Tactics of Gas Companies Are Criticized by Dealer Who Operates at Macleay

Branding the oil companies rect to the farmers and delivered whose efforts to maintain re-sale prices of gasoline have brought federal indictments on themselves, as the chief price-cutters in the industry, V. L. Masten of Macleay related to The tSatesman something of the difficulties of the real "independent" retailer of gasoline during the past year. Mr. Masten is store-keeper and postmaster at Macleay and has a gas pump for retailing gasoline,

"Ninety per cent of my gasoline business with farmers was taken away from me when the ofl companies last year went out and sold gasoline to farmers at lower prices than they would sell me. Iwas paying 21 cents a gallon while the oil companies sold di-to the farmers as low as 12 cents. Later they raised the farm prices to 15e and again to 17e and now they are charging the farmers 19c which is the same price I am forced to pay."

Besides engaging in this "price-cutting" the oil companies, according to Mr. Masten, refused to deliver him gasoline when he endeavored to sell gas under the re-sale price fixed by the oil companies

"Why should the oil companies dictate the selling prices at retail?" inquired Mr. Masten. "The sugar companies don't object if I sell sugar at ten cents a sack less than cost which I often have to do to meet competition. On no other articles am I limited at to what price I shall charge. And no other company that I know of goes out and undercuts its own retail dealer, except the oil com-

Mr. Masten figures that he can afford to sell gasoline at slightly less that the established price because he offers no service along with the gas. He maintains no air-pump or water line for motorists and merely sells gas as ordered, so he thinks he ought to be allowed to sell at his own figures.

Last summer when he had contract with an oil company paying them 21c a gallon, if he didn't sell at 25c he got no gas; and the company cancelled his contract. No other oil company would sell him gas so finally he had to deal with the old company in order to get gas to fill his

Water Company Refused Boost Rate Schedule

Proposed increased rates of the Grants Pass Water company were suspended permanently Tuesday by the public service commission, with the provision that the application may be reopened at any time when the company has complied with certain requirements of the commission with regard to improvements and betterment of service. The proposed new tariff originally was filed with the public service commission in August, 1929, but later was suspended for a period of 90 days. The order was signed by Commissioners Bortzmeyer and Miller. H. H. Corey, third member of the commission, did not participate in the findings.
