CANNERY WORK WILL INCREASE

Royal Anne Cherries and Loganberries Due to Arrive This Week

Work in local canneries will increase during the next week when Royal Anne cherries and loganberries are expected to arrive in large quantities. A few cherries were delivered during the past week but the supply was limited. The bulk of the crop is expected to be ready in another week or ten days.

Black cherries will be ready by the middle of the week if present weather conditions prevail. The bulk of the black cherry crop will be sent to the eastern market as fresh fruit.

The Royal Anne crop is not expected to go over 40 per cent of normal but the black cherry yield promises to be heavy. Most local growers have sold for seven cents a bushel, a few sold earlier in the season for six and one-half.

The strawberry pack is about completed and the crop has been even less than was at first estimated. Many districts report no more than a 25 per cent yield of Etterbergs and the berries are for the most part unusually small. The Marshalls were of good quality and side but the season was short.

Red raspberries are appearing in small quantities in local markets but cannery work will not be underway for another week.
