again and continued until about 7 p. m., leaving a two inch covering of white in places that had been swept bare earlier in the day.

More Snow Today Promised by Bureau

More snow was predicted for today in the latest forecast sent out by the weather bureau at Portland, although an earlier forecast had indicated that the snow might turn to rain.

Following the cessation of the snowfall Wednesday night the temperature dropped, but was not expected to reach anywhere near Tuesday's storm. The minimum Wednesday morning was 20 degrees and the maximum that afternoon 26 degrees.

Skating was ruined by the heavy fall of snow, which was the deepest since December, 1919, but coasting was a popular sport Wednesday and will continue to be as long as the snow remains in its present condition.

In order to prevent accidents so far as possible, Chief Minto of the police department designated Lincoln street hill as a traffic officer in charge to direct traffic at the commercial street intersection.

Roads Near City Barely Passable

Roads in all directions from Salem were in bad condition but for the most part passable Wednesday. Persons driving in from Portland on the Pacific highway reported numerous cars buried in snow along the route. They said trucks and motor stages were forcing the smaller cars off the highway.

SILVERTON, Jan. 15.—(Special)—Twenty inches of snow was reported at Silver Falls Tuesday company camps above Silverton Wednesday morning. However, the camps were not yet closed down. It is said that the men will continue to work in the woods just as long as at all possible.

Chains were necessary adjuncts to all automobiles on the hills near Silverton. Coasting proved a popular pastime.

GERVAIS, Jan. 15.—(Special)—Ten inches of snow was the record Wednesday morning of the downfall of Tuesday evening and night, and with snow still falling Wednesday evening it is believed that there will be at least 12 inches Thursday morning.

Wednesday afternoon two sleighs made their appearance on the streets, each drawn by two horses. One is owned by G. H. Bingham and every part of it was made by his father while the runners and iron work was done by George Mikkel, father of A. A. Mikkel, some 43 years ago. The other sleigh is also an old timer and is owned by B. J. J. Miller.

JEFFERSON, Jan. 15.—(Special)—Snow began falling Tuesday evening, and fell to a depth of about five inches, which is a treat to the farmers, and will protect the fall grain which has not been injured during the cold weather of the previous week.

Should the cold weather continue it will cause the stock to suffer on account of shortage of feed.

The thermometer dropped to 10 above, which is cold weather for Oregon, causing a good many water pipes to burst. The children are having great sport skating and coasting.

Entire Pacific Slope Is Swept by Rain and Snow And More Storm Coming

City Council May Meet Expense of Clearing Debris Away

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Rain or snow fell today along the entire Pacific slope of the United States, and the weather bureau declared more stormy weather was on the way.

No further fatalities from the cold weather were reported, although there still were a number of snowbound parties awaiting rescue, and improvement of highway conditions in one section was matched by further snow in some other part.

The heaviest snowfall of the past 24 hours, aside from the strictly mountain districts, was in southwestern Washington and northern Oregon. The Columbia river, the lower part of which is Portland's highway to the ocean, was the scene of an ice jam which stopped the ferry service between Longview, Wash., and Rainier, Ore.

The blanket of fresh snow in that area ranged from ten inches at Vancouver, Wash., on the Columbia to six and a half inches at Olympia, on Puget Sound. A heavy wind accompanied the precipitation, and was still blowing today. Across the river in Oregon the snowfall was lighter, but sufficient to choke even the main highways, and block traffic during early morning hours in the city of Portland.

Rain fell during the night and today in San Francisco and Los Angeles areas, bring the total precipitation for Southern California to five inches or more, which is above the seasonal average. Snow still fell in the mountains, and the ridge route and Cajon pass highways were kept open only by continued operation of snow plows.

Government experts also predicted rising temperatures for the western Washington-western Oregon area, with the snow turning to rain and a general lessening of the frigid situation throughout Oregon. Last night snowfall was said to have resulted from an east wind blowing directly off the Cascade mountains. The snowfall reached 18 inches at Toledo, on the Oregon coast, and two feet at Newport, which six months from now will be a well patronized summer resort.

Automobiles which left Corvallis, Ore., last night reached Portland today after laboriously battling great snowdrifts all night through the coast range.

Foggy weather was expected over the northwest tonight and tomorrow.

No more snow fell in Seattle or points north in the past 24 hours, except on the Olympic peninsula. Eastern Washington had a little more snow and strong winds. Temperatures were higher in practically all parts of the state.

The warmer weather in northern California was expected to result in higher levels for rivers in the Sacramento valley, but since they are below normal now they probably will not rise to flood levels.

Local Bank Officer Recommends Own Department As Safest Way

"In my opinion, the financial tragedy of today is the payment of insurance in lump sum to wives upon the death of their husbands," said Joseph H. Albert, trust officer of Ladd and Bush bank, speaking before a luncheon meeting of the Zonta club at the Marion hotel Wednesday noon.

Mr. Albert continued that statistics show that the whole amount of such sums are dissipated within seven years after the insurance is paid. The remedy for this, according to Mr. Albert, is insurance trusts which will take this insurance money and invest and pay it according to instruction of the insured for the benefit of the benefit of the beneficiary.

The value of trusts in the handling of estates was the chief topic under discussion by Mr. Albert, and especially in regard to handling money for women left alone and without knowledge of business affairs. Mr. Albert pointed out that women spend between 80 and 85 per cent of the money in the United States and for that reason there should be particular caution in how it is spent.

Trust companies are able to give advice and manage the investment and execution of an estate more ably than any other medium of assistance in such matters for three reasons, he said. First, because of their continuity in regard to time; a human trustee may die or become incapable of continuing the management of a trust but a trust company goes on without change. Second, it is financially accountable, a condition which individuals may not be; and third, the financial experience of trust companies make them better able to invest and manage estates than any other possible trustee.

A partial list of the impersonations made by Lenore Ulric looks like an inventory of "characterizations to be seen on the screen." Here are a few—

In "Klimesy" she was a gypsy; in "The Heart of Paula," a Spanish senorita; in "The Intrigue," a Russian girl; and in "The Road to Love," she was an Arab! Add to these a more recent list of types: in "The Bird of Paradise" she was a Hawaiian; in "The Heart of Wotona," an Indian maid; in "Tiger Rose," she was striking in her characterization of a French-Canadian damsel; in "The Son Daughter," she was Chinese; in "Kiki" she did a French gamine; in "The Harlem" she had a dual role as both an American wife and a Turkish princess; in "Lulu Belle" she was a mulatto; and in her most recent stage success, "Mima," she portrayed eight different women, a composite study of the entire feminine gender! And in her last picture "Frozen Justice" now at the Capitol she is an Esquimo princess.

Miss Ulric was to have done a group of pictures with Fox but for some reason she did two and now she is back in New York. What the matter is has not been made known.

Fay Wray's husband, John Monk Saunders, has written the story of "The Flight Commander" the next vehicle for Richard Barthelmess—a story without a feminine character in it. Barthelmess is doing this to prove that the present movie formula of love is not necessary to put a play over.

Fay Wray is now appearing at the Fox Elsinore in "The Four Feathers."

The Grand will present "Side Street" for its first run at that theatre today and at the same time the Frazier players will present another comedy.

Jack Mulhall, who will be seen in "Dark Streets," at the Hollywood beginning Friday, does a very excellent double in this play. He takes the part of two brothers. Even when you see him standing "talking to himself" as it were it is hard to believe that the two characters before you are the same man. In this play Mulhall wins a right to be called "versatile."

BRITISH STAND IS ANNOUNCED

mean that no more public money would be spent on capital ships for another five or six years.

When replacement is made, Great Britain will favor reduction in tonnage and in guns. This reduction is understood to be of 10,000 tons in size and of 4 inches in calibre of guns from the Washington agreement figures; that is, to 25,000 ton ships and to 12 inch guns.

If the conference fails to abolish submarines completely, Great Britain hopes that they will be strictly limited in size and number.

The prime minister emphasized the fact that Britain does not intend to set an example by disarmament irrespective of the action of other nations, because this would be unsafe and unwise.

Great Britain intends to move only by international agreement, and a five-power agreement at London, though effective immediately, will be a preparatory contribution to the general world disarmament plans of the League of Nations.

FIRST DECADE NOW FINISHED

Further Steps to Strengthen Enforcement Planned On Anniversary

The states had ratified the resolution creating the amendment but not the article itself.

Both Senators Sheppard, democrat, Texas, author of the amendment, and Borah, republican, a dry, of Idaho, expressed the opinion that the new efforts would come to naught and cited the supreme court's decision upholding the article.

Wets to Continue Destructive Tactics

At the same time the wet bloc in the house prepared an aggressive campaign to build up public sentiment against the dry laws.

The executive committee of this group of about 106, selected Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, to continue as chairman. His nomination will be considered by the group Monday.

Linthicum was renominated after Representative Beck, republican, Pennsylvania, announced he would not accept the leadership. The Pennsylvania said, however, he would support the movement because "prohibition is a cancer that is slowly eating out the moral fiber of the American people." A former solicitor general and recognized as a constitutional lawyer, he predicted that the "legislative expedients" submitted by President Hoover would not result in the enforcement of the law.

An attack on the report of the Hoover law enforcement commission launched on the floor by Representative Black, democrat, New York, a wet, relative to empowering federal commissioners to handle misdemeanor cases was met by a contradicting statement from Chairman Wickersham of the commission.

Norris Questions Commission Report

Senator Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee, previously had questioned that portion of the commission's report, as had Representative LaGuardia, republican New York. Norris said he wanted to study it further and was interested in the views expressed by Mr. Wickersham.

The commission chairman, said the recommendation to facilitate dealing with minor prohibition violations involved no departure from well settled constitutional principles and constituted no violation of any constitutional right. Black contended the recommendation would not only result in

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

$1,113.75 DAMAGES DEMANDED IN COURT

Damages to the extent of $1,113.75 are being asked in a complaint of two separate causes filed by Roy Walker in circuit court against E. F. Collins.

Walker bases his complaint on an automobile accident which occurred about two weeks ago, January 4, at the corner of Court and Liberty streets.

It is alleged by Walker that while driving south on Liberty street the car operated by Collins and coming from the north on Court street, took the right-of-way and crashed into the side of his machine.

In the first cause of action, Walker asks $113.75 special damages which he claims are due him for damages done to his automobile. In the second case, Walker asks for $1,000, of which $500 is for loss of time and pain suffered by injuries which he received, and $500 for injuries which were of permanent nature.

COLONEL DOW GIVES TALK TO ROTARIANS

Thousands of pictures have to be drawn and a small army of men employed in producing the "Micky Mouse" movie cartoons with sound accompaniment which appear each week at the Fox Elsinore theatre.

In making the sound accompaniment for the cartoon pictures, the sound is first recorded on a record and then transferred to the film, reversing the usual order, Col. Dow explained. He gave a general description of the manner in which sound pictures are made, and discussed the problem of theatre acoustics in connection with their reproduction.

more resignations and elections by the council before the election date, four aldermen are slated to hold over for two years more; Henry Vandevort in the first ward, Hal D. Patton in the second, W. H. Dancy in the third and Chris Kowitz in the sixth.

Ten aldermen will have to be elected to fill the places of the following: I. M. Doughton, first ward; W. W. Rosebraugh, second ward; Paul V. Johnson, third ward; B. B. Herrick and S. E. Purvine, fourth ward; D. B. O'Hara and L. L. Wilkinson, fifth ward; Watson Townsend, sixth ward; E. A. Rhoten and O. A. Olson, seventh ward.

Council Picks Five Of Owa Members

This comes about because Aldermen Doughton, Herrick, Wilkinson, Rhoten and Olson were elected by the council to fill vacancies caused by death or resignation, and these elections hold good only until their successors are elected by the people.

In addition, the offices of city recorder and city treasurer will come up to be voted on at the elections this year.

Interest in the city campaign is heightened by the division of the council this year into two parties, the independents and the Capital Journal group. The latter has only three members on the council at present, and the public will be interested in what steps the afternoon newspaper takes in an effort to regain its erstwhile majority. Of the four holdovers, only Alderman Dancy is affiliated with this party.

OS Holds Record For Many Defeats

The Capital Journal candidates, with one exception, were defeated in the 1928 elections. This exception was David O'Hara, who was running for a two year term. This resulted in a majority of one member for the independents, who were not at that

At the afternoon session, Dr. Baker conducted a forum on mission work. The main address of the afternoon session was given by Miss Elsie Kappen, field representative of the board of missionary cooperation of the Northern Baptist convention. She told in interesting manner of the service given to missions by groups of the church and pointed out that the great world mission program's responsibility rests with each local church, no less than is the authority vested in each local congregation.
