H. H. STALLARD IN JAIL HERE

Fails to Pay Fine After He Is Found Guilty of Violation

H. H. Stallard of Portland, independent candidate for United States senator, was fined $25 in the recorder's court here Monday after he had pleaded not guilty to violating a city ordinance prohibiting street meetings in the business district.

Stallard refused to pay the fine and was locked in jail along with four alleged bootleggers and a grant. He was arrested by the police late Saturday while attempting to give a political address on a prominent downtown street corner.

Stallard told Judge Poulson that he had attempted to interest some of his Portland friends in his defense, but that they had refused to respond.

Chief of Police Minto said Stallard would receive the same treatment as other prisoners, and would not be allowed to purchase his meals at a nearby restaurant.

Meier Hypocrite, Stallard Declares

Stallard, a staunch Joseph supporter, told police he had enlisted several Portland friends, also Joseph men, to his aid, but that he renounced them all when they failed to appear at his trial. In a court statement he said, "I believe in the principles outlined by Senator Joseph, and called upon his followers in Portland to help me in this matter and since they have not appeared, I denounce them all as hypocrites, including Julius Meier."

The candidate for senator plans to test the constitutionality of the city ordinance prohibiting street speaking in the restricted area, he stated.

KANSAS ONCE HOME TO MAN WHO EDUCATED MANY SALEM PRESENT BUSINESS LEADERS

W. I. Staley Once Coached Herbert Hoover as He Prepared to Enter Stanford University

By OLIVE DOAK

"The man who educated a city's business men" might well be said of W. I. Staley, and he is just as true as the majority of such appellations. This is how it all happened.

Some years ago, at least long enough ago that the intervening years have whitened his hair, W. I. Staley was born near Waterville, Kansas. Here he grew up and was educated from the grades and in the subjects now in the high school curriculum. Then he went to normal school for two years. At the end of that time he entered a business college in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and graduated.

Taught in Iowa

During the spring of 1889 Mr. Staley taught in Decora, Iowa. The next year he taught in Cornell college at Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and in that same year came west to Salem where he and Mrs. Staley have remained.

Mr. Staley came here to take a position in a branch school of the Portland business college owned by A. P. Armstrong. This school was located on the corner of North Commercial and Chemeketa streets and was even then called the Capitol Business college.

Two years later Mr. Staley bought the school and since then has been giving a business education to vast numbers of business men both in and out of Salem, among the most notable of whom is Herbert Hoover, although Mr. Staley says he really can't claim any distinction because in truth all he did was to coach Mr. Hoover in special work in mathematics preparing him for entrance examinations to Stanford.

Two Teachers at Start

In those first days there were two teachers—one of them Mr. Staley, and the other Asalea Cochran, now living in Oregon City. Today there are four teachers. At that time there were about 40 students, now there are 300 enrolled through the year.

From the Chemeketa street location the school was moved to where the Dixie bakery now stands, then to a location on High and Ferry street where it was conducted for many years and then about four years ago the present location on North Liberty street was taken.

Early Pictures Amuse

It is amusing to look over the old pictures in Mr. Staley's office. Hardly a business house in town but has a representative "student" who at one time studied with Mr. Staley. Some of them in "bohrish togas" of erstwhile days, their hair long and curling about their face like the present popular feminine "wind-blown" hair cut. Others are in solemn and dignified black with hair parted down tight to their heads and they wear a facial expression that shows the world was a serious place for them—a lot more so than it is today for the same men.

Mr. Staley estimates that he has at least 10,000 pupils scattered all over the country and in most every line of business. Few days pass but some former student is not heard from either in person or by mail, and to visit in a city or town any place along the coast is to find one or several former students.

This makes life very much worth while for this white-headed educator of business folk, for he says very emphatically that all

JOINT PROGRAM GIVEN AT CAMP

Girl Reserves and Scouts Get Together, Stage Novel Stunts

CAMP SANTALY, Girl Reserve Headquarters, July 28—Saturday morning the girls of Camp Santaly bled to the hills, leaving at 4:30 and arriving in time to see the sun rising on Fox Valley stretching out below them. In the evening the Boy Scouts came to hold a joint stunt night with the Girl Reserves. The Scouts gave several clever stunts and these were followed by those of the girls which were in the form of a pioneer pageant.

The scene was laid in Fort Vancouver and Dr. McLoughlin with long flowing white hair met the band of emigrants and invited them to spend the evening at the fort.

Each of the families gave a little song, dance or stunt to entertain the others. At the end came the dancing of the Virginia reel and the singing of "Oregon, My Oregon."

Sunday morning the camp had a lovely worship service in the Santaly temple. A choir of girls sang some special sacred music and Mrs. Callahan talked on "The Presence of God."

Numerous Visitors

At Camp Sunday

Many visitors came to camp on Sunday, among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Chapman, Charles Parker, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barham, Barbara Barham, Sarah Jane Dark, Mrs. J. W. Savage, Eleanor Moore, Mrs. George Moore, and Mrs. Pearl Hutchason and Mabel Savage of Salem; Mrs. A. SOCIALISTS FILE CANDIDATES LIST

Socialist nominees for the November election, selected at a nominating assembly held in Portland July 19, were filed in the offices of the secretary of state here Monday.

Inasmuch as the Socialists are not an established party in Oregon, the candidates will be designated on the official ballot as socialist-independents. This was the political principle adopted by the assembly.

The names of the nominees follow:

O. D. Teel, Echo, United States senator; Albert Stroff, Portland, governor; J. E. Hosmer, Silverton, justice of the state supreme court, position No. 6; Minnie McFarland, Unatilla, superintendent of public instruction; James M. Alley, Veneta, commissioner of labor; Peter Straiff, Jr., Portland, representative in congress, 3rd district; F. M. Williams, Gladstone, state senator 14th district, Clackamas, Columbia and Multnomah.

David K. Alexander, Portland, state representative 30th district; Ernest Schwinger, Portland, state senator 13th district; Mabel M. Snyder, Portland, state senator 13th district, to fill unexpired term; Charles Kolb, George R. Bulckerood, V. P. Martin, C. C. Campbell, C. J. Carlson, B. C. Mitchell, O. J. Wright, J. F. Thompson, Minnie Swetland, C. A. Strickland and William Rothman, all of Portland, for state representative 15th district, Multnomah county.

Flag Flown at Capitol Given To Fair Board

The American flag which was flown over the national capitol in Washington during consideration by congress of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, Monday was presented to the state fair board by Governor Norblad. The flag recently was sent to Governor Norblad by Senator McNary.

The Oregon state grange and other rural organizations may use the flag at any time, Governor Norblad said.

Flax Receipts At State Plant Are Heavy Now

Flax receipts at the state flax plant are very heavy these days. Harvest is at its height. Friday 97 loads were received; Saturday, when the plant operates only a half day, 57 loads; and Monday well over 100 loads came in from surrounding farms. The flax is of fine quality and the weather is proving ideal for the harvest.

Another Viewing Of Road Ordered By County Court

The county court Monday ordered the first viewers' report on the proposed North Santiam highway rescinded, and also ordered the same board to make another viewing.

The matter was thrown open again voluntarily by the court following unfiled objections made by Detroit landowners. It is expected these objections will be brought out in the new damages to be returned.

MORE SIGNERS OUT OF REMONSTRANCE

Remonstrance against the vacation of a portion of Trade street to permit the erection of an addition to the plant of the Oregon Pulp and Paper company dwindled still further Monday when five more signers withdrew all objections to the vacation.

F. E. Shafer, Emil A. Schaefer and S. Heckman asked last night that their names be taken from the petition. Earlier in the afternoon P. L. Fraser and A. H. Moore followed the lead of Dan Fry, Sr., and Dan Fry, Jr., in having their signatures taken from the list.

Rumor is current that John Bayne is considering asking that his name be removed but this has so far not been done.

Many of names have been added to the petition favoring the vacation until the list now far overshadows that of the opposition. In the face of this it is probable that there will be little opposition to the vacation when the matter comes before the council next Monday night.

42 Days in Jail Totals Monday Grist in Court

Forty-two and a half days in jail were meted out to five violators of city ordinances over the week end when they appeared in police court Monday. Most interesting of the cases was that in which H. H. Stallard, Portland, refused to pay a fine of $25 for delivering a political speech in a restricted zone but instead decided to serve the fine out at the rate of $2 a day.

Other jail sentences were given to, E. E. "Sparky" Morgan and Eugene Van Fleet, 10 days on a vagrancy charge; Charles Jones, and William Larhead, five days each for drunkenness.
