Chamber of Commerce Hold Final Meeting of the Season

WOODBURN, May 15.—The final meeting of the Woodburn Chamber of Commerce before the summer recess was well attended at the St. Luke's Community hall where all the candidates to displace were special guests to dinner. Senator Harry L. Corbett, candidate for the republican nomination for governor being the principal speaker of the evening.

Following the banquet the president opened the brief business meeting and in the reading of the minutes of the last meeting it was added that more funds had been added to the collection secured by the committee under C. J. Espy for the Boy Scouts and the fund is now $194, the quota being $200.

H. F. Butterfield of the committee which is cooperating with a similar group from the Garden Contest in this city announced that the prizes necessarily must be paid and he suggested that the chamber vote $10 to defray the amount being appropriated.

O. E. Lee, local manager of the Standard Oil plant here and a new resident in the city, was introduced as a new member of the chamber. R. J. Glatt, Gerald Smith, O. S. Olson, T. M. Sanderson, James E. Heers, Lester Smith, E. T. Sims, E. J. Allen, H. M. Austin, John Ramage, Roy Falconer, Carl Hanson and Rex Bentley were appointed by the president as a committee to attend to the soliciting of the stamps in the Oregon advertising campaign which is being launched by the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce.

Employment Asked

P. L. Love of the labor committee asked the cooperation of the chamber in letting him know if any of them needed hired help which would enable him to direct the persons who come to him inquiring of the whereabouts of employment.

The evening being dedicated to them, the groups were generously sprinkled with candidates and the local entry, F. W. Settlemyer, candidate for the state senate introduced the following candidates: Senator Sam H. Brody, Senator Lloyd Reynolds; candidates for representative, Otto K. Paulus, Robey Radcliffe, James W. Mott, Otto J. Wilson, Mark H. Paulson, Lee McCallister, Romeo Goulet, Ivan C. Martin, Dr. Carlton Smith, Robin Day and Mrs. Jennie Booth Fisher; Jim Smith, candidate for county commissioner and Guy Smith, candidate for circuit judge.

John P. Hunt introduced the speaker of the evening, Senator Harry Corbett who talked on the future development of Oregon and urged the people not to become discouraged because of the period of general depression because it is still evident that progression has been continuing despite this handicap and that other such "hard times" have been survived without any fatalities.

Daily, as President of Alibi Archer's Club, Is Speaker Before Chamber

Revival of Archery Interestingly Discussed; May 24 Set for Second Annual State Tournament to Be Held at Monmouth

MONMOUTH, April 15.—L. L. Daily, instructor of archery at the Oregon Normal school, and president of the Alibi Archers' club of Monmouth, was guest speaker Tuesday at the weekly luncheon of the Corvallis chamber of commerce, using as his theme the modern revival of archery.

He introduced his subject by touching on the romance of ancient archery as a sport; as a method of obtaining food; and as an early means of warfare. His talk was so enthusiastically received that he held a round table discussion lasting more than an hour following the luncheon.

During the past two years Mr. Daily has served as minister of the local Baptist church and has prominently identified himself with church activities of the city; as a member of the American Legion; and in his organization of the local community archery club; also by his affiliation with the Oregon Normal as instructor of archery. The first state archery tournament ever held in Monmouth was sponsored here last summer through his personal efforts, and it was so successfully promoted that the state archery association granted Monmouth second choice for a tournament date this season. Due to conflicts with the Normal school's calendar of springtime events, the local tournament was postponed to third place in point of time which will occur May 24.

Practice Meet Weekly

A large and varied group of Monmouth folk has become interested in archery, and a practice meet is held each week. Almost every boy in Monmouth yearns to draw a bow as did his forefathers of old, and possibly this primitive intuition underlies the kinship between Daily and the local youth for his leadership among the boys here is often remarked upon as phenomenal. Few Saturdays pass on which the Daily automobile, well laden with boys and with picnic provender, does not journey to coast or mountain section for a glorious all day outing, replete with hiking, boating, fishing, camp cooking, and all the other activities of the trail that the heart of a boy craves as his normal birthright.

In spare moments Daily has made a thousand bows, many of them of Oregon yew wood; and a corresponding number of arrows. He has tramped literally hundreds of miles in the mountains hunting for the choice yew trees; and has given more than ordinary time and attention to the study of archery and the application of its principles as a wholesome out-of-door sport for men, women and children.

He might have become a noted professional exponent of archery, had he labored to the end; but he has chosen to cast his lot among the congregation of a small church; and to devote his time and efforts to the spiritual and to the every-day needs of his people.
