The domestic winter wheat harvest, especially in the west and southwest, was reported as making rapid progress, and export demand spheared to be tempor-erily at a standstill, affording no outlet for the big surplus of last year's wheat on hand, let alone the new wheat piling up. For the year just ended, North American wheat exports were announced today assismest 200,000 bushels less than possible the turning out of the for the 12 months previous.
Clasing quotations on wheat were unsteady at the day's bottom level, 1 8-8-2c

No doubt the Mt. Angel group will soon be retting and scutching flax. Possibly, later, spinning flax yarn. And this may happen in many communities-is certain to happen in time. Some of these enterprises will lead to weaving and specialty mills. They will just naturally grow from small cooperative industries into
