REPORT ON TREATY TO BE FAVORABLE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—A favorable report on the London naval limitations treaty to the senate by the foreign relations committee sometime next week was predicted today by its sponsors.

The first week of hearings on the pact has developed a sharp conflict of opinion among American naval officials on the merits of the pact but there were indications at the capitol today that this dispute was regarded more as a technical row among naval experts. However, pending completion of the hearings next week, no one is making any public claims on the outcome.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, whose voice in the treaty discussions will go a long way, was definitely counted today among advocates of the limitations agreement.

Borah and the forceful Senators Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, and Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, of the American delegation to London, was regarded as forming a combination of orators that would give the treaty a distinct advantage in the prospective senate contest.

Senator Borah is taking the position that it would work more harm to the cause of disarmament to reject the limitations than it would to the exact make up of the American navy to accept it.

Three republicans have voiced sharp criticism of the pact in putting questions to witnesses in the first week of hearings—Senators Johnson, California; Hale, Maine; and Robinson, Indiana—but the foe conceded today that a fight against the pact was a losing one.

COURT'S BUSINESS IS LITTLE DELAYED

Election returns apparently held up business in the county courthouse little but routine matters being attended to. Circuit court, which adjourns for Friday's election, did not convene Saturday but Judge Percy Kelly will reopen the May term Monday morning with a heavy docket facing him.

Five complaints were filed with the county clerk.

Arlene Goodman asks a divorce from Kermit Goodman whom she married in August, 1928. She says her husband is possessed of a violent temper which he often employed to make life miserable for her. She asks the restoration of her maiden name of Arlyne Bitworth.

Lenora M. Pound, who married Orman A. Pond in Kansas in 1901, asks a divorce, alleging that her husband deserted her eight years ago and never returned to live with her.

Three suits were instituted to collect on notes alleged to be owed the plaintiffs. One was that of Brownell and Slocum vs. P. H. Bell. Another was that of Lena M. Schaff vs. Roy J. Haney, et al. The third was that of Hawkins and Roberts, Inc. vs. Henry J. Neeman, et al.

GOLD STAR WOMEN VISIT OLD GRAVES

PARIS, May 17.—(AP)—Gold star mothers and widows of the United States, who have come to France to visit the graves of their war dead, wept today at a tribute from the officer who directed their men in battles of the world war.

It was the end of a thrill-packed day for the first pilgrimage of American women and when General John J. Pershing, his own eyes moist, thanked them in simple words for the mother love which sustained the American expeditionary forces twelve years ago, they gave way to emotion.

General Pershing's talk was the light of a reception which followed the ceremony of laying a wreath on the tomb of France's unknown soldier at the Arc de Triomphe. At this ceremony Mrs. Sarah Thompson of New York

PUBLIC MARKET TO BE OPENED

Chambers Returns From Inspection Trip to Announce Plan

Fresh from a trip to inspect the public markets in Tacoma, Seattle and Portland, and convinced that the idea can be introduced here, J. William Chambers, of the former Chambers and Chambers furniture store, announced this week end that he will push plans to open a public market in his store building at 375 North High.

Chambers found that all public markets in the cities visited were making splendid progress and found several ideas which he will put in use here. Associated with him will be his son, L. Reed Chambers.

The new enterprise will be called The Mart, and under the one cover will be housed many individual enterprises, such as both ladies' and gents' ready-to-wear shops, beauty parlor, millinery shop, dress making, candy kitchen, dishes and china, draperies, electrical shop and practically any other which apply.

Forty thousand square feet of space is available in the store including first floor, basement, and mezzanine floor. According to the plans now made, 40 enterprises will be accommodated comfortably on the main floor and mezzanine. At present, the 84 by 165 feet basement will not be utilized, although if the business is as satisfactory as it promises, this will be used in time. It is probable, for a farmers' market.

A number of local business houses have already applied for space in The Mart, and if everything goes well, doors will be open shortly after the first of the month.

A new idea which Mr. Chambers has introduced is to charge a percentage on sales, instead of a flat rental as is done in most such establishments.

METHODISTS DECIDE HARD CONTROVERSY

DALLAS, Tex., May 17.—Another controversial subject before the Methodist Episcopal church, South, was settled today when the quadrennial general conference here voted to enlarge Episcopal supervision by addition of three superintendents to the college of bishops. The new bishops who will bring the total to 16, will be named at a secret election next week.

Opponents of the memorial reported by the committee on episcopacy declared it would cost the church $100,000 a quadrennium, with each bishop's salary and expenses amounting to at least $5,000 a year. The salary is $6,000.

The conference failed to reach an agreement on the proposal to unify church funds into a single "budget" fund and the subject was made a special order for Tuesday. Today's session closed with a devotional accompanying a report on the spiritual state of the church.

The report of the special committee on financial systems, made a special order for Tuesday, recommended that the 20 odd funds asked of individual churches be unified into a single fund, the only exceptions being voluntary offerings for the general board of missions, the superannuate endowment fund, and continued through the coming quadrennium and the Golden Cross enrollment for the benefit of the general hospital board.
