DOG LICENSES DEADLINE NEAR

Price of Tags to Be Doubled After March 1; Owners Make Last Rush

With only a few hours left in which to obtain dog licenses at the regular prices, Marion county dog owners are scheduled to crowd the corridors of the court house today to obtain their 1930 tags before the price is doubled on March 1. Yesterday the receipts from dog license fees totaled $55.50 and Wednesday the tag returns were $551.60, according to figures compiled by County Clerk Boyer.

A check on the number of licenses issued up to 5 o'clock yesterday showed that more than 2,100 tags had been issued. It is expected that at least 400 more will be handed out or mailed before today is over. Mailing will continue until next week, it is thought.

Occasionally Clerk Boyer gets an application which is written in a humorous vein. Here is one from Ella Finney of Brooks. She writes: "Kind friend—You will find enclosed a check for $2 for my dog, Bessie O'cott. He was six years old on Washington's birthday, February 22. Poor fellow, has the mange. I have been trying different mange medicines but last week I treated him with sheep dip and he has not scratched since."

"Before that, his life did not seem to be worth $2 although he is just a dear, good, beautiful fellow, good natured like his name, like the man who would rather do right than be Oregon's governor."

Senator Sam Brown, Gervais, makes his application short, snappy and to the point with the following: "Inclosed—check; dog license; sex—male; breed—terrier; name—Corky; remarks—dam good dog."

WINNERS NAMED IN AD CLUB CONTEST

There is no hope for the future of the Indian except he adopt the white man's civilization. O. H. Lipps, superintendent of the Chemawa Indian Training school, told the Salem Zonta club at its luncheon meeting at the Marion yesterday. Lipps added that he did not want to make a white man of the Indian, but rather that he must become assimilated into the routine life of the country, adopting the white man's ways and at the same time retaining the best in his own nature.

At present there is comparatively little mixing of full-blooded Indians and whites, Lipps said, although he freely predicted that the time will come when the full-blood Indian will be a very rare specimen on account of the mixture of full-blood and half-bred Indians. Of the 6,000 Indians in Oregon, about a half are pure blood, but all these were scattered and intermingled. Little impression would be made on the million inhabitants.

The problem at Chemawa is ever to fit the Indian so he will become an acceptable part of society; to teach the Indian to be pure; to adopt the ways of the white, still retaining the best in his own nature. The Indian has a good mind, but it hasn't been developed. Lipps told the group, pointing out too that the artistic temperament is foremost in the Indian, and evidenced by his constant use of touches of color, as exemplified in his clothing and handicraft.

Lipps also told something of the foundation of the earliest Indian schools, the second of which was Chemawa.

Ellis Speaks at Medford Affair Thursday Night

W. P. Ellis, Salem attorney who specializes in utility cases, was in Medford Thursday night to address a meeting of chamber of commerce representatives from western Oregon relative to freight rate reduction cases now pending before the interstate commerce commission.

Ellis appeared at the hearings in Washington, D. C. last fall representing the cities of western Oregon.

The fourth section of existing western Oregon railroad tariffs is the one in question. Ellis pointed out in his oral and written argument that interior freight rates are discriminatory and retard the growth of interior towns. In some instances three times as high rates exist between interior and port towns as between ports, although the hauls are not more than one-half as long.

Circuit Court

Vincent vs. A. A. Schramm—The demurrer to the complaint was argued Tuesday and briefs are to be submitted.

Theodore Bernard vs. Gus Wolter—Complaint to collect money due on a promissory note.

Vera Boone vs. John Boone—Complaint to partition real property.

George W. Hubbs vs. Withers, Neal and Jordan—Complaint to collect on 12 promissory notes, aggregating $60,000 covered by property in Oklahoma and in Oregon. Hubbs is suing as trustee for note holders.

F. C. Johnson vs. O. E. Scott, et al.—Complaint to foreclose on a mortgage.

Emma C. Childers vs. Lane Morely, et al.—Complaint to collect money due on a promissory note.

State vs. Ethel Allen—Mrs. Allen, accused of shoplifting in the Williams Self Service store here, was called to enter her plea before Circuit Judge Kelly Thursday morning, but she did not appear. It is thought that she has left the county.

State vs. Day Shafer—Although scheduled to be sentenced Thursday on a charge of cattle stealing, Day Shafer was given a continuance until April 19. This was because of the trial of Joe Piser which is due April 14, and Shafer is a material witness in that case.

K. Schmidt vs. A. E. Burbon—Schmidt's application to have this case placed upon the trial docket has been filed with the county clerk.

Considerable discussion pro and con is being voiced on the Williams case since the submission of an amendment to the constitution restricting women's suffrage in the election of the May Queen. The amendment has passed its first reading.

Under the proposed amendment women will neither nominate nor elect the Queen, but the nominations shall be made from "among the members of the senior class by popular vote of the men. The three girls receiving the highest number of votes shall become candidates for office."

It is proposed that the men will cast their ballots, and plurality vote shall elect.

The same amendment was defeated last year by both the men and women of the student body, but due to the alleged politics resulting from the affiliation, a special attempt is being made to pass the amendment this year.

Publishers Pay Visit to Salem For Few Hours

E. E. Brodie, publisher of the Oregon City Enterprise, with A. C. Gage, publisher of the Astoria Journal, were both visitors here for a short time Thursday on their way to Oregon City from a business trip to Corvallis.

Mr. Brodie, accompanied by his wife, leaves in a fortnight for Washington, D. C., where he will take the oath as United States minister to Finland.

State department plans call for a course of training at the capital for ministers.

Mr. Brodie has reservations on the Leviathan for April 12. Finland is 16 hours by boat from the European coast.

Belcrest Park Activities Get Under Way Soon

Improvement of the lawns on the old areas of Belcrest Memorial park as well as the planting of shrubs in several areas is the first of March activities planned by that organization, J. H. Laidlaw said Thursday.

On the chapel foundations laid last fall the chapel itself will be constructed. Contracts for the work will probably not be let until the return of W. A. Laidlaw from California some time this spring.

INTANGIBLES LEVY FURTHER EXPLAINED

In addition to making a return of the interest on all state and municipal bonds of other states, resident taxpayers should make a return under the intangibles law and pay the tax on all interest derived from all bonds or securities issued by the state of Oregon and its municipalities, such as counties, cities, school districts, irrigation districts and port districts, with the exception of rural credit bonds of the state, which are exempt.

This ruling was announced by the state tax commission here Thursday following a conference with the attorney general and study of the laws and court decisions of various states in which the intangible tax law is in operation.

"A careful study was made of the various laws relating to the issuance of state and municipal bonds," read the commissioner's ruling, "but no tax exempt bonds have been found except the Oregon rural credit bonds."

"The impression that state and municipal bonds are exempt probably was due to two assumptions. First, because the federal income tax exempts the obligations of a state or municipality thereof, and second because assessors have been told that state and municipal bonds are exempt from the intangible tax law."

"The Oregon constitution does not exempt municipal bonds and there is no statutory provision exempting the income of state or municipal bonds from taxation in Oregon, except rural credit bonds."

"Therefore, interest from all state and municipal bonds, except Oregon rural credit bonds, whether issued by the state of Oregon or any of its municipalities, as well as interest from state and municipal bonds of other states, should be returned and is taxable under the intangibles tax law."

LEVY NOW TOTALS QUARTER MILLION

Intangibles taxes collected up until last night aggregated nearly $250,000, according to a statement issued by the state tax commission. The time for paying the intangible tax expires March 1.

Based upon the experience of other states the state tax commissioners said that the payments during the next two days probably would double those of Wednesday and Thursday. In case this holds true the returns from the intangibles tax will amount to between $400,000 and $500,000. It was said that there were a number of large returns yet to be received.

Both the Salem and Portland offices were deluged with persons desiring to pay their tax. More than 800 letters containing remittances were received at the Salem office of the tax commission today. As a result of the congestion in the Portland office reinforcements were sent there today to assist in the work.

Members of the commission said that the fact that taxpayers will be subject to penalty and interest after March 1 does not mean that payments will cease on that date. Investigators for the state tax commission who have access to the federal income tax reports and other information, will start the work of checking up on alleged delinquents early in March.

It was estimated that the delinquent payments would total not less than $200,000.

The intangibles and excise tax laws were enacted at the 1929 legislative session, and are in operation in Oregon this year for the first time.
