Scale Gliders
First, Max Morrow, 1870 North Cottage street; wins free glider course offered by Claud Grimm.

Second, Robert Olsen, 611 South Water street, Silverton; wins bronze aviation medal offered by The Statesman.

Third, Ronald Miller; wins one month pass to Fox Elnore theatre.

Fourth; Paul Franklin; wins ribbon.

Above are the results of the airplane and glider contest for boys under 18 years of age, conducted by The Statesman, the Fox Elnore theatre, the Eyerly Aircraft corporation and the Grimm glider school. Time trials for the flying models were held Wednesday on Sweetland field and the scale models were judged at the theatre.

Competition was keen, especially among entries in the scale models contests both for planes and gliders, and the judges, Lee Eyerly and Howard Grimm, had difficulty in picking the winners. Some excellent flying was also exhibited by the young aviators and glider students.

Prizes will be awarded formally at the Fox Elnore theatre Saturday afternoon at the Mickey Mouse club hour, 1 o'clock. In case of prizes which cannot be brought into the theatre, such as airplane rides and glider instruction, certificates showing that the holder is entitled to these prizes will be presented.

HEALTH EDUCATION HOBBY OF CITY SUPERINTENDENT; INTEREST LONG SUSTAINED

George W. Hug Was Outstanding Athlete in University of Oregon Career

By OLIVE DOAK.
I waited to talk to George W. Hug, city superintendent of schools, until school was out this spring and in doing so I thought to avoid a hurried interview with a dozen and one questions to be asked while I was trying to get my own answers. But the plan was all wrong. George Hug does not stop working with the end of school. He has a continuous round of callers and appointments with hardly enough time for the needed exercise and golf for which he has an admitted weakness.

Mr. Hug is a medium tall, square shouldered man, hair greying a bit at the temples, whose rather deliberate movements fool one, and leave one unprepared for the quick flashes of speech or motion which betrays the spirit hidden under the deliberateness which made of him one of the outstanding athletes in the University of Oregon during his four years there. He was such a substantial factor in the university football timber of his time that he was named as one of the five "all time men" from among past football material in the University of Oregon.

That is not enough but he also has the distinction of being the first secretary of the old Northwestern conference which included the biggest colleges of the west, and which was the parent of the present Coast conference, one of the strongest athletic conferences in the United States. While Mr. Hug did not tell me about his athletic flare but it is true nevertheless.

His flare for athletics has grown into a deep and practical interest in health and the problems of "keeping well". Just recently he held a scholarship in health education to the University of Michigan where he studied. With the aid of valuable assistants he has built up one of the finest departments of school health in the Salem schools which exists in any school in the country.

During the past year Mr. Hug organized a class for health instruction for his teachers. One hundred and twenty-five teachers took this course which was designed not so much to give the teacher information that he could pass on to his students as it was designed to aid the teacher himself to live a better and more normal and healthful existence. To make the teacher think in terms of "their own health was the aim of Mr. Hug, and in addition to aid them in correlating all school work with the idea of health activity.

In speaking of health work Mr. Hug became very serious. Said he, "It is not only physical health but mental health as well that needs to be watched." From his pocket he took a letter from a friend, an author of outstanding educational books. A few lines from this letter developed that the friend had "crashed" from overwork and insufficient attention to his own health.

Mr. Hug has had many ambitions aside from the one of health for his students and his teachers. He organized the first junior high school in the west of McMinnville in 1914; he has been a regular attendant and supporter of the Inland Empire educational association meetings for the past 14 years; is now and has been for the past three years president of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher schools; has been instrumental in organizing five rooms where sub-normal children of the Salem school system may be studied and aided; organized in Salem a definite system of supervision of schools; organized through the University of Oregon an extension division in Salem where each winter adults may take university work from university instructors from the University of Oregon or Willamette university.

All these things and many more Mr. Hug has been instrumental in developing and like the ancestors from whose line he sprang he has pioneered many of his accomplishments.

Born in Eastern Oregon
Eastern Oregon claims Mr. Hug's birthplace. There in Sumnerville, a little town now hardly known in the Grand Ronde valley, just a few days after his parents had arrived from a cross country trip by covered wagon, George Hug was born. He received most of his education in country schools and in Elgin and La Grande. He taught two years before he entered the University of Oregon where he partly worked his way through school in addition to becoming outstanding in athletics and scholarship.

His work in school was all taken with the idea of becoming a teacher as the motivating principle. He graduated from the University with an A. B. in education.

In Salem 10 Years
His teaching experience has been in three towns over a period of 23 years. He has been in Salem ten years. Much of his school teaching has also added to his number of years in the teaching field.

What has teaching meant to him? His own statement during our conversation was that "The joy that comes from teaching is seeing students develop and make good when they go out into life and apply what they have learned. That is the teacher's completed product." Then Mr. Hug proceeded to point out people who had accomplished whom he had particularly watched. Their names include some of the best known men and women in the educational field today.

Mr. Hug is married and has three youngsters. He is a member of the Masonic lodge as well as of the Elks; he is a Rotarian, and a member of the Ilwaco country club. He was a member and one of the organizers of the Beta Theta Phi fraternity in the University of Oregon. In addition to this he can laugh, and what is more he can laugh at a joke on himself.

J. H. Hunt Again Interested in Pharmacy Here

J. H. Hunt, who two years ago sold most of his interest in a local drug store to his partner, George Nelson and joined Eli Lilly & Co., pharmaceutical house research division in Cuba, has returned to Salem to make his home.

Mr. Hunt recently repurchased an interest in the Nelson and Hunt store. Mr. Nelson has sold out the entire stock to A. T. Woolpert and Mr. Hunt and the store is to be run under the names of Woolpert and Hunt.
