Now for the newspapers. You will recall that we made a plea for better feeling and sportsmanship between athletic teams the other day, and cited the kicking fracas between a Woodburn player and a Salem player in a recent basketball game. This is what Dr. Gerald B. Smith writes to the Woodburn Independent after quoting our paragraphs on the

"A Salem high school basket-charges into a Woodburn player.

The Woodburn player kicked for personal rights, and both players were ruled off the floor. Since the heat of the fight is over a disinterested party told us there were absolutely no hard feelings between the players of either team, yet Salem fans will wonder why Woodburn will refuse to schedule games with Salem. It seems to this writer a shame to allow such articles to go to print. Talk about propaganda; talk about gossips; we fail to see any chips, and out of justice to both schools we sincerely hope the next article has a constructive though rather than trying to make cirt out of a normal foul of a basketball game. We will have whoopee, but it sure will not be for the good of either student body or school."

We'll save the other "kind" remarks about us for another issue.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Jan. 24. -AP)-The University of Oregon Frosh took first honors in the "big little game" series by defeating the Oregon State Rooks 31 to 21 in a loosely played basketball game here tonight.

The Rooks led off and the score was close throughout the first half, which ended 12 to 11 in favor of the Frosh. James found the basket frequently for the Webfeet in the second half and was high point man with 11.

With a 12 point lead and five minutes to go the Frosh stalled, but the Rooks managed to get the ball for two late baskets. A second game will be played at
