

JOHN DAY MAN REAPPOINTED

Herman Oliver Placed Upon Board of Higher Education by Norblad

Herman Oliver of John Day Thursday was reappointed by Governor Norblad a member of the state board of higher education for a term of nine years. He already has served one year on the board. Oliver is one of the best known livestock raisers in Eastern Oregon, and is connected with several banking institutions.

The state board of higher education was created at the last legislative session, and is composed of nine members. One member retires each year. Under control of the board are the state's five institutions of higher learning, including the University of Oregon, State college and state normal schools at LaGrande, Ashland and Monmouth.

The law provides that interim appointments on this board shall be confirmed by an interim committee of Senators Marks, Eberhard, Strayer and Eddy. Work of Board is Highly Praised

"I want to call attention," read a statement issued by Governor Norblad in connection with Oliver's reappointment, "that only a year has now elapsed since the state board of higher education was established by an act of the state legislature, and only eight months since it took over its duties as governing body of the five state institutions of higher learning.

Squirrel Poison Not Demanded By Many People

Only three persons called at the county treasurer's office yesterday to get the bags of squirrel poisons which have been placed on sale there by County Horticultural Agent Van Trump. The poison has been sacked in cloth bags and sold for 40 cents each, the price being just what the material cost.

Persons who wish to take advantage of the poison deal should get the material as soon as possible, is the word given out at the court house. It is said that the squirrels are out earlier this year than they have been for several seasons past and that as soon as the poison is put out, the quicker the relief will be felt.

NORBLAD NOT READY TO PICK SECRETARY

Governor Norblad said Thursday that he had not yet decided who he would appoint as his private secretary to succeed Miss Beatrice Walton, who has resigned to take effect March 15. Governor Norblad declared that he originally sought out a well known newspaper man, but that he declined to accept the office when his employer increased his salary $75 a month. The man favored by the governor also was said to be a short story writer, from which he derives compensation in excess of that paid by the state for the services of a private secretary.

The governor also announced that he had not yet made up his mind who he will appoint to succeed Ben Dorris of Eugene as a member of the state game commission. He indicated, however, that the appointee would come from southern Oregon.

INDUSTRIAL ISSUES ADVANCE RAPIDLY

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—With a fresh decline in open market credit rates to levels regarded as clearly indicating a lower federal reserve discount, together with a cut in the bank of England rate, professional traders bid up more than a score of leading industrial shares to record levels for the recovery in today's stock market, only to learn after the close of the market that the reserve directors at their weekly meeting had left the discount rate unchanged at a four per cent.

While the stock market made good headway, the index of 90 leading issues rising nearly two points to a 1930 peak, it did not display the marked buoyancy that it frequently has in the past of substantial cheapening of credit. The weekly brokerage loan total showed an increase of $91,000,000.

The electric equipments were notably strong. General Electric and Allis Chambers rose a couple of points to new peaks, and Westinghouse Electric rose more than five points to close to its best 1930 level. The domestic and Porto Rican sugar stocks gained two or three points in response to the senate's approval of a higher sugar tariff. U. S. Steel gained about four and American Can two. Bendix, Goodyear, Engineer's Public Service, Stone and Webster, Missouri Pacific, and Vandulung mounted two to four points to new 1930 tops.

TAFT CONTINUES TO DEFEY PHYSICIANS

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP)—His life despaired of twice last month by attending physicians, William Howard Taft continued today to resist successfully the ravages of disease. Drs. Francis R. Hagner and Thomas A. Clayton said their 72 year old patient had shown further improvement during the last 24 hours. More rest and greater ability to take nourishment has brought the former chief justice back temporarily, at least, from the critical stages of last week when the doctors said death might be a matter of hours.

He still lies dangerously ill, however. While a fundamentally powerful heart has permitted him to fight off a complication of diseases, fear is held of a strike that might suddenly break down the resistance of the former chief justice.

It was this eventually of which the physicians warned when they said at the beginning of his latest improvement that this life span was indeterminate unless a sudden relapse came as a result of the hardening of the arteries.

OPPORTUNITY ASKED FOR COLORED RACE

Because the negro race was the only race invited to enter the United States without the opportunity to decline the invitation, the American people are obligated to give the negro a chance to do his best in industrial and educational fields, said Dr. Lorenzo H. King, noted negro orator of New Orleans, in an address on "Race Adjustment" before Willamette university students Wednesday.

Since one tenth of the total population of the country is colored a satisfactory adjustment between the races is essential and unless the negro "is assimilated and integrated into the life of the American people" a state of bolshernism and communism as well as a decline in culture and a tendency toward atheism is apt to result among the members of his race, he stated. He pointed out that the difference in color was not sufficient to exclude them from the educational and occupational advantages, and from the influence of Christian idealism. Dr. King was one of the speakers at the Methodist Brotherhood council Wednesday.

The Romance of Coffee

We are told that during the 14th and 15th century, the coffee drink was a popular brew among the churchmen. After roasting, the beans were crushed in a mortar with pestle and then boiled with water which was consumed grounds and all. At the beginning of the 16th century, a law was passed by the Governor of Mecca prohibiting the use of coffee. After a number of years, the Sultan of Cairo ordered this prohibition law revoked and the official responsible for the appalling conditions resulting from his law, was tortured to death after being exposed as an extortioner and a public robber. It is interesting to note, in view of our present prohibition problems, that although an attempt was made to close coffee houses, the authorities throughout the country, finding it useless and extremely difficult to enforce the law and to destroy the custom of coffee drinking, winked at violations of the law, took bribes and allowed coffee to be sold privately. "Blind Figs" and "Speakeasies" quickly came into existence and coffee was sold and consumed behind closed doors in back rooms, much like the present custom of dispersing liquor which prevails throughout our own country at this time; and, of course, various phases and methods of coffee bootlegging were indulged in. This was enough to reestablish the coffee houses by degrees, and after many years of lawlessness and agitation, the prohibition law was repealed. Long before the end of the 16th century, Italian, Dutch, German and French travelers returned to their homes with strange stories about the new drink of the Orient. Before 1700, the novelty of the new coffee drink spread throughout the Old World. Coffee houses were opened in England, Holland, Germany, France and Italy.
