

POWER PERMIT TO BE DENIED

Rogue River Closing Held Effective Though Application Prior

The state engineer has no authority to grant applications filed by Romaine W. Meyers of Oakland, Calif., and Charles H. Lee of Berkeley for water power rights on the Rogue river in Josephine county, according to a legal opinion handed down by I. H. Van Winkle, attorney general, here Tuesday. The proposed development was to cost approximately $23,000,000.

Rhea Lutz, state engineer, filed said he believed that the case would be carried into the courts for final determination. The attorney general held that the appropriations requested in the applications are prohibited by an act of the 1929 legislature notwithstanding that the applications were filed sometime prior to the passage of the act. The 1929 legislative act withdraws from appropriation the waters of Rogue river, in the district involved, except for domestic, stock, irrigation and municipal purposes, and prohibits the placing of any obstacles in the stream that would interfere with the free migration of fish.

Meiners and Lee have filed six applications with the state engineer. Four of these are for the appropriation of water for power, one for the construction of a dam and the other for the storage of water in a reservoir.

"A water right does not come into existence," read the attorney general's opinion, "until the application has been approved and the applicant has, subject to such approval, taken at least some steps to apply the water to the beneficial use authorized by the state engineer. This has not been done in this case, and it is my opinion that it cannot now be done."

Van Winkle indicated in his opinion that the legislature apparently had knowledge of Meyers and Lee applications at the time it passed the act.

The act originally was requested by the sportsmen of the Rogue river valley, who alleged that a continuation of power development on the stream, would interfere with fish migration and eventually eliminate the game fish.

RESULTS NOTED IN MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Forty squads of three members each were getting under way on Tuesday to secure at least 100 new members for the chamber of commerce. Led by Douglas McKay, chairman, and a dozen captains, the workers began their personal solicitation of individuals and firms not now affiliated with the chamber.

Several groups reported considerable success to the chamber leaders late Tuesday. Under system being used, duplicate prospect cards are employed, one being given the soliciting team and one being retained by the chamber manager.

Several solicitors reported uniformly favorable response to the chamber, the only excuse for not joining given by most prospects being shortage of money.

On starting the campaign Monday noon at the chamber of commerce meeting, McKay told the 125 men assembled that "chambers of commerce are necessary. No longer do you have to sell people on that fact," he added.

"Occasionally you find a complainant, but almost all business men put the chamber in the same class in their budget appropriations as taxes or rent."

Van Winkle indicated in his opinion that the legislature apparently had knowledge of Meyers and Lee applications at the time it passed the act.

MARKETING ACT HANDED PRAISE

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Condemned For Its Criticism

REDMOND, Ore., June 10 (AP)—George A. Palmier, master of the state grange, which opened its annual session here today, recommended the adoption of a resolution condemning the United States chamber of commerce for attacking the agricultural marketing act and commending chairman Legge of the federal farm board for defending the farmer.

Palmier also indorsed the development of water-borne commerce of the Columbia and Willamette rivers.

"The proper development of our inland waterways would, I believe, afford an additional method of transportation that would materially reduce cost of transporting many of our farm products to market."

Palmier declared transportation costs could be reduced by such development for Oregon and Washington as they have the operation of barge lines on the Mississippi.

In commenting on farming conditions in Oregon and Washington Palmier said "I cannot report to you much improvement in the condition of the farmer either in Oregon or Washington. With wheat at the lowest price for years, and thousands of bushels still in the hands of the growers; buttermilk at a low price, and the price of poultry and eggs low, the outlook for the producers of these commodities does not look encouraging for 1930."

The registration for the convention is 1975 and many more are expected.

VETERANS AID BILL IS GIVEN APPROVAL

(Continued from page 1.) close of this session, Senator Shortridge, republican, California, who presided at the finance committee meeting, and others who have been active in demands for liberalization declared they were confident the bill would be enacted at this session. Shortridge said he "indulged in the assumption that it passed substantially as presented, the president would sign it."

The senate committee cut down the outlay by limiting disabilities which would be presumed to be attributable to war service. It was estimated the house measure would have cost at least $150,000,000 a year in addition to funds now provided.

The house bill would have extended the period of presumption of service connection for all disabilities, for five years. The senate committee's provision would extend the period of presumption to about six chronic constitutional diseases and to leprosy.

Allowance to veterans in hospitals for non service-connected disabilities also would be provided by the senate draft, allowing $8 a month for veterans, $30 for their wives, and $5 additional for dependent children.

WALL STREET GETS OPTIMISTIC TREND

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Wall Street decided pessimism was being carried to extremes today, and in the stock market, bears were driven to cover, resulting in gains of $1 to $5 a share in most of the pivotal issues, while a few erratic shares shot up $8 to $18. The rally practically cancelled yesterday's losses.

Stocks did not begin to rally decisively until afternoon, when the market developed firm resistance to bear pressure, and traders who had sold short found no stock for sale save at rapidly rising prices. Considerable further selling had to be absorbed during the morning when trading was in large volume, the ticker falling nearly half an hour in arrears, but by early afternoon, the selling dwindled to a trickle. Before the selling ended, however, some 150 issues recorded new low levels for the year.

There are practically no calls for day work now, although many of the women and girls in need of jobs are seeking this kind of

The Indian press did not take as kindly to the initial statement of Sir John Simon's Indian government report today overshadowed all other developments in the Indian situation.

The Mail and the Telegraph saw in the report no prospect of self government at short notice and nothing to comfort Indian extremists who have demanded early establishment of a dominion status.

The Laborite Daily Herald insisted transition to a responsible government would have to be carried out as quickly as might be while the Liberal News and Chronicle foresaw a swing of government favor toward self rule in the commission's tribute to the manner in which the Indians have worked the constitution set up in 1929.

Judge Kelly to Be Speaker at Flag Day Event

Judge Percy R. Kelly will be the principal speaker at the annual Flag day program of the Salem Elks lodge which will be held in the Elks temple on Friday evening, June 13 beginning at 8 p. m.

The annual Flag day observance has been a custom of the B. P. O. E. for many years but since the day falls on Saturday this year the local lodge will have its program on the preceding Friday in order that more may attend.

The public is invited to attend this program which will be featured by music by the Elks orchestra and several vocal numbers.

LEAVING FRIDAY Prof. and Mrs. Roy Hewitt will leave Salem Friday night for New York City instead of Saturday as they had planned. This chance came about through a visit from Upton Close, whose South American tour Mr. Hewitt is managing this summer. Mr. Close was here Monday on his way from Los Angeles to Seattle, from which city he will leave on an Oriental cruise the latter part of June. Through the arrangements made Monday between Mr. Hewitt and Mr. Close, the Hewitts will go east by train rather than motor in order to save time and upon their arrival Mr. Hewitt will take over the New York office of Mr. Close until the date for the South American tour. The Hewitts expect to return to the United States in time to attend the Kiwanis convention in Toronto this fall.
