The plaintive piea of the fight an, "Why don't we have some ight eards?" is still being heard. Amen, brothers. But who will we get to fight? There aren't any main event fighters in town, and salem fans won't support main events from out of town. Quod erat demonstrandum, as the pick and shovel men say.

-0-The only solution is to build the game up again in the old, tedious fashion; bill the boys that are available with possibly a couple of eight round fights or three sixes fit the prices to the attractions and accept the patronage as it comes. Maybe it's the wrong time of year. We're in no hurry, but if we don't get to see some fights next fall, we're going in the producing business ourself.

--◊--Bob Boardman loaned us a book on sport writing. We were frankly skeptical about its possible values, but we found out it was no patent medicine claimed to produce sport writers after one treatment. Here are a few quotations: "Knowledge of sport is demanded of the sport writer. He is called upon to interpret games, to review seasons, to compare teams, to estimate the significance of results and the value of players. To do a first class piece of work he must have a general knowledge cial knowledge of persons or something of its development. The final week, special knowledge should include Scores we up-to-date information on the pa ticular subject of the news."

All right, boys, step right up and apply for our job.

"A knowledge of good Englis is particularly important in spo writing because of the failure so many sport writers to use goo English." The author adds the this is particularly noticeable or the smaller papers. -0-

What a queer idea this fellow has! Isn't "palooka" good English? What are our sport pages coming to? -0-

Anyway, most of the book is devoted to more or less "model" stories and some good, live columns, so if we don't take the hunch and brighten up this one Hoog pretty soon it's our owi \rightarrow
