WOOL MARKET NOW |

mostly quiet with a few houses continuing to report a fair volume of sales chiefly on 64's and finer domestic wools. Prices have been fully maintained at levels established during recent weeks. While mills have not bought in large quantities, they have shown considerable interest in offerings and have taken sample lots of a wide variety of lines. The finer grades have attracted most attention but practically all grades have been included in recent purchases of small quantities for piecing out and sampling. The duliness of the market has, no doubt, been influenced by seasonal conditions attending vacations in the mills and opening of new lines of goods. Cautious buying by mills is also requently a feature in the market just prior to the opening of a new series of London sales and the opening of seasons in primary

Trading in fleeces was very slow. A few moderate quantities of 64's and finer Ohio and similar wools were sold with prices very firm. Offers were made on several of the other grades at the minimum of ranges quoted, but the amounts of wool available at these figures were found very imited.

The bulk of the wool sold durng the week was of the western grown lines and consisted largely of 64's and finer qualities, Texas twelve months wools were about as active as any line and sales were closed at prices in the range 73 to 75c scoured basis. Territory original bag lines were active at 70 to 73c scoured basis with the lines of bulk good French combing or better staple bringing the maximum of the range. Offerings of short French combing and clothing staple in the original bags moved at 65 to 68c scoured basis. Graded territory wools were quiet with quotations firm. Movement Canadian Crop Principal Reason, Review Says

Domestic wheat markets weakened and prices declined to near the low points of the season during the week ending August 30, principally as a result of the early movement and prospective heavy offerings of Canadian wheat, according to the weekly grain market review of the United States bureau of agricultural economics. Feed grains had independent strength and prices held steady or advanced at most markets, influenced by a further reduction in trade estimates of the corn crop and a continued good demand. Rye was firm under a growing demand for this grain for feed, while flax strengthened as offerings decreased and hedging pressure from crushers became lighter.

Coast Market

Is Also Lower Pacific coast markets were also weak and lower, with wheat at Portland and Seattle selling at the lowest price of the season. Increased marketings of new crop wheat, together with continued slow export inquiry and decreasing storage space at the terminals were the principal weakening factors. Prices declined more than at eatern markets, with No. 1 hard white Big Bend bluestem or early Baart varieties quoted at Portland at $1.03 and at Seattle at $1.05 per bushel. No. 1 soft and western white was quoted at both Portland and Seattle at 85c and No. 1 hard winter, northern spring and western red at both markets at 84c per bushel. Fourteen per cent protein No. 1 dark northern spring from Montana was quoted at Seattle at 93 cents and No. 1 dark hard winter at 91c per bushel in bulk, Mills were only moderate buyers and export sales were relatively small. One full cargo and three half cargoes of white wheat were reported sold to the United Kingdom, and 2,500 tens to the orient. Moderate sales of Pacific northwestern wheat were made to California during the week. A reduction in water rates from Washington and Oregon to California was partially responsible for the increased sales of northern wheat to San Francisco and Los Angeles. Domestic barley markets held steady during the week under a arly for feed barley, consumption of which is increasing in most areas under the influence of high prices and limited supplies of corn. Prices in California markets advanced 21/2 to 5c per 100 on feed grades, but held about unchanged on malting types. Prices at eastern points were mostly unchanged. Foreign quotations were reduced around 10c per 100 on Danubian and Russian barley, offerings of which continue relatively large. Domestic corn prices declined slightly during the week, but oats and grain sorghums held
