KAY EXPLAINS BONDS OFFER

State Not Trying to Obtain Preference, Treasurer Declares

The state of Oregon is not attempting to obtain preference over other bondholders by reselling bonds to Oregon municipalities that are in financial difficulties, and thereby take advantage of other bondholders through advance liquidation of the state's holdings.

This was announced here Saturday by T. B. Kay, state treasurer, who said he apparently was misunderstood with respect to his recent offer to resell to Oregon municipalities at yield prices such bonds as the state holds.

Offer Advanced to All Municipalities
"This offer is made to all municipalities alike," Kay, a statement issued by him, "regardless of whether they are having difficulty in meeting their bond interest and principal obligations."

Kay said his offer to resell bonds to municipalities was made for the following purposes:
To enable municipalities to earn with absolute safety a higher yield than they are now receiving or will receive in the future, on sinking fund investments.

To insure municipalities against loss by enabling them to retire their indebtedness now, rather than jeopardize their funds through injudicious investments in mortgages, in mortgage certificates of eastern firms, in unsafe bonds of other municipalities, or through possible bank failures in which uninvested sinking fund moneys are deposited.

Reduction of Taxes
Also to be sought.
To lower taxes through higher interest earnings on investments and by progressive and earlier payment of their bonded obligations.

To encourage liquidation of bonded indebtedness and to keep sinking fund monies in Oregon.
"It has been brought to my attention," continued Kay's statement, "that the sinking funds of some of the municipalities have already been jeopardized through poor investment of these funds in mortgages, mortgage certificates or bonds of other subdivisions with whose affairs the investing officers were no conversant, and whose condition is or will become such that a default will result. It is obvious that a double default might occur if sinking funds are invested in unsatisfactory bonds."

Offer for Bonds
Purchase Explained
"The offer to permit municipalities to purchase their own bonds is equivalent to the offering long term bonds with definite maturities into bonds with serial maturities, and so long as this can be done without loss of the state funds which have been invested in Oregon municipal bonds, the municipalities and bondholders in general will derive the benefits herein above mentioned."

"The state treasurer advocates that, in so far as possible, all future bond issues of municipalities in Oregon be made serial as to maturity. The municipalities will then be able to apply their sinking funds against their respective bonded debts as the funds accrue, and thereby eliminate the danger of making poor investments of such funds."

BERLIN (AP)—The American Chamber of Commerce has warned Americans not to seek jobs in Germany, there having been spread a story that the increasing number of American firms here needed help from home. The serious unemployment situation general will derive the most benefit for American firms to employ Germans.
