Scotch to Honor Robert Burns' Birthday

As has been the costume of the Scotch folk of Salem for the past many years Robert Burns' birthday will be honored with a banquet and special program at the Elk's temple Saturday, January 25. The banquet, for which covers will be laid for 125 only as that is the seating capacity of the dining room, will begin at 6:30 o'clock. Following the banquet hour the guests will go to the social hall of the temple and there a program of music and speeches and fun will be enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

William McGilchrist, sr., is president of the club and with him are working several other Scotch folk of Salem to make this banquet one of the outstanding of the many already enjoyed.

High points of the program will be two Scotch feature dancers who will come as special guests from Carlton, Oregon; three minute speeches from various members of the club; a main speech of 15 minutes from Fred C. Taylor, pastor of the First Methodist church; chorus singing under the direction of William McGilchrist, Sr.; and the Scotch kiltie band will be out in the full regalia of their new uniforms just arrived from Scotland.

It is expected that there will be a number of out-of-town folk, especially a number from Carlton, for this celebration.

William McGilchrist Sr., or John Marr will advise where tickets may be purchased.

The executive board of the Salem Business and Professional Women's club will meet on Saturday evening January 25 at the home of Mrs. Susan Varty at her home, 650 D street.

The regular monthly dinner meeting of the club will be held at the Marion hotel, Tuesday evening, January 28.

Recent communications from Miss Cecelia Beyler, state president of the club announce that the state dinner which was to have been held January 18 and was postponed because of inclement weather will be held on Saturday evening, February 8 instead of February 1 as was previously announced.

Because of the weather it has been held necessary to postpone all the "homecoming" festivities planned for this week. Among the largest things planned with the tea planned by the women of the church for Wednesday afternoon.

ROME ROARED ITSELF HOARSE

Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and his fiancée, Princess Marie Jose, as they appeared upon a balcony of the Quirinal Palace to greet a throng that packed every corner of the square below and overflowed into the contiguous streets. It was the first formal appearance of the pretty Belgian princess before the people whose queen she will one day become, and the enthusiasm of the assembled Romans mounted to a fever pitch. The young couple are shown smilingly acknowledging the cheers of the crowd.

The Beauty By HELEN FOLLETT BOX

It is with envy that almost every woman reads about the beautiful heroine who drops her eyes some place or other so that her long, black curling eyelashes make hirute fringes on her rosebud cheeks. There are two encouragers for growing winkers. One is white vaseline, the other is witch hazel. Apply the oil at night, and the liquid in the morning. At the end of the eyelashes, tapers to a needle point, it should never be clipped; it will remain stubby until the bitter end. Rubbing the eyes is bad. Rosika. Winkers are poor, frail little things; they vanish at a touch.

No wonder the old Italian masters achieved lasting fame. They had the most beautiful women in all the world for their models. In the most squalid streets of Naples there are lovely creatures who would knock the eye out of every beauty contestant. Black hair with a natural indulation; great deep magnificent brown eyes; skin olive and smooth. And the Italian women have figures! They're hippy, but they're also chesty. Descendants of Roman matrons! What a heritage!

In the poorer quarters of towns and cities in Italy, hairdressers do their work in the streets. The cash customer sits on a low stool, with the water bowl in her lap, while the hair-washer applies the soap suds. The golden Italian sunlight dries the hair in a few minutes.

Finermails can be wrecked and ruined by filing too close and too far down the sides. The same is true of toenails; the nail gradually setting away from its side moorings. On delicate, thin nails a metal file should never be used; a beveling file of sandpaper should be substituted.

Cheap curling irons are a poor investment. A good iron is made of high-grade steel so that it holds the heat. In curling the ends of the hair, turn the iron so that the ends are held under the round part, not the sheath. Otherwise the ringlet will not be perfect; the end will wristle.

Mrs. Richard W. Newman, nee Jean Shipp, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Shipp several days of the past week. While here Mrs. Newman was entertained at luncheon at the Gray Belle with Miss Betty Taft as hostess, and Miss Alice Putman entertained with dinner in compliment to Mrs. Newman.

TANLAC WINS!

Two More Victories Over Stubborn Stomach Trouble—Joyous News For Other Sufferers

SO HAPPY MUST TELL WHAT TANLAC DID FOR HER

FINALLY FINDS RIGHT THING IN TANLAC First Bottle Proof Enough.

FROM old and young they come, letters overflowing with words of praise and grateful telling of wonderful, almost unbelievable relief they received from this matchless medicine. Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. Take for instance, Mrs. Mary Bond who writes: "The moment food entered my stomach I would have such terrible pains that I could hardly move. Although I had doctored and taken all kinds of medicines I had never been able to find any relief. I had just boarded recommended Tanlac. I have now taken five bottles and am delighted with the way it has helped me. You can imagine how good I feel when I eat a nice big steak and don't have a bit of trouble after having lived so long with stomach trouble for almost a year."

THOSE who have found only disappointment and failure in their search for health will do well to profit by the experience of this well-known man, Mr. Patrick O. Keeffe. "For a number of years," says Mr. Keeffe, "I suffered from stomach troubles. I could hardly eat anything without suffering gas and terrible bloating and I was always constipated. I heard about the benefits others derived from Tanlac, I admit I was skeptical for I had tried so many different medicines without results. Finally I was persuaded to try Tanlac and I will say the first bottle was proof enough for me. I have now taken several bottles and a wonderful change has come over me. My bowels are regular, digestive organs have been toned up, and I can eat three meals without gas, bloating or any misery." Tanlac is not only a wonderful stomach medicine but a great laxative.

Oh These Women!

By LEO LA ALLARD

A husband writes me that long skirts are making his wife over, into a charming, feminine, very modest person who thoroughly delights him. He signs himself "Just a husband."

I fancy a good many men feel as he does, while others rant about the nuisance of them, and they wish the short skirt would stay, along with the bobbed hair. "Do you know," sezze, "women are already acting different toward us men because of their long dresses? At least my wife is. When she wore the brief skirts she romped wherever she went, quite careless of the pictures she made."

"But now! She acts more feminine. She is a woman again, instead of the hoyden who, in half-skirt era, used to have the idea that we were all boys together. "My wife says she will continue short skirts for golf and driving. She is a tall, leggy girl, who hasn't dared sit in a low chair for years. Now she has come into her own. In her new party dress with just a suggestion of a figure, tight waist and hips, and her very pretty legs peeping through the transparent folds of her skirt, she is twice as attractive as the old pine board on stilts. She looks like a woman now. She knows it and so do I."

"Best wishes for your column, Just a Husband."

The man lives in Grand Rapids, Michigan. He is young and he's up-to-the-minute. Do you think he is right about the long skirts? Or haven't you noticed?
