

LITTLE WOMEN TO BE STAGED

Oregon Normal Spring Festival to Recall Days Of Old

MONMOUTH, April 5.—Junior week-end the time of the May Day festival of the Oregon Normal school, has been chosen also as the presentation time for the junior class play, "Little Women."

This being the hundredth anniversary of the founding of this school; and the 50th anniversary of the chartering of Monmouth; it seemed expedient for the entire program theme to revolve around old fashions, and the play selected seemed in keeping with that idea.

"Little Women" has been given quite extensively in California colleges, and it is of a type with much appeal to the younger generation, because of the apparent frivolities of 50 years ago; and to the older generation because it reflects the youth of their day.

The cast: Jo, Gweneith Dike; Amy, Lelia Hamersley; Beth, Lucille Henkle; Meg, Dorothy Covey; Mrs. March, Helene Pitcher; Aunt March, Ruth Rossman; Mr. March, Waldo Riches; Laurie, Ernest Caley; Brooke, Theodore Pfahl; Professor Bhaer, Fred Elting; Mr. Lawrence, Halley Johnson; Hannah, Helen Elst.

Mrs. Anne Ulen Bell has charge of the stage settings; and Mrs. Grace Morris heads the costume committee.

Don't Take Chances With Obsolete Glasses

It is a fact that many people who could at one time have had their eye defects corrected very easily and quickly deferred this important examination and time has wrought a condition that makes correction rather difficult.

Don't take chances with your old lenses. Have your eyes examined. Then you will probably never have serious eye-strain or a tendency toward chronic or acute eye trouble.

The men or women who have their eyes examined periodically are employing a great margin of safety.

Eye examination in many cases discloses the fact that glasses are not always necessary and advanced optometric scientific instruments are greatly aiding thousands of people in correcting optical abnormalities.

However, only skillful examination of your eyes and the glasses that you may now be wearing can reveal if your glasses are obsolete or not suited for the particular need to normalize your vision.

The new styles of frames and shapes are ultra-modern and lend a style to your general appearance that cannot be easily overlooked.

The saving of your eyes and the enhancement that these new frames will give to you more than offset the expense entailed.
