Gun Toter Says He Worked
For "Jake" But His
Veracity Doubted

Cross examined by the defense he said he had not investigated the reference to employment by Lingle because he saw no significance at the time.

Detective John Howe, Drury's partner, was asked regarding Kisan's reputation for veracity. He replied it was bad. His opinion was founded, he said, on his observation of Kisan's associations and on conversations about him with other policemen.

"Would you call Lingle a gangster?" Howe was asked. "No, I wouldn't because I never knew him," the detective said. Alderman Albert, urging his resolution for an investigation of the police, asserted city council must accept responsibility for the situation and "do the work the state's attorney does not or cannot do." He drew attention to the cleanup of Philadelphia by Brigadier General Smedley Butler.

"Is there any one," he asked, "who says these crimes could be committed without the connivance of police and gangsters?" "Chicago is governed by police captains for the benefit of police captains. The remedy is not to transfer a captain from one station to another, but to send the guilty ones to the penitentiary. Let us find out why police captains ride in Lincoln automobiles and live like Rockefeller while men are being shot down in the street."

Former Kaiser's Boat Excursion Meets Disaster

AMSTERDAM, June 18.—(AP)—A boat on which part of an excursion party organized by former Kaiser Wilhelm was crossing Lake Kaag near Leyden, blew up this afternoon. Five were seriously injured. The ex-kaiser was sailing on another boat. The victims included the ex-kaiser and a mechanic. The ex-kaiser and the Princess Hermine were uninjured, but greatly perturbed by the accident, which has not been explained.

In the presence of great art, overpowering human emotion, or a perfect truth one's reaction is silence. Why spoil a complete thing with words? Some such situation is true concerning one's reaction to "All Quiet on the Western Front," now showing at Fox Elisnore. Words are hardly capable of doing anything worthy of that picture. However, you who have not seen it want to know whether to see it, or not to see it. You will want to know if it is so much a war picture that you will not want to see it. Others will want to know if it is really true enough of war to make it worth while seeing.

It is a superb picture. In fact it is more than a picture, it is an accurately, realistically interpreted life which only the few, thank heaven, know about by actual experience.

It is a picture whose subject matter strips bare for the public a phase of life, which to the layman is wrapped about with glamour, glory, and explosive enthusiasm.

When you are done with viewing the picture you will spend the next few days wondering. You will realize why you could not understand to many who came from "over there." Your own son, or your brother, or your best friend no longer seemed to stir to the idealism which had been his once. After seeing "All Quiet on the Western Front" it is safe to wager you will understand.

You will wonder if your hatred for the "Hun" was rightly placed; you will wonder if after all we have any intelligent excuse for calling ourselves civilized when of our fundamental ideas, patriotism and loyalty, taught in school, fostered by the church and developed in the home is null and void.

BYRD RETURNS FROM EXPLOITS

Triumphal Marine Parade
Today Will Welcome
Explorer Home

Three thousand troops will precede the admiral and his fellow explorers up Broadway through one of the paper snowstorms with which the financial district delights to hail its heroes, and at city hall the formal city welcome will take place, with loud speakers carrying the addresses to the crowds in the plaza outside.

And then begins for Admiral Byrd a round of receptions, dinners, and welcoming ceremonies that will last, almost without cease, until July 11, when he will be received by the people of Chicago.

A luncheon by the advertising club follows the welcome at city hall, the press will be met by the admiral in his hotel suite in mid-afternoon, there will be a dinner by the Merchant's association in the evening, and a special train will leave for Washington at midnight, and so the program will go for the next three weeks.

MORROW LANDSLIDE MARGIN INCREASED

NEWARK, N. J., June 18.—(AP)—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow's plurality in yesterday's republican state primary for nomination as United States senator had reached 293,477 tonight with only 54 of the state's 3364 precincts unreported.

Only the pluralities received by Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover in 1924 and 1928 exceeded the landslide for Morrow. Latest indications were that the final tabulation would boost his lead to above 300,000.

The vote, with the 54 scattered precincts missing, stood tonight: Morrow 408,432; Franklin W. Fort, 114,755; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 47,171.

Mr. Morrow ran on a platform advocating repeal of the 18th amendment and rearm of liquor traffic control to the states. He swept every county in the state, including Somerset and Essex, the respective homes of Frelinghuysen and Fort.

Clara Bow Gets Into Limelight With Balm Fund

LOS ANGELES, June 18.—(AP)—Clara Bow, red-headed film flame, whose visit to Dallas, Texas, coupled with her announcement there she was settling an old love score created a headline furor, added more fuel to the conflagration tonight. In a long distance telephone conversation with local writers in the city, the actress declared she paid off a woman who had threatened her with a breach of promise suit, with $25,000 taken from a fund made up at the studio that held her under contract by extracting $500 a week from her pay check. Miss Bow said the fund was the nature of a guarantee for the producer that she would live up to her contract, including a "morality clause."

B. P. Schulberg, general manager of the studio, when reached late tonight said a fund existed, but for another purpose.

LIQUOR'S ECONOMIC ASPECTS OUTLINED

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, June 18.—(AP)—D. A. Sloan, dry agent, testified today in the Shoshone county liquor conspiracy trial that the mayor of Wallace told him the city was "wide open" because business men did not want to go to other north Idaho towns.

Sloan quoted former Mayor W. D. Herrick as saying he would be "glad to have the liquor places closed, but the business men were raising a kick because Kellogg and Mullan were running wide open."

The government charges 40 Wallace residents, including important officials, with conspiring for wholesale violation of the dry laws by winking at rum and vice and by collecting revenue from sales of whiskey.

"Herrick said the city needed money for bridges and viaducts and things like that," continued Sloan, "and that he felt no jury would vote to convict when there was no personal graft or wrongdoing."

Questioning of other witnesses had repeatedly elicited statements that all tribute levied on liquor went into the city treasury, one half being used for support of the school system and half for the city.

Other witnesses were men and women who admitted paying money to the police judge in return for "protection" and described sale of liquor, operation of gambling places and similar illicit operations. A score or more establishments were named as places where whiskey could easily be obtained.

Alcock Says He Will Clean 'Em

CHICAGO, June 18.—(AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson today gave acting commissioner of police, John H. Alcock, a "free rein" and ordered him to rid the city of gangsters.

Alcock announced "that's all I needed—now I'll do the rest."

Somewhere near Tucson last night the fliers encountered a terrific storm, they said. Brock was at the controls and Schlee at the radio. Schlee passed up a note to the pilot.

"I think we are going to have a ball out," it read. Brock said he already had fastened a flashlight to his parachute straps having had the same fear of their predicament. They were being bounced about the craft terribly, he said, and as they tried to run from one storm, they ran into another.

19 W. U. GRADS TO TEACH NEXT YEAR

At least 19 graduates of this year at Willamette university have received teaching positions in various high schools throughout the state through the efforts of the appointment bureau of the university. It is possible that more than that figure have been placed as it is believed a few of them did not report to the registrar.

The appointment bureau is an unofficial branch of the dean's and registrar's office and has been of invaluable service to graduates who seek positions.

Among the graduates of the class of 1936 who are to teach next year are: Marjorie Miller, Ketchikan, Alaska; Lydia Childs, Brownsville; Gaynelle Beckett, Haines; Fay Janice Irvine, Myrtle Point; Helen McPherson, Woodburn; Dorothy Whipple, Woodland, Wash.

Helen Hughes, Molalla; Marjorie Nelson, Burns; Frances McGilvra, Bellefontaine; Katherine Everett, Stayton; Dorothy Hutchason, Merrill; Harold Hawk, Pariah Junior high; Margaret Pro, Salem; Myrtle Vannice, girls' industrial school; Marie Messer, Singapore; Eugene Silke, Perrydale; Sarah Poor, Corbett; Margaret Bolt, Pendleton; and Maida Caldwell, Joseph. PROPAGANDA HOLDS SWAY SAYS WRITER

MILWAUKEE, June 18.—(AP)—The charge that official Washington is the foundationhead of the most widespread propaganda in the entire country, was made by William L. Daley, Washington representative of the National Editorial association, in an address today before the association convention.

He declared that "propaganda" holds sway from the White House to the most obscure clerk. It is noteworthy that many a suspicious editor who frequently checks "free publicity" seldom balks at printing "news" manufactured by government officials for the purpose of influencing public opinion. "It is true that much trustworthy information emanates from the census bureau, the treasury department, and such sources, but the stamp of the government on a bulletin does not establish its news value."
