versity in a series of experiments made possible by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation.

One specimen lives in the water in a glass bowl where it was placed four months ago after being removed from a lump of dry mud almost as hard as a rock. It had been in this mud brick 13 months. There are 15 others in hard mud on the laboratory shelf.

These creatures of catfish gray color, a foot or so long, and looking like a cross between a catfish and an eel have been there buried alive for 17 months.

They were brought here nearly two years ago by Dr. Homer W. Smith, professor of physiology, from Kisma on Lake Victoria, where they grow six feet long and are considered good eating.

They have real lungs and rise to the surface once in about 15 minutes to breathe. In the dry season they bury themselves, breathing through a hole in the earth.

Dr. Smith estimates they can live in the mud five years. They do not eat while in mud, but live on their own tissues, and accumulate waste products in their own bodies. No other animal is known which can so dispose of waste.

Dr. Smith is studying secrets of astonishing kidney functions which no other animals seem to possess. These functions appear to have some relation to the lung fish's ability to live in a state of suspended animation.

P. M. COLLIER TALKS AT GERVAIS HIGH

GERVAIS, April 10. — P. M. Collier, extension lecturer of the University of Oregon spoke to the student body at the assembly on Tuesday morning, his subject being "The Value of a College Education." He made a second speech to the senior class, answering many questions put to him by the members.

A movement has been started in the Gervais high school looking toward the forming of a student council, the student body as a whole being in favor of the council. The president appointed a committee of five including Mr. Brehaut, the principal, to investigate other councils and report immediately. Pupils on this committee are: Chauncey McDougall, Lester DeJardin, Ruth Palmer, Harley Odde and Rose Albright.

Miss Thea, English teacher in the high school, has been quite ill at her home in Salem the last week. She returned to her duties Monday but was forced to return to Salem Wednesday.

AMITY, April 10.—The regular monthly meeting of the city council was held Monday.

H. W. Henning, city surveyor, was present at the meeting and advised the council just what to do in regard to the condition of Nursery street.

The council voted to have Mr. Henning survey a water ditch on either side of the road. The property owners are to move the dirt in front of their property.

The street commissioner, J. R. Snodgrass, was instructed to put in the tile from the end of the sewer empties. He was also instructed to notify the property owners to fix the side walks in front of their property.

As there was no other business, the meeting adjourned.

SILVERTON P. T. A. HAS DADDIES NIGHT

Music and Movies Provide Entertainment for Organization

SILVERTON, April 10.—"Daddies Night" of the local Parents-Teachers' association proved quite successful Tuesday evening when it was held at the Eugene Field auditorium. The meeting was presided over by the April chairman, Mrs. Ernest Palmer. Mrs. Martin Hannik, president of the association, announced that the nominating committee had been appointed and consisted of Mrs. Hannah Olsen, Mrs. Frank Powell and Mrs. John Ballestrone. Election of officers will be held at the May meeting.

The first number of the evening's program was selections by Mrs. Gertrude Cameron's Rhythmic band, composed of her smaller students. This proved very popular and the group was forced to respond to encores.

Warren Crabtree showed his motion pictures of the local Smith-Hughes work. The pictures, while small, were exceptionally clear and much enjoyment was expressed by the spectators in the viewing of the work of the class. Mr. Crabtree at the close of the showing, extended an invitation to all to visit the Smith-Hughes department.

Musical selections during the evening were furnished by the Junior high boys' quartet, by the senior high school orchestra and by a trio of girls, Misses Kathleen and Beatrice Booth and Percie Miles. Mrs. Mary Egan Kleeman gave a reading.

An exceptionally good paper on "The High School Age" by Dr. King, was given by Jean Lambert, principal of the senior high school.

Mr. Drake, president of the Silverton Historical society, spoke before the gathering, explaining the purpose of the newly organized body and urged everyone to be out at the next meeting which will be held on Tuesday evening of next week.

Mr. Drake spoke briefly on the many interesting things that had been gathered for the museum planned by the society.

The pictures given each month to the room having the largest representation of visitors, went to Miss Percie Miles of the Eugene Field building, to Miss Trotter for the Junior high school, and to the senior room of the senior high school.

WOODBURN FACULTY TO STAGE COMEDY

WOODBURN, April 10.—The faculty of Woodburn high school will present the uproariously funny three act comedy, "Her Step Husband," in the high school auditorium Friday evening.

The play is being coached by Maude M. Mochel and being managed by Milton Gralapp. The stage manager is Ronald Burnett and the publicity and properties are in charge of Ray Wolf and Helen M. Guise. Ruth Mitchell is the cue mistress.

The story centers around Mary Marshall (Helen Washburn) who is forced to get a "step husband" (Preston Rohrer) to fool her Aunt Emmy (Virginia Mason) who comes to visit her. With this for a beginning, Mary shows exceptional ability to enlarge upon facts so that they no longer are facts but preparations.

Other members of the cast are Harvey P. Marshall, the real husband, T. P. Otto; Limpy Larigan, an ex-convict, Gilbert Odde; Officer Shea, an affable cop; V. D. Bain; Sylvia Allen, friend of Mary; Audrey Wiencken; Florence Ainslee, the step husband's fiancée, Pearl Emery and Stella, the maid, Margaret Templar.

SHRINKAGE HALTED BY NEW INVENTION

NEW YORK—(AP)—A report that a method has been discovered for preventing cotton goods from shrinking has been sent to the drygoods trade.

The report is issued by the Better Fabrics Testing Bureau of New York to the members of the National Retail Dry Goods association. It describes a discovery of Sanford L. Cluett, a manufacturer of Troy, N. Y.

He found that cotton shrinks because the fabric is stretched lengthwise during the processes of finishing. When the rolls come from the mills the long strips of cotton cloth about a yard in width are sewed together until there is sometimes a continuous piece about 14 miles long. This is hauled upstairs and down over rollers, through liquids, across high heat, as fast as it can be pulled from one machine to another.

During this operation the fabric is stretched lengthwise. It is claimed that two to five per cent has been added to the length of a given piece by pulling in finishing processes. The shrinkage comes when washing causes the cloth to shorten up to its original length.

The new process gets rid of the extra stretch before the cloth is made up, by pulling it side-wise as it comes through the finishing machinery. That is, the fabric comes out the same size and shape that it enters.

Curiously the side-wise tension which shortens up the stretching obtained by feeding the fabric into the machine a little faster than it comes out and by applying to its outer edges a set of grippers which give the side stretch.

FISH 450 MILLION YEARS OLD STUDIED

NEW YORK—(AP)—Sleepy progeny of the Devonian lung-fish of 450 million years ago is under laboratory study today, affording science an opportunity to study evolution at first hand.

These close relatives of the Devonian creatures which were the first to walk on dry land are the most ancient survivors—except the shark—in the long cycle of evolution, and stand as live specimens of the past.

They are African lung-fish under observation at Bellevue Medical College of New York university.
