COUNTY TAKES OVER HIGHWAY

Legal Step Made in Matter Of Road up Santiam to Whitewater Marion county took a legal step Thursday towards making the proposed North Santiam road into Linn county and thence south and east into Central Oregon, a reality when Judge John Siegmund and Hecda Swart, county engineer, placed formal notices as required by law, indicating that the 11-mile stretch between Detroit and Whitewater had been designated as a county road.

When this road runs three more miles to Whitewater, it will have reached the Linn county line, Judge Siegmund said. The only thing Marion county may now do in preparation for the eventual through road to the pass is to a standard 26-foot county road, when funds are available from the county.
