NEW YORK, Feb. 3-(AP)-Babe Ruth, making an "open fight, of his demand for an $85,-9000 contract has sent New York sports editors a mimeograph statement appropriate his ability statement announcing his ability to retire and live in comfort if the Yankees fail to meet his figure. The statement postmarked from Palm Beach, Fla., and bearing the Babe's signature in facsimile was received today in the newspaper offices. No copy was received at the Yankee headquarters, however, nor has anything been heard from the Babe, whose statement also declared that the two year contract calling for $75,-000 annually for 1930 and 1931 had been returned unsigned. This represented the top offer of the club which is understood to feel it had gone the limit.

Ruth's somewhat elaborate summary of his fiscal affairs set forth that he is in a position to retire from baseball and still be assured an income of $25,000 a year. This said his statement, would be derived from royalties as well as income from $150,000 he has saved in the last three years.
