was off form in the scoring department Tuesday night—just enough to keep the boys working hard. At that, comparative scores indicated that the red and black will be a pretty fair match for Eugene high, at least.

Joe Croson, Duke university's 6 foot 3 inch basketball center, scored 68 points in the Blue Devils' first two games this season.

Alpha Psi Delta Fraternity Wins Hoop Game

The Alpha Psi Delta quintet had little difficulty taking the underclassmen to a 34 to 8 trouncing in the second DuNot league game in the Willamette gym yesterday noon.

Winslow was the star for the fraternity men, scoring 16 points, while Beall was the threat for the losers.
