Republican Regulars Carry Day Over Democrats In U. S. Senate

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—With wide swaths in the ranks of democrats and republican independents, the senate beat back three democratic attempts today to lower existing tariffs on raw products used for rayon clothing and voted for the slightly higher production proposed by the republican regulars.

The debate, lasting all day, centered around an attempt by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, to eliminate a provision calling for a minimum rate of 46 cents a pound on single and grouped rayon raincoats and yarns, the basic products of the growing rayon industry.

Price Fixing Trust Charged by Wheeler

After a lengthy speech in which he charged that the majority of the domestic rayon manufacturers were dominated by an international "price fixing trust" with headquarters in London, Wheeler lost in his efforts to lower the rate, 52 to 23. Fourteen democrats, chiefly from rayon centers in the east and south, and 38 republicans, were against him, while 11 other democrats, 10 republicans, and the one farmer-labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota, supported him.

Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, who contended the rate of 35 per cent ad valorem proposed by the Montana senator, inadequately endeavored to reduce the minimum specific rate from 45 to 40 cents a pound. He lost, 27 to 34.

Fletcher's Proposal Rejected by Seniors

Then Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, proposed eliminating the minimum proviso altogether. This was rejected, 48 to 28.

The rates proposed by the finance committee republicans, approximately the same as those in the house bill, were thereupon approved without a record vote.

They would provide a duty of 45 per cent on single or grouped rayon filaments and single yarns weighing 150 deniers or more per lengths of 450 meters; 50 per cent on those weighing less than that, and an additional five per cent on piled yarns. All of these, however, would not go below 45 cents a pound.

An additional cumulative duty of 50 cents a pound would be levied on any yarns having more than 20 "turns twist" per inch. Present rates are specific 45 and 50 cents a pound, but there is an ad valorem minimum of 46 per cent.

British Interests In Control, Charge

Senator Wheeler estimated that the 45 cents a pound minimum would be equivalent to an ad valorem protection of from 80 to 112 per cent.

He charged that the American viscose company, controlled by British interests and America's largest rayon producer, and the DuPont rayon interests, with sending "lobbyists" to Washington to work for higher tariffs. He added that the domestic manufacturer had failed to produce production cost figures to enable fixing of property tariff and said the viscose company had made $31,000,000 net profits in 1928; the DuPont mills, $6,924,591, and the industrial rayon corporation, $1,568,027.

WADSWORTH LEADS DRY WAR

A political bomb was exploded in the Republican ranks at Albany, N. Y., when it was announced that former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth is leading a party which plans war on dry element in the State.

States are already using the system, because it reduces clerical work.

Most of the disadvantages will be temporary while the world is adjusting itself to the new method of computing time, he said, though there is the permanent objection that the year does not divide into halves or quarters by months.

Persons not born in January will have to learn what their birthdays are under the new system, but the calendar the first year will have a parallel version of the old calendar so that this may be done easily.

Recital Is Successful Last Night

By OLIVE M. DOAK

Subdued in tone, artistic in rendition, varied and well balanced in selection was the organ recital presented by Lynwood Farnam at the First Presbyterian church Monday night. The church was agreeably filled with quite subdued, masterly power, and left it a thing repressed rather than assertive.

Schumann and J. S. Bach represented the old school. Mr. Farnam interpreted them with a sensitive, scholarly artistry which quite subdued their majestic power, and left it a thing repressed rather than assertive.

The remainder of the generous program was represented by contemporary moderns—Bruce Simmonds, Harvey Grace, Eric Delamater, Ch. M. Wilder, Henri Mulet and two others of a date in between the older generation and the younger—Sigfrid Karg-Elert and Georges Jacob.

Selections from the latter group of composers were without exception interpreted by Mr. Farnam in a decidedly catholic manner. Perfect technique, masterly grace in the movements of his hands, combined with an almost visionary interpretation brought to the reviewer a strong impression of the subdued beauty of a monastery.

Following the recital Prof. and Mrs. T. S. Roberts entertained with a delightful informal reception at their home on North Summer street.

UNEMPLOYED MEN ATTEMPT PARADE

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—A number of paraders suffered minor injuries and one policeman, Constable Reilly, suffered a cut face when mounted and foot police broke up an attempted march of unemployed here late today.

Starting their march after police had forbidden a parade, the unemployed were charged by a half dozen mounted officers, who used their sticks freely. The foot police followed and in about four minutes the parade formation had been broken up.

One woman, said to the Polly Karinsky, afterward arrested, flayed the mount of Constable Albert Doe with a stick. The horse reared with fright and the constable was forced to jump to safety.

The paraders then threw stones, sticks and cans at the policemen orders were issued by Chief of Police W. J. Bingham for the arrest of all leaders of the disturbance.

The parade was to have been staged as a protest against the payment of unemployment relief wages of two dollars per day to married men and one dollar to single men.

FARMERS ENCOURAGED

MEN SEEKING TWO CORPSES

Searchers Dig in Snow for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland

90 miles southeast of the Nanuk. Pilot Joe Crosson and Harold Gilliam, who discovered the plane, returned there the next day from North Cape and left four men to dig for the bodies of Eielson and Borland. Relief Director Lomen, who returned to Nome from here after the departure of Reid and Young, said Crosson reached the entire front of the Hamilton plane flown by Eielson torn out with the engine by the impact of the crash.

Searchers will probably find the bodies buried deep in the snow somewhere in the vicinity, Lomen said. The plane struck a low foothill, Eielson was believed blinded by either fog or a blizzard and the altimeter may have misgued him as Crosson reported it registered 100 feet when he found it. The scene of the wreck is almost at sea level.

Word was awaited here tonight from the Nanuk as to whether the bodies had been dug out or not. Thus far the ship's radio has been silent. Crosson was planning to return to the scene of the wreck from the Nanuk today to find out whether the searchers had yet uncovered the bodies.

LUMBER MARKET TO BE IMPROVED SOON

One ray of welcome sunshine filters into the gloomy prospect faced by lumbermen and sawmill operators in the northwest, whose plants are shut down due to ice in mill ponds and deep snow in the woods; the delay will mean an improved market for lumber when the mills do get in operation again, officials of the Spaulding Logging company here believe.

At present the local lumber company is undergoing a special hardship in that it is losing money on the handling of hog fuel. The price of hog fuel was raised Monday for $4.50 to $5. The company is still supplying this fuel in order to keep faith with the customers who use it the year around, but wood is being shipped by rail from Lebanon quite a distance from the mill. The original price of $3.50 a cord with handling charges added, amounts up to more than the price charged, while it has been found that a cord of wood does not quite make a unit of hog fuel.

lunch had proceeded more slowly than he desired.

For the Americans and the Japanese it was largely a day of watchful waiting while the European delegates maneuvered in a maze of technicalities relating to Franco-Italian problems, including naval parity.

It remained for the British government to add a realistic disarmament touch, entirely apart from the conference itself, to the events of the day by announcing the cancellation of construction orders for two 10,000-ton cruisers, the Northumberland and the Surrey.
