

Old Fashioned Home Is Out-of-Date And Largely Useless

MACHINE MADE ARTICLE CHEAP

Color Scheme, Old Modes, Add to Attractive Home Articles

There is no longer an excuse for the unpleasantly old-fashioned home which, without any old-world charm is merely out-of-date. The possibilities which large scale production have made for the lowering of prices; the remarkable copies which are made of rare pieces of valuable furniture; and the effective plans for facilitating the purchase of furniture by those whose incomes are not great enough to allow a large investment at one time; all these factors which permit every woman who takes a pride in her home to add little by little those desirable elements which make of a mere house or apartment a delightful, livable place for the family, and its guests.

Modern furniture is undeniably attractive and unusual, but for those whose tastes are more conservative there have been many developments in the manufacturing field to make furniture in the period designs more convenient and better adapted to the lady of the house. Dust-proof compartments, stainless finishes on wood, combination units, such as stove and ice-box in one, bookcase and secretary, end-table and sewing-machine, all of which have been designed to lessen her tasks, to beautify her home, and to make possible the economic purchase of smartness.

Artistry Real Help
Particularly admirable are the services rendered by furniture stores and department stores, to help the purchaser keep in the bounds of artistry and good taste. This is done by suggestions, offered from years of experience, as to the type of furniture suited to various sizes of rooms; the compatible forms of window and floor covering, and even color schemes if madame has too little confidence in her own ingenuity.

For smothered beef steak, spread a well seasoned dressing on top the steak and bake it for 30 minutes or until very tender.

Pastel Shades Predominate

Length, grace and charm combine in the new dress demands for spring. Milady finds styles radically reversed but pleasantly so, in spring, 1930.

"MODERATE FLARES" FOUND NEEDED IN NEWEST HATS

"Off-the-Face" Hat Has Serious Rival This Year in Hat With a Brim

The new spring millinery mode shows a decided tendency to follow the graceful feminine trend of the season's frocks and suits. "Moderate flares" is as true for spring tailored hats as for costumes.

The lace detail gives new softness to the smart straw hats.

The off-the-face hat has a serious rival this spring in the hat with a brim.

Brim and bows are very much in vogue.

Wide brims, cloche brims, profile brims, irregular brims are cut and made most ingeniously.

One of the outstanding versions of the brimmed silhouette is the hat in which the brim is lifted at front creating a bandeau effect, for in this type of hat, the off-the-face expression to which we have grown so accustomed, is retained. This style of hat promises to become very popular as the season progresses.

Bows Have Important Place

Bows hold an important place in the new spring millinery mode.

In the early spring hats they are, as might be expected, small, conservative bows, but they will grow bolder on hats as the season continues.

Lace straw insets and motifs are very popular.

While the spring season 1930 promises to be the greatest straw season we have had for many a year, nevertheless fabrics come in for a goodly share of the honors.

Linen and shantung as millinery mediums grow hourly more important.

Lacy straw insets and bandings will be used extensively as the inset trimming on bakou, panamasque, also, ballbuntl, in fact, on almost all of the straw bodies. The straw lace will be used in the same way to accomplish the effect of the dressy hat without applied trimming. This lace straw has solved the problem of the dressy hat without the fussiness to everyone's satisfaction.

Lacy straw insets and motifs are made of toys or tuscan generally, or they may be of a novelty calibre.

The transparent idea is not limited to the transparent straws, it will also be seen in the punchwork that is being applied to felts. The punchwork is laid in conventional designs all over the crown. Sometimes the lacing of crepe de chine folds accomplishes the transparent effect and there are numerous other methods in which the idea will be introduced this season.

Early Straw Hat Season

This spring will see a decidedly early straw hat season. With the tailored suit and straws as porte bonheur, conservative manipulations of panamasque, fine grades of sisel and bakou will hold interest as far as body straws are concerned. The straw tricots for tailored modes will be very much in evidence this spring, especially the caps that are draped out at the sides accomplishing a little flare in their descending lines, and making a most appropriate complement for the flared suit.

The new cloche hats will undoubtedly be one of the outstanding modes for spring.

For sportswear, it will be more conservative in line, but for the tailored hat it will be a bit more feminine.

Many of the smartest cloche type hats will show a little "kick up" effect over the left eye.

Eric McNair, a rookie, is giving Joe Boley a rousing battle for the regular shortstop job with the Athletics.

New Cloche Hats

LARGE MERGER OF SHIPPERS FORMED

BERLIN, March 26—(AP)—Almost at the very moment the German liner Europa had seized the blue ribbon of the ocean, the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyd Steamship lines announced today they had completed a 50-year cooperative agreement to and competition.

The announcement was made in a joint communique issued in two cities by directors of the organizations—in Hamburg by Dr. Cuno of the Hamburg-American line and in Bremen by Herr Seaken of the North German Lloyd. In these venerable Hanseatic cities it was indicated that the agreement was a union of convenience only.

Both concerns had to swallow much pride, it is conceded, and overcome their deep seated rival feelings. Necessity caused the shipping agreement which Emperor William II vainly suggested in 1913.

The new combine places the German group third in the world from the viewpoint of tonnage. The Royal mail line was 2,700,000 tons; the Peninsula and Oriental 2,500,000; the Hamburg-American-North German Lloyd combination, 2,000,000, and Cunard 1,500,000.

CLARKSDALE, Miss., March 25—(AP)—J. L. Doggett, 57, logger, was shot to death and L. B. Carter, 50, carpenter, a bystander, wounded in a gun battle late today.
