Phelan Leaves Bequests To Californians Noted in Art, Literature, Sports

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15—(AP)—California who achieved fame in art, literature and athletics were rewarded and charitable institutions aided by the $10,000,000 will of former Senator James D. Phelan filed for probate here today.

Helen Wills Moody, world champion women's tennis player, was bequeathed $20,000 in appreciation of her "winning the tennis championship for California." She also was given a portrait of herself painted by the Polish artist, Sigal, two years ago.

The request immediately raised the question of whether her amateur standing would be endangered if she accepted the money. Mrs. Moody declined to comment because she had no legal notification as yet.

Recognition for work in literature won another $29,000 gift for Gertrude Atherton, California writer whose book "The Black Oxen" created nationwide discussion several years ago.

The largest single bequest was $1,000,000 for the creation of the James J. Phelan foundation in San Francisco, city of his birth. "Politics is running the game department detrimental to all policies of protection and propagation of fish and game. I hope you can see your way clear to take the bull by the horns and clean house and reinstate Harold Clifford. This would save the beautiful Phelan home, Villa Montalva, near Saratoga, south of here, to the San Francisco Art association. The home and grounds are to be maintained as a public park with the income from $250,000 set aside for the purpose.

More than 130 bequests to individuals and institutions were made. These included $100,000 to his sister, Mary Louise Phelan, and same up to $50,000 to nephews and nieces. All employees were remembered, their legacy depending on their length of service.

Schools, churches and charitable organizations of San Francisco and California were given amounts up to $20,000. Included in these were $50,000 to old St. Mary's church for the poor of St. Mary's parish where Phelan was born. Another $50,000 for a park in Chinatown where the church is located, was provided.

Several California historical organizations benefited. In addition to specific bequests the senator willed the residue of the estate after 25 years to Noel Sullivan, nephew, and Alyce Murphy and Gladys Doyle, nieces.

Fugitive Trio Caught After Two Days Free

ROSEBURG, Ore., Aug. 15—(AP)—James and Robert Conaster and Earl Hanley, who escaped from the county's prison road crew Tuesday, were captured last night by guards patrolling the highway near Wolfcreek.

The three had secured James Conaster's car at Glendale and were on their way to California. They were serving long terms for violation of the prohibition law and were trustees with the road gang.

WOMAN MAY GO ON COMMISSION

Grace MacCormac French, Carlton, Favored; Game Row at Stalemate

Although not admitting that he is to take any hand in the game commission controversy, Governor Norblad said Friday that in case there is a vacancy on the commission he would be tempted to appoint Grace MacCormac French of Carlton. Mrs. French was recommended highly in letters received at the executive department.

She is chairman of the department of "conservation of forests, birds and wild life" of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs and also is active in the affairs of the Oregon Audubon society. Mrs. French is author of a pamphlet, "A Farm Woman Speaks," in which she discussed sportsmen and their habits.

Special reference was made in this pamphlet of the necessity of protecting the farm home against irresponsible hunters.

The contents of the pamphlet were first published in the Oregonian, under the department of "Wild Life Lines."

If the governor contemplates taking any action in connection with the controversy resulting from the removal of Harold Clifford, state game warden, by the state game commission, he had not yet let it be known when he left his office here Friday night.

Telegrams and letters, some of which lauded and others condemned the members of the game commission, continued to arrive at the executive department Friday. While most of those missives were from Portland, the up state was fairly represented.

Governor Norblad indicated that he was giving these telegrams and letters careful consideration, but refused to commit himself as to any contemplated action.

Emmett Howard, representative in the state legislature from Lane county, telegraphed Governor Norblad, as follows: "Politics is running the game department detrimental to all policies of protection and propagation of fish and game. I hope you can see your way clear to take the bull by the horns and clean house and reinstate Harold Clifford. This would save the beautiful Phelan home, Villa Montalva, near Saratoga, south of here, to the San Francisco Art association. The home and grounds are to be maintained as a public park with the income from $250,000 set aside for the purpose.

chance association, with headquarters in Portland, wrote Governor Norblad, in part: "Ordinarily this association does not take any side in matters political where it affects the personnel of a department, but in the case of the state game commission, affecting Harold Clifford and others, we cannot help but observe by comparison the condition of the game commission treasury before Mr. Clifford assumed office and its condition at the present time.

"We do not desire to direct your course of thought in this matter, but simply to call your attention to the possibility of harmful reaction in changing horses in the middle of the stream. To your practical mind we know that this matter can be safely left. Our statement of a self evident fact regarding the economical administration of Mr. Clifford is made as a point worthy of pondering. The statement of unfavorable political reaction can be taken for what it is worth."

While these telegrams and letters are somewhat representative of those received by Governor Norblad during the past few days, others are more drastic and demand the immediate removal of at least three members of the game commission. Still others demand the reinstatement of Clifford, regardless of any action that is taken in connection with the members of the commission.

Governor Norblad will leave for Newport early today to spend the week-end. During his sojourn there he intends to read much of the testimony introduced at the hearing involving Clifford and Ed Clark, his chief assistant.

Williams—To Mr. and Mrs. William E. Williams, 520 Union, a girl, Dorothy Ernestine, born August 14.

"We are not indorsing any person as successor" to Clifford but earnestly ask your support of these commissioners who are men of integrity and honor and entirely capable of reorganizing the game department on an efficient and respectable basis."

The Manufacturers and Merchants association, with headquarters in Portland, wrote Governor Norblad, in part: "Ordinarily this association does not take any side in matters political where it affects the personnel of a department, but in the case of the state game commission, affecting Harold Clifford and others, we cannot help but observe by comparison the condition of the game commission treasury before Mr. Clifford assumed office and its condition at the present time.
