COLLECTORS OF TAX KEEP BUSY

Levies Being Paid With Usual Regularity This Year, Report

With the final date for payment of first half taxes without penalty, less than a month away, the corps of Marion county tax collectors are doing a brisk business these days. At the present time tax statements are taking most of the time of the daily routine although there is a goodly number of persons paying their taxes each day.

The tax roll, under which collections are now being made, is $2,118,003.92 and between 27,000 and 28,000 taxpayers must bear this burden. Shortly before closing time Friday, 1,934 receipts had been issued and 6,313 statements had been made out by persons requesting them.

In spite of the cry of hard times this year, taxes are being paid with the usual regularity and compares favorably with other years, said Frank Wrightman, tax collector. "Folks in Marion county are about the same every year, when it comes to paying their taxes," Wrightman said.

If property owners in the county are poorer this year than in other years, the tax collectors have not learned it from those who have been in to pay. A taxpayer rarely comments upon anything except the amount of his tax, paying it pleasantly and making a ready departure.

DOCTORS FORM BUSINESS BODY

Centralized Business Office Established for Physicians, Dentists

The centralized business office which was talked here some time ago for the members of the tri-county medical and dental societies is now a reality, headquarters having been established the past week at 152 South High street. The office, known chiefly as clearing house for the two professions, will be in full swing the first of the week. Already between 40 or 50 local dentist and doctors are signed up.

The office will be, in addition to a clearing house, a model educational health center for the public of Marion and Polk counties. It will be under direction of the physicians and dentists and under general supervision of the executive secretary of the Oregon state medical society. Clarence L. Fitzwater will be field representative and local manager and Desell J. Eslick will be in charge of the offices.

The center is recognition of the feeling of responsibility to make available to the public scientific information on health, and includes education of the public to the aims of medical and dental science and an understanding of healthful rules of living. It further is designed to teach the public to discriminate between the scientific methods of the trained physician and dentist, and the unscientific methods, it is pointed out by those in charge.

The center here is similar to other centers over the state. It will have a free public health information bureau and reading room where laymen may come to read health books and pamphlets. The public will be able also to obtain biographic details about physicians and dentists and lists of members of the dental and medical societies. It will also assist any group which desires the information in planning health instruction, and it will maintain a credit bureau.

Hearing Is Set On Application For Reinstatement

Hearing of the application of the Merrill Mortuary system for reinstatement of its permit to sell burial certificates in Oregon, has been set by Mark McCallister, state corporation commissioner, for May 16.

The permit was cancelled recently when the concern failed to comply with the regulations of the corporation department. Independent undertakers are protesting against renewal of the permit, and requested the hearing. The state association of undertakers, which meets in Portland next week, probably will take some official action in the case.

SURVEY IS DECIDED FOR COUNTY ROAD

After several months of pressure to have the connecting link determined of the "Million Dollar" highway between Brooks and Mt. Angel, County Engineer Hedra Swart and Market Road Engineer Oscar Cutler of the highway department finally reached a decision after inspecting the road.

Of the three surveys which had been proposed, the one which goes through the lands of the Hays interests and the McIlwain property was selected. This route will give an easy curve to connect the two ends of the road which have already been completed.

The road will give a new outlet to the products from one of the most productive and prosperous agricultural sections of the state. It was because of the high value of the beaverdam land on the McIlwain place and the Hays place which caused objection to the link section.

According to the plans of the two inspecting engineers, the link will be built over a piling bridge which will permit cultivation to some extent.

Typing Contest And Bookkeeping Event Scheduled

Annual typing and bookkeeping contest for Marion county high schools will be held at the high school here today under auspices of the junior chamber of commerce of Salem high. Entrants are expected from eight or ten of the county high schools.

The bookkeeping contest will begin at 9 o'clock sharp, with H. L. Robinson, professor at Oregon state, in charge; and the typing contest is set for 10:30 o'clock, to be conducted by H. T. Vance, also of Oregon State college. Three cups will be awarded in each division of the typing contest and one to the winner of the bookkeeping contest. This is the first year any trophies have been offered.
