Clifford Ouster Held New Indication of Sportsmen's Row

ently played politics with the wrong faction. Other removals included A. E. Burghdoff and E. A. Averill. Burghdoff was replaced by Averill, who was succeeded by Clifford.

Klamath Sportsmen Struggle for Clifford

Klamath county sportsmen, who have been favorable to Clifford's administration as state game warden, especially were aroused by his removal, according to letters and telegrams received at the executive department. Virtually all of these communications demanded the immediate retirement of members of the game commission who voted to oust Clifford at Monday's meeting.

Although Governor Norblad Wednesday refused to give any intimation as to what action he may take in connection with the protests, it was evident that he was giving careful consideration to the many telegrams and letters. In a number of cases the aroused sportsmen went so far as to recommend successors of the present state game commissioners. Governor Norblad indicated that he had not yet attempted to determine who voted for or against Clifford. Neither has he received this information from second-hand sources.

Decrees Politics in Game Affairs

"Intelligent effort to enforce the state game laws and conserve the wild life of Oregon apparently does not count for much in this day of political antagonism," said Governor Norblad. "A game warden possessing high qualifications apparently is objectionable to the politicians, while a political warden is not the kind of an official that is desired by the real sportsmen."

Norblad said that he had appointed four of the five present members of the state game commission, and in each instance had attempted to select a man qualified to handle the duties of his office. "These men have had a free hand, and have not received any dictation from the executive department," Governor Norblad said in his criticism directed at conditions and was not intended to reflect upon any member of the state game commission.

Governor Norblad was frank in his admission that strife will continue in the game and fish affairs of Oregon as long as the state game and fish commissions remain in politics.

Incumbents had no primary opposition. Bulkley will oppose Senator McCulloch, republican incumbent, in the November election. Bankhead Choice of Alabama Bourbons Alabama democrats nominated John H. Bankhead, attorney, over Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, in the senatorial race. Bankhead will oppose Senator Hedlin, the democrat incumbent, in the fall elections. Hedlin, who has served in the house and senate since 1904, was barred from the democratic primary for failure to support Smith in 1928. He is running for reelection as an independent.

Former Senator Gore received the democratic senatorial nomination in Oklahoma over C. J. Wrightman, a wealthy oil man. He will oppose Senator Pine, the republican incumbent, in the general election. Pine was unopposed in the primary.

William H. Murray overwhelmed Fran Buttram for the democratic gubernatorial nomination in Oklahoma.

Charles Smith, Civil War Vet Dies at Age 87

Charles H. Smith, a Civil war veteran, died at his home on route 2 Wednesday at the age of 87 years. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Elke P. Smith, five children and a brother.
Smith has lived in the vicinity of Salem for about nine years. The children are Fred P. Smith, and Miss Laura Smith, both of Salem; Mrs. Anna E. Hight, Hammer, Idaho; Mrs. Gracie I. Quirk, Zephyr, Texas; and Mrs. Edna C. Head of Salem. The brother, Fred R. Smith, lives in Roseburg. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by W. T. Rigdon and Son.

Portland Will Try Experiment In 'Night Life'

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 13.—(AP)—An experiment in "night life" was authorized by the Portland city council today.
After September 14 dancing time will be extended from midnight to 1 a. m., under an ordinance passed today.
Mayor Baker, however, issued a statement the extension was only an "experiment."

W. L. Claybourne, Oakland attorney, whose story practically branded as a perjurer the testimony of John Crowley, one of his employees and a prosecution witness during the Billings trial. Crowley testified to seeing Billings and another man at Stewart and Mission streets—a block from the bombing—at 1:45 p. m., 15 minutes before the blast. He fixed the time exactly by testifying he had just looked at his watch.

Claybourne, a former garage owner, however, told the justices Crowley was working under his automobile in the garage during a period of 45 minutes before and ten minutes after the explosion and could not have seen Billings as he had testified.

Watch Declared

Claybourne further testified Crowley's watch was in the garage's cash register on the day of the bombing. He said Crowley pledged the time piece as security for a small loan.

Some days later, Claybourne continued, he noticed Crowley talking with several detectives. He said Crowley explained they were seeking his version—previously told to others—he saw Billings before the bombing. "I told Crowley I knew he was lying and would be indicted for perjury. He told me he was only stringing the officers along to get some money from them and gave me to understand we would not testify at the trial," the witness said.

Later, Claybourne said, he went to Nevada. When he returned he learned Billings had been convicted and Crowley had testified against him. He said he told officers of Crowley's alleged perjury testimony and also went to Billings' attorney but was unable to see him.

southern district of West Virginia for eight years and recently was retained examiner for the federal radio commission.

Long before the suffrage amendment was enacted Mrs. Yost was active in education toward that change and for prohibition. By 1910 she was recognized leader in her state. Three or four years ago she declined appointment by her governor as prohibition commissioner in order to continue on the board of education.

She was the first national committee woman for West Virginia and has retained the office ever since. She campaigned for Herbert Hoover and was selected for the executive committee thereafter. Mrs. Yost is a daughter of the American Revolution, member of the executive committee of inter-collegiate prohibition association and twice has represented the United States in international conferences against alcoholism.

Fred Bynon, Sr. Opens New Law Office in City

Fred S. Bynon, Sr., former resident of Salem has returned after an absence of eight years and has opened a law office on the third floor of the Oregon building.
Mr. Bynon was secretary of the chamber of commerce for several years and later was a real estate broker, before leaving here to open a law office in Coos Bay. Mr. Bynon is an alumnus of Willamette school of law.

"Romance" which began a three day run at the Fox Elisnore Wednesday afternoon is no small degree "better movie and a better talkie." The play was written by Edward Sheldon and for years a stage favorite. In 1920 it was made into a silent picture and now comes the "talkie" with Greta Garbo in the role of the famous Rita Cavallini, Italian opera singer.

The theme has to do with a young rector who becomes enamored with Cavallini and the plot is the struggle and ultimate result of his feeling for her.

Lewis Stone does a masterful piece of acting as a "man in Cavallini's life." Greta Garbo is lovely in appearance, her voice is beautiful and her acting has the same dramatic quality which made her such a delight in "Anna Christie."

It is a bit hard to think of her as an Italian however for her Swedish accent and deliberate almost melancholy interpretation of a dramatic love is quite in contrast to the fiery vivaciousness of an Italian. However Garbo is a character to be remembered with pleasure in this role.

The play itself is beautifully photographed. Each scene is quite inconspicuously studied in every detail for truthful characterization of the age in which the play is cast. In truth it has some of the best photography that I have seen in the past months. Clarence Brown was the director and his work is finished.

As for Gavin Gordon, the young rector, I can say little that is complimentary. A stronger character in this part would have made this picture one of the best to come to Salem in months past.

How Reginald Denny ever got mixed up in "Embarrassing Moments" which is now playing at Bligh's Capitol is a mystery to me. He may have needed money badly, we all do at times, but he paid a dear price for the money he got.

However, all did not agree with me Wednesday night for there was many a roar over the "embarrassing moments" that followed one another like stars in an evening sky, each about as different as one star from another.

But as was said the crowd seemed to like it, and even I smiled a time or two, so the state of boredom was not so extinction.
At least the plot is different and some of the "costumes" worn are quite amusing.

HAWKS SETS NEW WEST-EAST MARK

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Beating by more than two hours the transcontinental air record which Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took from him in April, Captain Frank M. Hawks flew from Glendale, Cal., to Curtis field today in 13 hours, 25 minutes and three seconds.

By bettering the Lindbergh time of 14:45 Hawks became holder of the speed records for crossing the country in both directions, for a week ago today he flew the east-west course in 14:50:43, beating the record for the west flight by Roscoe Turner by more than four hours.

Leaving the west coast at 5:16:27 (EST) he touched ground here at 5:41:30. He made refueling stops on the way at Albuquerque, Wichita and Indianapolis.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh expressed delight tonight when informed that Captain Frank M. Hawks had broken his record for west-east flight across the continent.
"I am certainly glad to hear it," said Lindbergh. "I think it is a fine thing that he brought the record down. I'll offer my congratulations to Captain Hawks at the very first opportunity."

to show signs of relenting in sections fringing states most severely affected.

Good rains fell in Missouri and showers were forecast for the far west tonight. Other light rains fell in the northern Mississippi valley but over most of the 12 states from which the governors are coming, brought only dry weather.

Ten of the 12 governors either were here or on their way. The two other state heads will have proxies. Gov. Flom D. Sampson of Kentucky will be represented by Senator Robison and Gov. Harvey Parnell of Arkansas will send Harvey T. Harrison, a Little Rock lawyer, and T. Roy Field, assistant director of extension of the University of Arkansas, to represent him.

The governors who will attend are Henry S. Caulfield, Missouri; Louis L. Emmerson, Illinois; Harry S. Leslie, Indiana; Myers Y. Cooper, Ohio; William G. Conley, West Virginia; John G. Pollard, Cooper, Ohio; William G. Conley, West Virginia; John G. Pollard, Virginia; John E. Erickson, Montana; Clyde M. Reed, Kansas; John Hamhill, Iowa; and Arthur J. Weaver, Nebraska.

The 18-day diet is no longer the favored road to slyph-like slenderness—so say beauty specialists who preach the doctrine of maintaining health during the reducing process. For years the alcohol rub-down has been recognized by athletes as an important part of the daily routine of those who would keep "fit." This in general is the theory of reduction which Miss Edna Richardson, beauty and health specialist of Hollywood is teaching in her daily lectures at Miller's. A compact and small combination of rollers which Miss Richardson demonstrates makes the formerly tedious task one of a very few minutes.

It won't be long now until school bells peal at Sedo, reports F. A. Gallegly, principal of the finance they are reluctant to see it repealed and their money spent uselessly.

Alderman Vandevort, who introduced the measure providing for repeal of the present ruling, has announced he will carry his fight further than the council should that body fall in the movement. The measure will come to its final vote at Monday night's meeting of the city council after having passed its first two readings.

Possibility that the effort to repeal the ordinance will be carried to the people through a referendum if the council should fail to support Vandevort's move were seen Wednesday by those interested in his efforts for repeal. Vandevort, it is charged, is determined to attain his object to protect one or two growers who have refused to raise their selling price of milk to the standard adopted by the association.

Vandevort has 15 airports and landing fields, all owned by the government.
