Ruth Bedford's Piano Pupil Shows Unusual Talent At Program

By OLIVE M. DOAK An audience that filled Nelson hall Saturday night almost lost n its head over the plano recital of the young planist, Emory Hobson, presented by Ruth Bedford, as he played a long and difficult program completely from memory. He was called back again and again each time to take a bow and leave his audience still wanting more music. Wise lad that he was, he gave them bows instead, for the program was long and there are few artists who can play encore numbers and keep up the tone of planned program. Such enthusiasm as was shown Saturday night was an astounding demonstration for Salem to make, and it seems a safe venture that its like has not been heard for a long, long time. The young artist took all his praise with poise. and quiet appreciation.

Three outstanding numbers, the long, difficult, "Concerto in A miner," Grieg, "Ballade in A Flat," Chopin, and "J'eux d'eau," Wel, all showed mastery far beyoud the years of the young student. His complete concentration made him master of each Bumber, presented. His tonal ences.
