Many Missing; Scores Hurt In Series of Terrific Tornadoes

In transporting the injured to Omaha. A large part of the town lies in ruins. The streets are clogged with debris and the town is in darkness, all electric wires having been leveled by the storm. Legion Hall Utilized For Emergency Purposes

The American Legion hall was hastily converted into a haven for the homeless and the less seriously injured.

Residents said the tornado struck with full fury at 6:50 p.m., sweeping up from the west and moving directly eastward through the northern section of the town. The fashionable residential district was saved from destruction by the straight path taken by the tornado although several expensive homes were wrecked.

At the hospital and other relief stations opened to treat the injured, doctors were working by flashlight.

KANSAS CITY, May 1.—(AP)—One man was injured fatally and several seriously in tornadoic gusts that swept northeast Kansas and northwest Missouri early tonight.

Livestock and poultry were killed and farm property destroyed, to the accompaniment of severe hail and rain storms.

Lawrence Kern, about 43, a farmer of near Kickapoo, Kansas, died in a Leavenworth hospital from injuries received when his home collapsed. His wife and children also were injured and taken to the hospital.

An emergency call for all physicians and medical aid available in nearby cities and towns was relayed from Valley Falls, Kan., near Winchester, to treat the victims of the twister that struck adjoining farms two to three miles southwest of the town.

Three persons whose names could not be immediately learned were injured in the collapse of a house near Easton, 17 miles west of here.

The known injured near Winchester are: Mr. and Mrs. John L. Miller and their daughter Mara Ada, who suffered a fractured leg.

E. L. Miller, 41, farmer, and Bert Cramer, 35, farmer, were injured in many sections of the affected area and roads were impassable in places.

Three separate twisters, first seen near White Cloud, Missouri, uprooting a country church and its nearby schoolhouse, plucked a filling station and its pumps from the earth and played havoc with farm property, killing livestock and poultry.

SPRING WELCOMED WITH FESTIVITIES

essor W. C. Jones who has recently spoken at many of the high schools in the state has sent invitations to over 200 prospective students, while sororities, fraternities, and individual students have also sent out a great number.

The climax of the festivities will come Saturday morning at 11 o'clock with the coronation ceremony with President Carl Gregg Doney placing the crown. William Mumford, student body president, will escort the queen, while Harold Tomlinson and Kenneth Denman will accompany the maids of honor, Lillian Scott and Margaret Bolt.

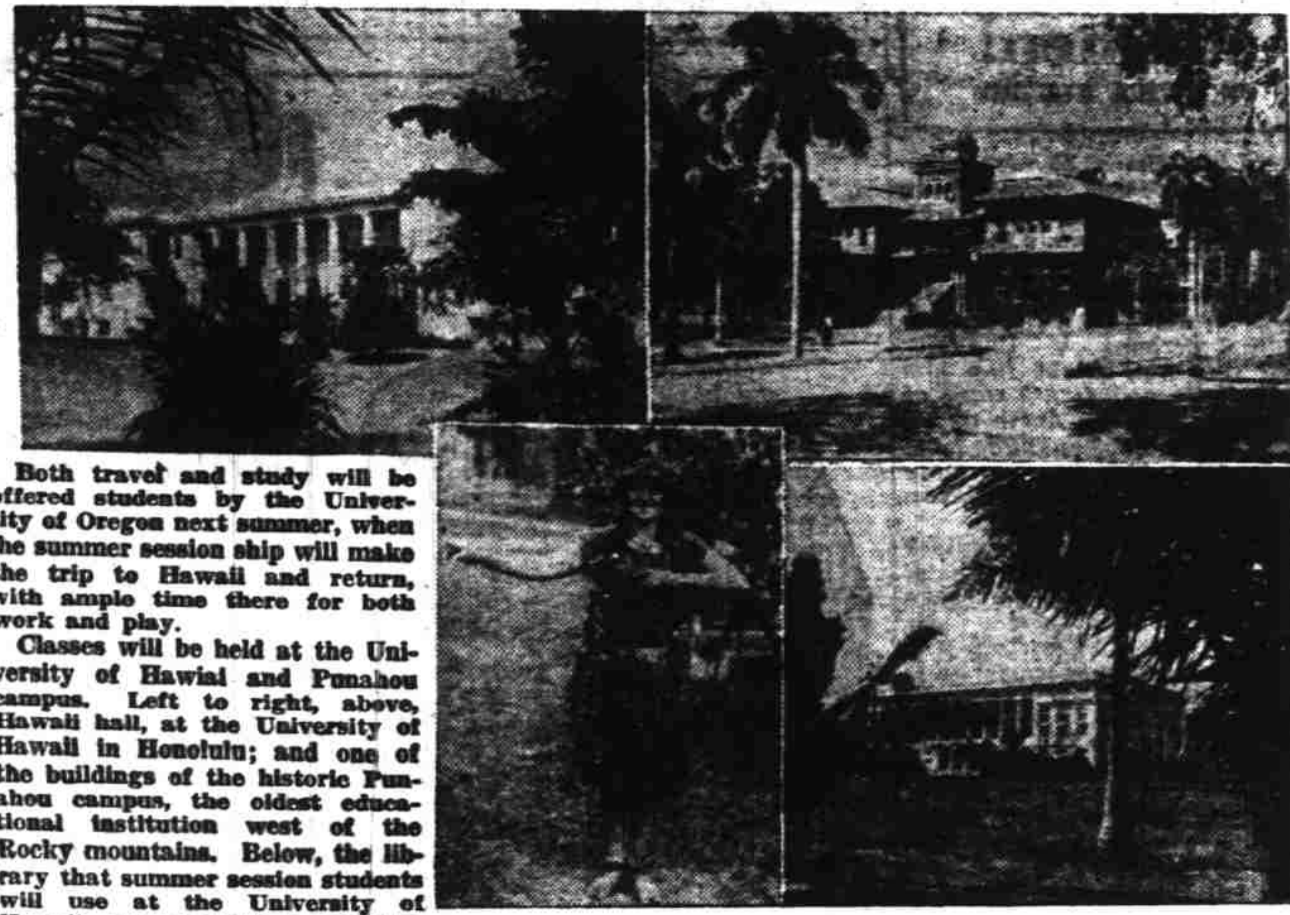

Changes on the program as announced some time ago by those in charge are the tennis matches which will be played with Reed College instead of College of Puget Sound and the Linfield track meet which has been shifted to Friday afternoon at McMinnville. Otherwise the program is complete.

U. OF O. FRIENDSHIP DOLL

This doll, dressed in the height of Nipponese fashion, was sent by students of Japan to those at the University of Oregon as a token of friendship. The doll stands in a case in the Geology building, surrounded by toys of exquisite workmanship.

WHERE U. OF O. SUMMER SCHOOL GOES

Both travel and study will be offered students by the University of Oregon next summer, when the summer session ship will make the trip to Hawaii and return, with ample time there for both work and play. Classes will be held at the University of Hawaii and Punahou campus. Left to right, above, Hawaii in Honolulu; and one of the buildings of the historic Punahou campus, the oldest educational institution west of the Rocky mountains. Below, the library that summer session students will use at the University of Hawaii. Extra curricula activities at the Hawaiian summer session may include a few hula lessons.

land is credited as being the individual who broke down Lawson's first alibi and so completely unnerved the lad that the exact circumstances were soon related. Squirrel Sighted in Garden Says Youth

"I had been working in the garden about 8:30 o'clock when I saw a squirrel in a big tree in the yard," the youth declared. "Mr. Dickinson had always wanted us to kill any of those squirrels. I went into the house and got the shotgun from its place beneath the stairs and went outside. Mrs. Dickinson was sitting in a chair, sewing. When I got outside the squirrel was gone."

"I went back into the house, taking the gun, and had just entered the room in which Mrs. Dickinson was sitting. I did not stop to take out the shell," Lawson said, "but was walking slowly. I must have had my fingers on the trigger and the hammer caught on my clothes. The next thing I knew the gun went off."

Mrs. Dickinson threw up her hands but made no sound, slumping in the chair, Lawson declared. He was badly frightened and did not stop to see how badly she was injured. He then went upstairs and changed his clothes to a clean shirt and pair of light colored corduroy pants such as most schoolboys wear. The gun was placed in the bathroom instead of its customary place.

"I was too frightened to think of anything other than getting to Portland and seeing my father," Lawson said. "I got the sedan out of the garage and started for Independence. I knew there was not much oil as I had heard Mr. Dickinson say so, and when I got to Brunk's corner, I bought another quart."

Lawson said he did not drive fast, but had little money. By the time he reached Oregon City he began to think that perhaps he might be arrested how driving the machine, so he abandoned it on the street where it was later found by the sheriff's office.

Taking a bus into Portland, young Lawson first went to the home of his father, W. L. Lawson, 419 1/2 Williams avenue, and then to the Albina shops of the O. W. R. & N. railroad where his father is employed as a mechanic.

SPECIAL ELKS CAR ARRIVES IN SALEM

One of four Elks' "prosperity cars" whose arrival at Atlantic City, New Jersey July 7 will signal the opening of the grand lodge convention, arrived in Salem Thursday afternoon at 8 p.m. and was met at the city limits by Exalted Ruler H. H. Hulseley and past Exalted Ruler William Paulus.

The visiting car, a Viking eight, painted with the official purple and white of the Elks lodge, was escorted by a local group of cars with George Edwards, traffic officer leading, about the city.

J. P. Alexander and David Smith, members of the Oregon Auto company which distributes the Olds-Viking line, were in the line of march.

The caravan went to the state house and the visitors, including William J. Cunningham, a representative of the Chicago office of the Elks magazine and I. S. Preble, northwest manager for the United States Rubber company, were introduced to Secretary of the State Hoss and State Treasurer Kay.

At night the visitors were entertained by the lodge members here, movies of Atlantic City being shown as well as views of the Chicago office of the Elks magazine.

A feature of the visit was the reading of President Hoover's recent message to the lodge in which he stresses the service the lodge can do in the restoration of public confidence.

PROHIBITION LAWS ARE AGAIN FLAYED

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—An expression of opinion that six members of the Hoover cabinet are "convinced that the dry law is a failure," presented today to the senate lobby committee by William H. Stayton, chairman of the board of the association against the prohibition amendment, produced a number of quick replies from members of the president's official family.

Freely expressing his opinion concerning prohibition of high government officials, Stayton reiterated previous testimony before the committee that he thought President Hoover was "beginning to doubt whether prohibition can be enforced."

In addition, he said, four members of the president's law enforcement commission had told him they were "trying to work out a plan for some other distribution of liquor than that which is at present the law of the land."

This statement also drew a reply from Henry W. Anderson, a member of the commission, who said at his home at Richmond that he knew of no new plan under consideration for distribution of liquor. Anderson was one of the four members of that body mentioned by Stayton. The others were Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa, Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard university and a fourth he did not remember.

stabilization in the future "both in prevention and in remedy." Commission Considered To Study Situation

"If such an exhaustive examination of our economic system is approved, I shall," he said, "move to organize a body—representative of business, economics, labor and agriculture—to undertake it."

"I do believe that our experience shows that we can produce helpful and wholesome effects in our economic system by voluntary cooperation through the great associations representative of business, industry, labor and agriculture, both nationally and locally. "And it is my view that in this field of cooperative action outside of government lies the hope of intelligent information and wise planning, the government can be helpful in emergency, it can be helpful to secure and spread information."

Disturbances Not Yet Entirely Passed, Word The president warned, however, that any such action "must adhere steadfastly to the very bones of our economic system, which are the framework of progress."

"We are not yet entirely through the difficulties of our situation," he added. "We have need to maintain every agency and every force that we have placed in motion until we are far along on the road to stable prosperity."

"He would be a rash man who would state that we can produce the economic millennium, but there is great assurance that America is finding herself upon the road to secure social satisfaction, with the preservation of private industry, initiative and a full opportunity for the development of the individual."

General Summary of Situation Is Given Inquiring into the progress of recovery from the slump, the president said that confidence and courage have been maintained; monetary panic and credit stringency have been avoided; interest rates have decreased since the crash and capital has become steadily more abundant; investment markets have absorbed over $2,000,000,000 of new securities since the crash and that there had been no significant bank of industrial failure. There have been no substantial reductions in wages, he said, and no strikes or lockouts connected with the situation.

The acceleration of construction programs had been successful, Hoover continued "beyond our hopes."

At the same time, the president said, "we are suffering from a decrease in residential construction. In spite of this," he added, however, "we have reason to believe that the total construction will still further expand and we should during 1930 witness a larger gross volume of improvement work than normal."

FIERY TALK MADE BY MOTHER JONES

SILVER SPRINGS, Md., May 1.—(AP)—Sitting under an apple tree surrounded by friends of labor who had come to celebrate her 100th birthday, Mother Jones made as fiery a speech today as she did 50 years ago when exhorting miners to strike.

Her cheeks were pink with excitement, labor leaders carried the frail little old lady dressed in her best black silk to the front yard of the Walter Burgess country home.

Her iron will has pulled her through weeks spent in bed that she might live to see this day. Scores of telegrams received from labor union all over the country, masses of flowers and a large birthday cake bearing 100 candles keyed her up for the ordeal of being the center of an admiring throng all day long.

Out on the lawn she faced the cameras, took a deep breath and a drink of water and launched into an impromptu speech which brought loud applause.

A dog enjoying a nap in the May sunshine jumped to his feet as the dauntless white-haired leader said in a ringing voice: "America was not founded on dollars but on the blood of men who gave their lives for your benefit. Power lies in the hands of labor to retain American liberty but labor has not yet learned how to use that power." A wonderful power is in the hands of women, too, but they don't know how to use it. Capitalists sidetrack the women into clouds and make ladies of them. Nobody wants a lady, they want women. Ladies are parlor parasites."

Though Jones lives in a country home without a telephone and on an unpaved road, loyal labor

JAP CONSULATE AT HARBIN ATTACKED

TOKYO, May 2.—(Friday)—(AP)—Rengo News Agency dispatches from Harbin, Manchuria today said a mob of Chinese and Korean radicals attacked the Japanese consulate general at Harbin last night, throwing stones, smashing windows and damaging offices. No casualties were reported. Chinese police arrested 32 members of the mob.

The Korean students, alleged to be members of the "Koma independence league" the purpose of which is to overthrow the Japanese regime in Korea, were among those arrested.

Farrar Slated To Retain Job At Post Office

Postmaster John Farrar received a wire yesterday from Senator McNary to effect that recommendation had been put through official channels that Farrar be reappointed to the postmastership here. This is taken to mean that Farrar's reappointment will go through.

Mr. Farrar will have completed his second term or eighth year as he has worked in the postal force here about 32 years ago, serving

ROAD FOREMEN FOR SUMMER APPOINTED

Designation of four men to act as road foremen for county work during the summer season has been made, Lester Van Cleve, John Griessbauer, Lee Wells and William McIlwaine being chosen. During part of the season these men will supervise the work of two crews, leaving a straw boss in charge during their absence.

Work has already begun on the Fern ridge market road out from Stayton, a big county caterpillar being sent to Stayton yesterday to start work on some corners which are to be cut from the road in the north part of the city proper. McIlwaine will have charge of the construction on this road.

According to County Commissioner Porter, the county will do as much work as possible this season on the Fern Ridge and the north part of the city proper. McIlwaine will have charge of the construction on this road.

Granting that present weather conditions hold, several more crews will be out soon according to Porter. Work on the Grabenhorst market road shortcut from Pringle to the Pacific highway has commenced.

Job printing of all kinds; phone 500.
