WORKER AT PAPER MILL HERE KILLED

Elvin B. Rickard, 23, an employe of the Oregon Pulp and Paper company, was killed instantly about 11 o'clock Saturday morning when caught between two rolls of paper on one of the rewinding machines in the plant.

It is thought Rickard slipped on going into one of the lanes next to rewinding machine No. 1 and fell, attempting to catch himself by throwing out his hand.

He was jerked between the two rolls before workmen could stop the machine, his head and shoulders being completely crushed.

Rickard had worked as rewinder man for the past two months, although he had been in the employ of the company for over a year.

He had been married a little over six months, and leaves his widow and father living at Corvallis. Funeral services will be held from the Corvallis chapel.

His home here was at 575 Columbia street.

STATE TO BORROW TO PURCHASE FLAX

It will be necessary for the state board of control to arrange a loan of approximately $300,000 to handle this year's flax crop under contract to the state, according to announcement made here Saturday.

Contracts were signed with 365 growers, with acreage in excess of 6000 acres. The flax is now arriving at the penitentiary plant from all sections of the Willamette valley. Under a plan adopted by the board of control several years ago growers receive their pay within a few days after delivery of the flax, or as soon as the weights can be computed and sent to the state department. Officials said this year's flax crop is the largest in years, with the quality above normal.

The board of control this year will receive from the growers approximately $35,000 for seed advanced prior to planting, and $20,000 as installments on pulpers which were manufactured at the penitentiary plant and sold to the farmers.

Colonel W. E. Bartram, in charge of the prison industries, said the demand for Oregon flax was increasing rapidly, and that shipments of tow were now being made to Kentucky and other southern states.

Firemen's School Will Draw Record Crowd, Word

That the annual Oregon Firemen's school to be held at Corvallis August 18 to 22, will attract the largest attendance in history is evidenced by letters received here during the past few days, according to announcement made by Clarence A. Lee, state fire marshal, who is co-operating with Ivan Pearson and other officials of the Oregon Fire Chiefs association.

Sawmill operators, wood working establishments, power companies and other public utilities will send their chief engineers to the conference, according to Lee.

"The city of Corvallis will have one or two men in attendance at the school," wrote Mayor F. H. Sholes, who also is cashier of the Corvallis state bank.

"This is a step in the right direction and the city of Corvallis is interested," Chief Miller and two of his men from Aurora have written that they will attend the school even though they are required to pay their own expenses. Editor Knapp of the Aurora Observer has interested himself in the school and has written Lee that he is advocating a private subscription to send the firemen to

EXCISE TAX AUDIT NEARS COMPLETION

The state tax commission announced Saturday that with the exception of approximately 200 excise tax returns, which will require further correspondence and personal interviews, the audit of more than 6000 corporation excise tax returns made to the commission last April has been completed.

Members of the commission said that the few remaining cases, which involve large amounts of money and various auditing and administrative problems, will require considerable time. The commission hopes to complete virtually all of its remaining hearings and field audits prior to the next taxing period.

While statistics as to the cost of collecting the excise tax are not yet available, indications were that they would be far below the expense of collecting most other taxes.

As the result of studies made by the commission further simplification in the blanks and possibly changes in the manner of accounting will be adopted prior to the next collecting date.

VAN CLEAVE INJURED
SALAM HEIGHTS, August 2.—J. B. Van Cleave has been confined to his home the past few days. While employed at the Spaulding mills he suffered a leg injury.

BACK TO WASHINGTON
FALLS CITY, August 2.—Beverly and Phyllis Munkvold have returned to their home in Aberdeen, Wash., after visiting their grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Horn.

SERIOUS INJURY IS SAID CRASH RESULT

An unnamed person was badly hurt and is in a hospital as a result of an automobile accident which occurred Friday afternoon on the Silver Falls loop, according to reports filed yesterday by L. Earl Deane, 160 South 15th, Car driven by Mrs. Alvin Hartley was cause of the accident, according to his report.

Deane says Mrs. Hartley was driving from her home to the main road and was looking at children in the car instead of watching the road. In order to avoid hitting her, he had to brake suddenly and attempted to reverse sharply to avoid her, he says.

Mrs. Hartley struck her car grazing the right door with front of her car and crashing the rear fender. One passenger was hurt and is in the hospital and others were shaken up, as well as the machine being considerably damaged, the report concludes.

Flax Loads Too Wide, Truckmen Admit in Court

Loads of flax said to be 17 feet in width were the cause of the appearance in justice court Saturday of 11 truck drivers engaged in trucking flax to the state plant. The state law limits load widths to eight feet.

All the drivers pleaded guilty to breaking the law and their cases were continued. State traffic officers, in making the complaint, added that some of the drivers "hog" the road, driving their trucks down the center of the highway.

Men haled into court were: J. M. Kauffman, Nelson Kolster, Louis Dalsh, R. H. Etzel, Wm. Meyer, E. M. Harts and J. M. Diller, all of Aurora; Alvin East Hubbard; Leslie Road, Molalla; and R. Haugen and Joe Stephan, Corvallis.

Power Project in Coos County Forecast Here

A. L. Houghtaling of Bridge, Coos county, Saturday, filed with the state engineer an application for a permit to appropriate 40 second feet of water from Rock Creek, tributary to the middle fork of the Coquille river, for the development of 3,432 horsepower.

Houghtaling estimates that the project will cost $150,000. Included in the plans are a dam 250 feet long and between 30 and 60 feet high, and a flume 11,600 feet long. A fall of 755 feet will be used.
