Oh These Women!

By LEOLA ALLARD

Where do saleswomen in dress shops come from? Who makes them what they are, and how long does it take?

They are the reason, without a doubt, why so many women go into shops and then go right out again.

I walked into a New York shop the other day with a woman who had both the inclination and the means to make many purchases. Into the dress shop we went and found almost empty, except for great many saleswomen. They were gathered about in groups, talking. In each of two groups a male was included, a department manager off watch, I suppose.

We waited, and looked about but no one approached us. They looked us over. Not so hot, they arranged their hair, polished their nails or their palms and kept on chatting.

Finally, I approached a group and asked if someone would give us a little attention. A grand dame turned, raised her eyebrows and in a lazy-lily manner, said: "What is it you wish?"

"A dress. A dinner dress. Anything but a black dress. No black," said my companion.

It was nearly ten minutes before the grand dame reappeared with a flimsy dress on her arm and hung it before us on a rack. It was a black dress.

"But said, 'no black,'" commented the lady.

The sales person looked tired and walked away, to bring forth we feared another black dress. We found another store. We could, we were told get a simple little dress for $250. The big blonde who told us must have said that for the one she wore. So that at last, we didn't want a $250 dress so we didn't interest the blonde.

It was at holiday time that I discovered a different species in a Fifth avenue shop. A dear little thing with natural hair, and her own complexion, and a wholehearted interest in pleasing her customers. She knew what you wanted, and she cared. I went back three weeks later, having asked her name, and inquired for her. I knew I'd get quick, courteous attention. She wasn't there. Something had happened to her.

I wouldn't want to be the least bit unfair to anybody, but someone I've had the thought ever since, that maybe the others, the usual kind, ate up the little girl. Do you suppose that ever happens? They never stay long. Her kind is so hopelessly in the minority I suppose it wouldn't be possible to find out.

(Write me if I'm wrong.)

Doctors Issue Diet Warnings

Too Strenuous Reducing Diets Lead to Serious Results

Statistics from all over the country show an alarming number of girls and women who are paying the penalty of reducing diets which are sponsored by ill-advised people. These slaves to their diet are suffering from many evils. Some have no resistance to the common cold many have constipation and there are those who are in the first stages of tuberculosis.

Overweight should be avoided but the diet in normal cases should be complete. The system needs regular proteins, roughage, water and vitamins. The foods which have these elements are meat, fish, eggs, leafy vegetables, fruit and milk.

In planning meals, desserts should not be overlooked. They fill an important place in the diet. Cakes, puddings, fruit pies, custards, ice cream and candy are a fitting climax to a balanced diet. Sugar sprinkled on cereals makes them more palatable and especially inviting to children.

Many cooks have discovered the value of an old rule to sugar in seasoning vegetables. Carrots, parsnips, tomatoes, peas and cabbage, which are rich in nourishment, are much improved in color and flavor by adding a dash of sugar during the cooking process.

It does not pay to risk your health by denying yourself necessary food in an effort to reduce your weight to compare with that of another. Health depends upon good foods and good foods can be made more appetizing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Calbreath Event For February 4 Announced

The program to be given February 4, at Walker hall, Williamette university, by Miss Evelyn Calbreath, known as the singing composer, is being anticipated by a host of Salem folk. Large numbers of tickets have been obtained which indicates that the many folk who know both Miss Evelyn and her sister, Miss Helen Calbreath, when they were residents of Salem and popular to Salem society circles, have not forgotten and are still anxious to renew acquaintances and enjoy the talent of these former residents.

The program is being given under the sponsorship of a large number of Salem society folk. The list of individual sponsors is headed by Governor and Mrs. Norblad, and Mayor and Mrs. T. A. Livesley, and continues on with dozens of prominent names.

While the program is not being given as one of the McDowell club programs, yet the club is assisting in any way that it can to make the concert a success. Regular McDowell club memberships will not admit to this program, however. The Coast Musicians organization is responsible for the actual presentation of Miss Calbreath.
