

FIRE FIGHTERS FACING THREAT ON NEW FRONT

Odell Lake Recreation Area Imperiled as Flames Near Skyline Weary Force is Rushed in From Sisters Region Without Rest

BEND, Ore., July 15.—(AP)—Without pausing for rest 300 weary fire fighters tonight were hurrying southward toward Maklaks mountain, a 7500 foot peak near the south boundary of the Deschutes national forest, where a fire, belatedly under control, leaped across the restraining trenches and roared up the mountain side toward Odell Lake, one of Oregon's noted recreation centers.

A brisk wind whipped the flames upward and forest rangers feared the fire would race across the Oregon skyline and sweep into the timber along Odell Lake. The fire has been completely trenched last night but today it spread over the mountain on a steadily widening front. Rangers said a wind from the north will drive the fire into a virgin stand of yellow pine in the Hammer Butte area. Mt. Washington Blase Army Agains

Reports were received late today that the Deschutes fire in the Sisters district and east of Mount Washington apparently had broken over the trenches once more. Lookouts said great clouds of smoke were rolling up from Dug-out spring district but it was believed the northwest wind was driving the fire toward the Belknap crater fire beds.

The fire west of Bend, which destroyed about 300 acres of timber since Saturday, was trenched tonight but still was considered dangerous. Men were drawn from the front and sent to the Maklaks mountain fire but about 250 fighters were left to patrol the fire lines west of here.

Job Seekers Held Incompetent, Reported from Josephine county, recently were set by prospectors or persons who are seeking jobs fighting fires, according to information received at the offices of Lynn Cronmiller, state forester.

Twelve of the fires were discovered in a single day. Cronmiller said, and apparently had been started within a radius of a few miles. Five additional fires were reported in the same vicinity on the following day.

Cronmiller said that most of these fires had been extinguished or were under control. Reports received by the state forester Tuesday indicated that several large fires are still raging in the Bend country, with less serious fires reported in other parts of the state. In most of the timbered counties maximum patrols are now in service.

MILK MEN COMPLY WITH NEW RULINGS

Half of Producers Already Achieve "B" Rating, Inspector Says Already over half the milk producers in the county have earned a Grade B rating on their milk for pasteurizing, following substitution of the new milk ordinance for the old, states J. E. Blinckhorn, county dairy and food inspector.

Blinckhorn is spending a good deal of his time in the field now because of the new ordinance and inspections attendant upon seeing that it goes into effect all over as quickly as possible. Requests for re-inspections, after the producers have followed up the inspector's first recommendations, are coming in thick, and Blinckhorn is trying to make the second trips as rapidly as possible. Cooperation Given By Nearly All

Virtually all the milk producers are cooperating a hundred per cent in complying with the new ordinance, the inspector says. The greatest change that has been necessary is construction of the separate buildings stipulated in the ordinance.

Blinckhorn says he is allowing each producer a certain leeway in putting his plant up to requirement, but that in another two weeks he hopes to have all plants working with the ordinance.

REED-JOHNSON CLASH LIVES IN PACT DEBATES

Advocates of Naval Treaty Rest Case Following Delegate's Talk McKellar Offers Two More Reservations But Their Approval Unlikely

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Advocates of the London naval treaty closed their case before the senate today with an exposition of the agreement by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, one of the delegates, and tonight leaders were looking forward confidently to a final vote on the pact.

Next Tuesday has been suggested for a date to vote but there were no understandings and the determined band of opponents were cracking away at the treaty with considerable ammunition in store. Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, led the attack with a three hour speech today.

The Reed speech was heard by the largest attendance thus far during the special session. The opening roll call showed 80 members present. Others arrived during the day, virtually eliminating those of treaty advocates that lack of a quorum might break up the session.

Senator Johnson, republican, California, leader of the opposition, at conclusion of Reed's address, engaged him in one of the most spirited of their many exchanges. Johnson demanded the text of the first American proposal submitted to London. Reed promptly submitted it.

This proposal embodied the demand of the Americans for a new warship, Stimson said this was urged as a "trading point."

Once more Johnson and Reed clashed over the papers relating to the London conference which President Hoover has declined to turn to page 2, col. 1

Willamette Valley To Benefit in Rail Rate Cuts, Opinion

Order of I. C. C. Allowing Roads to Meet Water Competition Favorable in That Increases for Inland Points Denied, Experts Say

ORDER of the interstate commerce commission allowing Pacific coast railroads to meet steamboat competition in rate charges, will result in substantial reductions in rates to intermediate points along the Southern Pacific lines in Oregon, according to A. F. Harvey, rate expert for the public service commission.

Harvey said it might not be necessary for the railroads to reduce their port terminal rates to Portland, but that the water competition would result from the provision of the order requiring that intermediate rates be held to a maximum of not more than 100 per cent above charges to ports.

In case the terminal rates are reduced further benefit would accrue to intermediate points. Harvey declared that still further benefits would be felt in case the railroads establish the same port terminal rates at Seattle as at Portland.

William P. Ellis, traffic attorney of Salem, who represented the Western Oregon Traffic association, composed of many western Oregon chambers of commerce south of Portland, in the case of the railroads which sought to meet water competition in rate charges, issued the following statement in connection with Tuesday's decision of the interstate commerce commission.

"Without any opportunity to examine the decision, it is impossible to say what effect the rates will have on western Oregon. I can say, however, that the decision is a victory for western Oregon communities intermediate between Salem and Portland, and that substantial rate reductions may be expected to result from a compliance with the interstate commerce commission decision."

"This is particularly true as to (Turn to page 2, col. 1)

N. COMMERCIAL SPAN PROJECT DRAWS ATTACK

L. A. Scheelar Files Suit Asking Injunction Against City Damages to His Property Result of Trespass Planned, Claim

Injunction proceedings against the city of Salem which may be up construction of the North Commercial street bridge were filed in circuit court here late yesterday by L. A. Scheelar and his wife, Blanche I. Scheelar.

The Scheelars set forth in their complaint seeking the injunction to restrain the city from erecting bridge and approach which would extend over their property, that such construction would do irreparable damage to their property.

The Scheelars seek order, according to the wording of the complaint, "Granting temporary injunction restraining and enjoining said city of Salem from entering upon, trespassing and constructing bridge and approach to said bridge on property of plaintiffs unless defendant shows cause therefore."

Permanent Order Seeking to make the injunction permanent, the complaint further "prays for an order granting a permanent injunction restraining and enjoining the defendant therefrom and that the plaintiff recover costs and disbursements in the case."

M. B. Hayden and H. L. Crook are representing the plaintiffs. No action was taken on the complaint yesterday inasmuch as it was filed just as the clerk's office closed for the day.
