

top-dog at his game and he won't days." let that go by. You had better start packing your things."

Shirley went to obey, but before she had finished packing she heard Abramovel's voice. "We'll agree to that, Mr. Bren-naway," she heard Abramovel say. "but you must leave your wife here until you come back."

"Nothing doing!" snapped Alan. "Be reasonable, Mr. Brennaway." whined Abramovel. "They don't know you the same as I do. They think you'll bring back the troops-or maybe attack us with the Serbians. We shan't do your wife any harm-I'll see to that." Shirley swept aside the curtain of sacking.

"That's perfectly fair, Mr.Ab-ramovel," she said, trying to keep her voice steady. "I agree. I result that "no one" knew that he will stay here with you until my husband comes back."

"Shirley, you don't know what you're talking about-" "Yes, I do. They want a hostage," she interrupted. "It's per-fectly natural. I shall feel quite respondent with Shirley should safe under Mr. Abramovel's protection." She turned to Abram-minute, will you?-it will be quite fear gradually passed. By the all right." Abramovel nodded and left the shack.

"If you hedge about this, Alan, they'll think you really mean to bring the troops back to capture suit of his frenzied dealing in them. You'll simply have to consent."

down at her. "Suppose I'm delayed-suppose

I fall ill-suppose I'm killed before I can get back here?" he demanded.

"We talked about all this in Vermont," she said quickly. "It's coming true at last, Alan. Didn't that the credit of the firm was you think it would come true? higher than it had ever been be-Were you bluffing me?"

"No, but you are bluffing me" he rasped back. "In your own subtle way you're bluffing me even terest on that missing fifty thouat this moment. You think that sand, it could remain missing inbecause that fellow speaks English and he's leader of the gang, you're absolutely safe with him. Let me tell you that your charm will not work on him. . He's as struck at once. By the spring he much a Macedenian as the rest of even dismissed Brennaway from the gang. It's clean beyond your his thoughts. Then had come a imagination that they should letter in Brennaway's handwritamuse themselves by torturing you to death."

ance. his voice. "Bluff you!" she echoed. "Why should I want to bluff you, Al- $1,250,000 in shares in Macedonan?" "What does it matter?" he chal- as collateral security for a loan lenged. "If you are not bluffing, of $500,000, I would be glad to it only means that you are ready to be tortured to death in order ment of the above debt. to put me in the wrong. You will "I think this method would be win, Shirley. I accept your offer. more profitable to you-as it

CHAPTER XLV. "We've get him all right," said Alan. "He'll agree. We're giv-ing him a chance to smash the ton dog at his come and her the days." He was flinging his few person-al possessions into a kit-bag and putting on a coat. Without a word to her he swung when he glinged at al possessions into a kit-bag and putting on a coat. out of the shack. She saw him paper. talking to Abramovel and then "Macedonian Dorn Rue Egnatic Selonik stride on to the workshop where his car was kept.

Rue Egnatic Seienic "He's on the sputi He's mess-ing about with these mines and the railway . . Per ps he was right about them of all. Per-haps the old Gur not was right, and just failed to b as it off. Phew! If the abates go to par, he collects Suffer and three quarters of a stillion met profit for his generosity." The New York "season" was once again in full swing. The same small section of society thronged each other's drawingrooms and, in fact, behaved exactly as it had behaved a year before. No one mentioned Shirley because, for practical purposes of social intercourse-they had for-Then immediately

As for Roger Kelton-his doings passed unrecorded with the was about to leave the city. For the first few months after Shirley had left him, Roger had lived in a state of almost perpetual fear lest his counter-stroke gotten her.

fail. As the months passed and Alam ovel. Unst leave us alone for a made no move to expose him the time he had obtained his decree nisi, he told himself that he was safe. From his clients, he reckoned, he had nothing to fear. As a re-Corte Bellas, he was some fifty thousand dollars short on his He stood over her, glaring trust account. That meant that if all his clients were simultaneously to demand the return of their securities, he would go to prison. But there was no reason what ever to fear that his clients would > behave i nsuch a manner. He had told Alan Brennaway fore, and in this he was perfectly accurate. Provided that he could earn enough to pay the indefinitely without endangering his position. If Alan Brennaway had intended to strike, he would have The handwriting itself had been a shock, but the letter had She winced at the hardness of been in the nature of a reassur-

Dear Kelton-Regarding the

FOR STATESMAN, Salom, Oregon, Wednesday Morning, January 29, 1930

velopments-"

shortage."

"Your father sat in that chair

four years ago and asked the same question," snapped Cynas.

"Same question-same answer.

"I own shares to the value of "Lucky boy! They'll come in useful next time there's a paper nestion-would it be safe to eat about the bush with Bran-away? Would it be safe to tem-orize-to creats difficulties in he matter of transferring the "I was wondering Mr. Cynas, best about the bush with Bren-naway? Would it be sale to tem-porize-to create difficulties in the matter of transferring the shares? Anyhow, the letter need whether you know anything of a not be answered at once. He concern called Macedonian Dewould take time to think.

For the next fortnight he thought-thought exclusively of the big profit Brennaway had no doubt planned to make. "When rou think of all that Yes. Know all I want to know the poor ord Guv'nor went about 'em, thanks." through to get those shares-and better! Ev here is this fellow going to snap $1.250,000." up the lot for less than half their "Lacky bo to write a value_"

When he thought along those e offer inn's notelines he developed a hurning conviction that he ought not to let the shares go. On the other hand, half a million for them." the only means of not letting the shares go was to produce the sum of half a million. For several days he toyed with impossible schemes for raising the money-then mapped out a plan that at least had a certain commercial feasibility.

"Cynaz might go shares. He's the worst man in the world to tackle. But he knows a bit about Brennaway and that may go far." Taking his courage in both haz.

ame th "TELLING TOMMY"

oments,

"'Light' Expense"

PAGE SEVEN

called the Philippines attantion to the thousands of their country-men in America whose "lives at this very movement are in ser-tous jeepardy." The manifesto concludes "Let us all attempt to reiterate the desire for complete separation now that under the MANILA, Jan. 27-(AP)-A strong manifesto protesting and opportunities of American against the death of Fermin To- citizens. Let the demonstration bera, Filipino, during the race also express our good will toward riots at Watsonville, Cal., was the American nation as a whole joined the cutter Redwing here adopted at a meeting tonight of with the assurance that we will and both vessels were hammering leading educators, legislators and continue extending hospitality to at the river ice near the Inter-American citizens in the Philip- state bridge in an effort to break

The manifesto urged "a nationpines." al discipline and personal sacri-fice on the part of each and every There had been no attempts to- R. Lang, locked in the Columbia day of threatened retaliatory out- a mile and a half above this city breaks for the Watsonville riots. | for more than a week.

DRY PROHIS WANTED

Volstead act. PLANE CRASHES MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28. -

cleared ice from the river at St. Helens and Columbia City, Ore-WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. gon. At the latter place she made (AP) - If Attorney General enforcement officers will not be lamette slough, freeing log rafts drinkers but-to the contrary- from the grip of the ice so that will be sincere believers in the mills might resume operations. The Redwing was to proceed to Portland later tonight and Commander Edward Jones of the (AP) - An army plane was dock here overnight and continue wrecked by a fall at Valbuena its attempt to liberate the Lang tomorrow.

a channel to the river steamer N.

Previously the Northland

Northland said his ship would

By PIM

"And Alan Brennaway," con-Filipino at this time of national humiliation." Nectological services for Totinued Kelton, "has offered me Cynaz glared at him fiercelybera were set for February 2 in the Manila public plaza. It was more fiercely than ever-then expected the entire city would Mitchell has his way, prohibition several trips up and down Wil-ing his advantage."He's been out there some months, I gather." Couched in impressive phrases, it "It's an interesting bit of small talk, if it's true. Why have you brought it to me?" demanded Cy- him Alan Breanaway's letter.

(To be continued.)

dropped his eyes to his own blot-ting pad. In the silence that folturn out as a "peaceful protest." The manifeste adopted today was drafted by Dean Jorge Puce-be of the college of law of the lowed, Kelton knew that he had "Brennaway is out there, you University of the Philippines.

labor leaders.

For answer, Kelton handed field today.

fage." His words were meaningless to the ordinary way and offer the her. She had no wish to put him shares in the open market. Will in the wrong, beyond claiming you, therefore, kindly arrange the from him the acknowledgement transfer at your very earnest conthat when she said she wished to pay her debts, she had really name and and address as under. meant it. What was there to Yours truly, Alan Brennaway."

ian Developments, which I hold accept these shares in full settle-

-than if I were to foreclose in

TILLIE, THE TOILER

the a

By RUSS WESTOVER

You can remain here, as a hos- would be more convenient to me

