FRENCH HONOR YANK MOTHERS

New Note Observed in Memorial Day Exercises In Europe

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—America's gold star mothers today lent a new note to Memorial day in Europe.

The presence of several hundreds of them at the several ceremonies in France furnished texts for speakers and inspired the thousands who heard them with the significance of the observance which has been maintained in their sister republic for three-score years.

With all France paying homage to the mothers and the sons whom they came here to honor, it was pointed out that today's celebration and the pilgrimages would do more than diplomacy could do to smooth out the petty differences that had crept into Franco-American relations since the close of the war.

A "silent but complete understanding" between French and American women bereaved by the war, was dwelt upon in several places by orators as certain to overcome the "barrier of language differences and difficulties of distance and endure above all temporary and petty interruptions."

Save for the thousands of graves of war dead that stretched out before them, the memorial day participants in France saw scenes which have been going on in thousands of American communities since the close of the Civil War.

While America has its cemeteries in which war veterans are grouped, they are few. Here are fields of white crosses and green mounds beneath which doughboys and pollus sleep in everlasting glory.

At Bony where General Pershing and Major General William H. Johnston were speakers, a solemn benediction was pronounced upon the dead by Mrs. Mary C. Stolger of Miami, one of the mothers whose son rests where he fell on the "Hindenburg line."

On the slopes of Mt. Valerien, overlooking Paris in the Suresnes cemetery, Ambassador Edge lauded the American and French veterans and their departed and spoke of a new era of peace. He praised results of the London naval conference in which America and France joined in a new attempt to disarmament.

Salem's population had reached 26,161 yesterday, and it is expected it will go to 26,200 before the books are closed. At the present time the census headquarters staff is bending efforts to finish the Yamhill and Polk county counts. Five enumerators, two in Yamhill and three in Marion, are still working. A mistake in the count in Yamhill county's section of the Grand Ronde Indian reservation, in which the enumerator failed to make separate listing of the Indians, has been discovered.

Mrs. Wayne Henry, assistant supervisor, will be in that section probably Sunday to straighten out this matter.

CHAIRMAN CHOSEN IN VOICE EVENT

Lena Belle Tartar, director of music in the Salem public schools has been chosen by J. N. Chambers, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to serve as chairman for the annual Atwater Kent audition contest.

Already notices have been sent to several of the young folks interested in singing, announcing that the annual audition this year would be held on Wednesday evening, June 11 at the Knight Memorial church, where the audition was held last year.

Music teachers who have classes in Salem have also been notified of the annual audition, suggesting that they urge their pupils to take part in the program.

So far, responses to the notices of the audition have been generous and already nine young folk have sent in their applications, and indications are that about the same number will take part as in former years.

The only conditions for those who participate, are that they must be between the ages of 18 and 25 years and that they have not appeared as professionals in the chamber of commerce. There is no expense whatever to those taking part in the audition, nor is there an admission charge when the program is presented.

According to J. N. Chambers, president of the chamber of commerce, sponsoring the audition because it is good experience for young musicians to take part in such musical affairs, and there is a chance to win in the final state auditions held next fall in Portland.

WOODBURN SCHOOL BONDS HELD VALID

School bonds authorized by Woodburn voters at a special election May 16 are valid and will be purchased by the state. Treasurer Tom Kay announced this week.

He said minor irregularities in the issuance of the bonds would not render them illegal. The state paid $100.21 for each bond which bears five and one half per cent.

Irregularities included in the transcript of the bond issuance shows that the number of sheets in the transcript was incorrectly stated, the proof of publication was omitted and a certificate from the county assessor showing the assessed value of all property in the territory, was not included.

Techne Club Production Wins Praise

Of all the excellent productions given by the high school groups this year in the student assembly periods it took the Techne club stunt presented Thursday noon to literally "steal the show." Much credit is due the advisor of this group of art students, Miss Ruth Brauti.

Enthusiasm for the three-scene idea which presented art from ancient to modern times started with the smallest students and ranged to the largest teachers, apparent. Particularly commended was the second scene, revolving about the religious and called the Monastery Garden.

For this scene, central theme for which was a stained glass window and arch way at the rear of which was seen a rose garden, two monks, Harold Pruitt and Ward Horn, lighted the monastery candles while off stage Lena Belle Tartar sang an appropriate song to organ and cello accompaniment. Two other monks, Willard Moses and Fred Wolfe, knelt at each side of the arch while Kathleen Phelps, in white nun's robe, sang "In A Monastery Garden."

The first scene depicted Egyptian art, and carried through as did all the scenes the spirit of the times. In this, Alex Volchok was the pharaoh; Juanita Powell and Rose Lee Lusbaum gave the main Egyptian dance, with Roberta Mills and Elizabeth Bonnell assisting. Grace Holm and Kathleen Fitzpatrick also took part in the scene, art work for which was the inside of a temple with Egyptian decorations.

The third and last scene was entirely modern, the background being a circle of eight feet in diameter with brilliant splashes of color. At one side was a golden stair, at the other Roy Mack's orchestra, robed in moderate costumes. Participating in this scene were Rosa Lee Nusbaum, Jeanne Lunaford, Willard Moses, Byron Lillie and Virgil Harrison.
