RABBI SPEAKS TO ROTARIANS

Too Much Emphasis Placed On Wealth, Local Organization Hears

Throwing at Rotarians a vigorous challenge on the fundamentals of living, Rabbi J. Berkowitz spoke yesterday at the noon luncheon of the Rotary club on "Whither America." Declaring that we measure men by the amount they pile up, he pointed out the danger of reliance on such false estimates in conducting funerals he stated, convention would not permit him to say of one man that he was a great success, leaving behind a fortune and of another that he was a failure because he left $15,000 in debts; yet the popular mind inclines to measure a man by his wealth.

The rabbi began his address by sketching from St. Paul's "The Last American," the picture of the fall of American civilization with New York and Washington and piles of ruins. He recounted the swift changes transpiring in our modern life. In politics we are becoming a country of one party; the two old parties having similar sets of principles and on such an issue as prohibition neither party willing to take a stand. In international affairs our day is isolationism. We are part and parcel of the whole body of nations. In education and literature the changes have been profound. In economics the machine age has enslaved us. Things have been speeded up so a man can accomplish not just one or two things a day but 20 things. The danger is that this industrial colossus we have reared may some day come crashing down upon us.

In his close the rabbi repeated the story of "The man who had much land does a man need?" The story relates the strain of the man for land and more land, his collapse under the strain—and getting merely his burial space. The final appeal of the rabbi was for recognition of religion as an essential in proper living, constantly calling men back to God, whom he termed the great reality.

In the election of officers W. H. Dancy and W. L. Phillips tied for president and the decision was deferred till next week. Max Page was chosen vice president; Eric Butler, secretary; Dan J. Fry, treasurer; Ted Endicott and Leon Gleason, directors.

WILLIAMS GETS MYERS BACKING

Prominent Oregon Democrat Indicates G. O. P. Chief Should Keep Job

Jefferson Myers, former state treasurer and now commissioner on the United States Shipping board, a prominent Oregon democrat, has written The Statesman in commendation of Ralph E. Williams, who as republican national committeeman has pressed an important role in representing Oregon in national councils.

Mr. Myers makes no comments on the fight in his own party between Os West and Walter Pierce who are in rather a sharp fight for the position of member of the national democratic committee. His letter to The Statesman is as follows:

"In both of the great parties of the United States today there are men who, although affiliated with a party and representing it, can look beyond the limitations of personal and party interests to the larger welfare. Honorable Ralph E. Williams has had this larger vision, and in his work at the nation's capital he has on all occasions vigorously supported every project that would benefit both the Federal Government for the development and upbuilding of the State of Oregon.

"In matters pertaining to the advancement of shipping and commerce in Oregon he has at all times given the fullest cooperation both to the shipping interests and to the United States Shipping Board. This has been unusually valuable because of the experience, standing and wide acquaintance his long service as National Committeeman has given him.

"As Commissioner of the United States Shipping Board I esteem Mr. Williams' cooperation, and wish to express my appreciation of the assistance he has given me in dealing with all matters of interest to Oregon."

JEFFERSON MYERS, Commissioner.

POLITICS BOILING AT HIGH SCHOOL

The time of year when high school students huddle together to consider just who the various groups want as their officers for the next school year is at hand, with announcements yesterday that nominations for student body positions will be made at the assembly on May 8.

Platform speeches will be in order on May 16, and ballots will be distributed May 23, the polls to close at 1:15 o'clock on that day.

So far, it is reported there is a dearth of likely officers. However, it will be a strange election if students do not find plenty of contests in the selection of officials for the new year.

In addition to elections, it is probable there will be a few amendments to the student body constitution to be voted on at the same time officers are chosen.

SUMMER'S FIRST POPPY REPORTED

With several flower fanciers in Salem contesting for honors on the first rose of the season, Mrs. W. B. Johnson of 1645 South Liberty yesterday led the way for growers of poppies to dispute her claim that she has the first Oriental poppy in bloom. Anyway, Mrs. Johnson is the first to report a blooming poppy.

As a Commissioner of the United States Shipping Board I esteem Mr. Williams' cooperation, and wish to express my appreciation of the assistance he has given me in dealing with all matters of interest to Oregon."
